Education and Money.
Building Inside the Earth.
The King to Give a Dinner.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FLORIDA, California and the Gulf Coast will learn with interest that New York, where this is written, shivers in weather near zero.

It is as cold as it has been here, in two years. Streets are snowcovered, sidewalks slippery, cars skidding, noses blue. Let those that have warm sunshine be grateful, AND ADVERTISE.

HENRY FORD, planning to spend 100 millions educating young people on his own lines, making them "fit into life," teaching every one a trade, wants no advice.

He is right. No one knows better than he how to prepare boys for useful work. But Mr. Ford spoke hastily when he said he wanted no advice on education from those that never earned or saved a dollar.

THE world's greatest educators have not been money makers or savers. Aristotle, who taught Phillips's son, Alexander, made no fortune for himself. Alexander, conqueror of the world, spent collecting specimens for Aristotle, greatest naturalist and philosopher of the world, more than the total fortune left him by King Phillip.

JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU was no earner or saver. His story of his own life would shock any good automobile maker, and he left his children, all illegitimate, on the doorstep of a foundling asylum.

But he wrote "Emile," best book on education ever written up to that time, in some respects the best EVER written.

HERBERT SPENCER'S book on education, every father and mother should read. It would please Henry Ford. Spencer's common sense is Ford's own common sense. Spencer was no money maker, and could not have brought penny whistles into quantity production, much less automobiles.

PESTALOZZI, Froebel, none of the great teachers was a money maker. Ford himself is rich only as a by-product of his mechanical genius, and through no plan of his own.

ALSO, let us not despise those that fail to save money. They are the promoters of prosperity, the irrigators that make business good.

The automobile business would be lame without millions of people, young and old, that buy automobiles in installments from five hundred dollars up, and that never had, and never will have, five hundred dollars at one time in their lives.

The surface of the land, covered by the new Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, will pay the railroad interest on twenty millions. Weep, good single taxers. The power station was moved 100 feet underground without ceasing to produce power.

MEN now begin to use the interior of the round ball on which they float through space. One million years hence the old earth will be exploited and honeycombed far down near the center toward which all matter tends, as Dante put it, anticipating Newton.

Virgil and Dante, climbing down Satan's hairy back, noticed the resistance of gravitation as they climbed up toward the earth's other side, where they emerged, and saw the Southern Cross, not before mentioned in European literature.

YOUR descendant, 500,000 generations hence, will hear discussions about diverting too much heat from the equator or the earth's center to the North Pole, as you hear discussions now about taking too much water from Lake Michigan for the Chicago River.

There will be scientific warnings against wasting power stored in the earth's heat, like today's warnings against waste of our oil supply.

THEN the tides, and next the sun itself, will be harnessed. The power problem will be solved. But for the millions of millions of years that earth and men are to last men will find cause for worry.

AFTER all the fuss and feathers, London naval limitation conference is not going to limit anything. The nations will go on building as big fleets as they can afford, except Uncle Sam, who, kind Heaven knows why, will be told how many HE may build.

Building costs here much more than in Europe. Our bill for warships will be about one BILLION dollars, large sum to spend on targets for air bombs.

Half that amount spent on submarines and fighting airships, useful for air mail in peace, would make this country really safe.

THE French government is building secretly a "mystery" plane to fly from Paris to New York, returning Lindbergh's visit, in much shorter time. France spends 1,500,000 francs on the ship, only $60,000.

ONE THOUSAND such ships would cost $60,000,000—less than a tenth of our proposed warship bill.

Can you imagine how polite

A. P. MOORE SINKING RAPIDLY

Pneumonia Sets In, Envoy Has Only Few Hours to Live, Bulletin Says

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Alexander P. Moore, ambassador to Poland, was sinking very rapidly today at the California Lutheran Hospital, where he has been in a critical condition from a throat and lung infection.

This morning an official bulletin said that bronchial pneumonia had set in and another at 11 o'clock said "it is now but a matter of a few hours."

Mr. Moore, who had been slightly delirious, became unconscious early today.

Dr. P. G. White, attending physician, abandoned all other outside calls to remain at Moore's bedside.

Mr. Moore recently was placed in a Los Angeles hospital when his health failed to improve during a rest at Palm Springs, desert resort, and later under treatment at a Monrovia (Cal.) sanitarium. He was at Palm Springs when notified of his appointment to the Warsaw post.

Mr. Moore, former Pittsburgh publisher, previously had served as Ambassador to Spain and Peru.

Irene Observes 21st Birthday Behind Jail Bars

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 17.—Today is the twenty-first birthday anniversary of Irene Crawford Schroeder, former Wheeling girl, who is in jail in New Castle awaiting indictment in connection with the murder of a Pennsylvania state policeman. Irene was born here February 17, 1909.

Investigation of the girl's record shows she lost her mother at the age of 8. In her youth she made excellent grades in school. Later she did not fare so well and the arrival of high school age found her just making the necessary passing averages. She was married at 15.

Friends praised her as a good little girl—as well as persons who knew her only casually. They blame loss of her mother, early marriage and the movies for her sudden change from a "good kid" to a "wild woman."

DAVIS READY TO MEET VARE

Labor Secretary, in City, Indicates Willingness to Visit Leader in South

Secretary James J. Davis, of the Department of Labor, interviewed between trains as he passed through Pittsburgh today from Washington to New Wilmington, Pa., let it be known that he is not dodging the political lightning and intimated that he would meet William S. Vare in Florida next week.

"I shall be glad to call on Mr. Vare if he invites me to his place at San Lucie," said Davis, and, upon reflection, added: "I might see him even if not invited."

Asked if he had any announcements to make, particularly with reference to his own reputed candidacy for governor in the coming primaries, Davis replied:

"No; you know they say that things political are now in the conjectural stage—but I know our candidate that has not announced himself."

He did not try to conceal the significance in his implied meaning that he would have an announcement to make. His friends attach much importance to his meeting with Vare in Florida.

INFORMED ON STRIKE

Secretary Davis said that Miss Emmeline Pitt, field representative of the Department of Labor, is keeping him informed in the taxicab strike situation and that he would be ready to act if his mediation is asked. Davis was on his way to New Wilmington, where he makes an address tonight, stopping at Sharon to visit his sister, who is ill. Next week he goes to Florida to attend a meeting of the supreme officers of

ASKS ALUMINUM TARIFF CUT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Reduction in existing tariffs on aluminum to the level of the Underwood rates of 1913 was proposed in the Senate today by Senator Walsh, of Montana, acting Democratic leader.

He contended the Aluminum Company of America, controlled by the Mellon interests, of Pittsburgh, had a "complete monopoly of production;" that existing rates were designed to equalize differences in costs of production here and abroad, and that the company had declined to make public its production costs.

Walsh proposed rates of 2 cents a pound on crude and 3½ cents on sheet aluminum, as compared with 5 and 9 cents, respectively, now in effect. The tariff bill makes no change in present duties on this product.

The Democrats earlier today had succeeded in eliminating proposed increases in duties on three commodities in the metals schedule—hollow drill steel, wire rods and wire rope.

A compromise rate of 40 per cent was agreed to for fourdrinier and cylinder wires suitable for use in paper making machinery and woven wire cloth suitable for use in the manufacture or fourdrinier wires. The present rate of 30 per cent was boosted to 55 by the bill, and 40 per cent was suggested by Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Massachusetts.

An amendment to lower the duty on cast iron pipe from 30 per cent ad valorem, as provided in the House bill, to 25 per cent, was adopted without a roll call.

WALSH SEES LEADERS OF UNION

Cain Promises Announcement Within 48 Hours of Steps Taken to Effect Peace

Announcement of definite steps toward settlement of the taxicab strike was promised within 48 hours today by Sheriff Robert S. Cain, following a conference in the office of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

"I have nothing to say at this time as a result of this meeting," said Cain, "but I expect to make a statement within 48 hours of definite steps toward a settlement of the strike."

WALSH MEETS STRIKERS

None besides Cain would talk for publication.

Prior to leaving for the conference, Walsh met with the executive committee of the striking drivers in his office.

Two Green cabs were stoned today in Fifth avenue, near Wilkins avenue, police reported, by strike sympathizers in two other machines which sped away. Neither cab stopped.

8 WARRANTS ISSUED

Eight warrants were sworn out against Yellow Cab Company employes before Justice of the Peace George B. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, as a sequel to an alleged attack on Frank Chille, at the headquarters of the strikers' union, 607 Webster avenue, early today.

Chille made information, charging riot, against A. L. Zelt, said to be an executive of the cab company, and Constable Schaffer, of the office of Mrs. Margaret Morgan, Sewickley justice of the peace. John Doe warrants were issued against six others; five charging riot and the sixth assault and battery.

While Chille and several companions were in Shields' office, two drivers of the Yellow Cab Company appeared to file information against strikers. Words

BODY OF HORST BOY NOT FOUND

WOOSTER, O., Feb. 17.—Authorities today abandoned hope that Charles Hanna, in his second confession on the disappearance of 4-year-old Melvin Horst, was telling the truth when he said that the child was buried in the yard of the former Hanna home in Orrville.

For hours a searching party led by Prosecutor Marion Graven turned up the ground at the spot designated by Hanna—but neither the body nor the clothes of the Orrville boy who vanished in December, 1928, was found.

MAY HAVE BEEN RUSE

Hanna named a spot where he said the grave was located after a long grilling which left him exhausted. Authorities now feel that he lied simply to gain relief from the questioning.

Hanna stood by his accusation that the Horst boy was beaten to death in an Orville garage by Earl Conald, who in turn names Hanna as the killer.

URGED DIGGING DEEPER

Previously both men had insisted that they did not know what had been done with the body.

When Prosecutor Graven and Detective Ora Slater informed Hanna that they had not been able to find the body in the designated grave, Hanna was quoted as replying: "You haven't dug deep enough."

Bill Asks Voyage For Vets' Fathers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—A measure to permit fathers of soldiers, sailors and marines who lost their lives in the World War and who are buried in Europe in cemeteries, to make a pilgrimage to the burial place of their sons at federal expense, was introduced today by Senator Allen (Rep.), Kansas. Congress already had provided for a trip to France for gold star mothers and the widows of American World War dead for the coming summer. Under the Allen measure the act applying to this trip would be amended to apply to fathers. It was referred to committee for consideration.

Coolidge District Anti-Dry Seated

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—William J. Granfield, of Long Meadow, Mass., was sworn in today as Representative of the Second Massachusetts Congressional District, the home of Calvin Coolidge. He is the first anti-prohibitionist to hold that seat.

The new Massachusetts member succeeds the late William K. Kaynor (Rep.), who was killed. By unanimous consent, Granfield was sworn in by Speaker Longworth without his credentials, setting a precedent.

HOOVER AGAIN IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Bronzed by Florida sunshine and rested by a week of fishing, President Hoover returned to Washington early today to resume his tasks as chief executive of the nation.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover left their private car as soon as the train arrived and with their guests went immediately to the White House for breakfast. The train reached Union Station at 6:45 a. m.

The chief executive seemed much refreshed and invigorated after his mid-winter vacation. In sharp contrast with the tropical warmth of the Florida coast, Mr. Hoover returned to the city during one of the most severe spells of cold weather that the winter has brought.

Irene Castle's Dog Shelter Opposed

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Irene Castle McLaughlin's neighbors are unalterably opposed to her rebuilding the Orphan of the Storm dog haven, it appeared today. The former dancer's plans to reconstruct the elaborate shelter destroyed by fire last week, with the loss of 90 dogs' lives, have brought protests from nine neighboring property holders. They have engaged a lawyer to fight the haven's reconstruction. Mrs. McLaughlin blames incendiaries for the canine tragedy.

Wheeling Sunday Shows Operate Unmolested

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 17.—No arrests were made Sunday in connection with the operation of the Wheeling theaters and motion picture shows. It is the first Sunday since December 22 that the theater men have operated unmolested by the state officials.

The fact that the Ohio County Grand Jury failed to indict the theater men last week indictments charging violation of the old West Virginia Blue Laws was responsible for the let up in the arrests.

Tomorrow night the Wheeling Ministerial Association will appear before the City Council and ask that body to pass an ordinance prohibiting the opening of the theaters on Sunday.

Pajama Plea Fails to Win Girl's Return to Father

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Charging that in Chicago they wear pajamas to parties, Milton Levy, wealthy New York insurance man, today asked the Supreme Court to compel his former wife, now Mrs. Charles Kernan, of 3520 Sheridan road, Chicago, to give up custody of their daughter, Bernice, 15. He said Chicago was no place in which to bring up a girl.

Justice Henry L. Sherman denied the application because Mrs. Kernan complained that Levy had been delinquent in paying $30 a week for the support of Bernice.

Levy's answer to that was that he had refused to support Bernice because she addressed her mother's present husband as "Daddy Charles" and had taken his name.

"She painted Chicago as the City of Nod," Levy declared. "She told Bernice that New York was not a Garden of Eden, but a cabbage patch, and that gold here was really not gold, but tin. I have since learned that my daughter was present in Chicago with her mother at mixed parties where only pajamas were worn by men and women, and that my daughter appeared in a most flaming set of pajamas."

PARLEY DEADLOCK MAY FORCE BUILDING OF BIGGER NAVIES

FRANCE FIRM ON NEW SHIP DEMANDS

Britain and United States Likely to Construct More Craft If Meet Fails

By HARRY B. HOBY
International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Great Britain will be forced to increase her naval program by 35 per cent unless the French naval demands are radically reduced, it was learned today.

The 35 per cent estimate represents the unofficial attitude of the British admiralty. This estimate was arrived at after a careful study by admiralty experts of the French demand for new ships totaling approximately 725,000 tons.

U. S. INCREASE

In order to attain parity with this new British estimate, the United States would be forced to build approximately 400,000 tons of warships. As both Britain and America are desirous peace should be achieved, it appears that unless the French are influenced toward reduction of their demands, the next few years will see warship building on a monumental scale.

The situation would also force Japan into a building orgy in order to bring about the ratio she demands with the navies of America and Britain.

Due to the illness of Premier Andre Tardieu, chief French delegate, there seems to be little chance of making any headway in reduction of the French demands, this week at least.

U. S. Delegates at Parley Hint Kellogg Pact Change

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Representing a highly important concession to the French disarmament attitude, influential members of the American delegation to the five-power naval conference concede that the Kellogg pact, while a great contributor to world peace, is not bullet-proof.

While no amendment to the Kellogg pact is possible here in London, it is learned the United States might eventually consider proposing an amendment which would represent a compromise between its present status and the French demands for a genuine security clause.

This amendment would have the effect of giving the part a pair of "false teeth" instead of the real ones the French demand. In all probability, it would provide a means of conciliation of international disputes by commissions of inquiry, and enable public opinion to be enlightened concerning the true facts behind any further threats of war.

The effectiveness of the pact thus would continue to rest upon public opinion, just as now, while a concession could be made to the French viewpoint in the form of arbitration.

TARDIEU CLOSE TO DEFEAT

PARIS, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The Tardieu government came closer to defeat in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon than at any time since it assumed power, receiving a majority of only 20 on a question of confidence.

In the absence of Premier Tardieu, who is suffering from the grippe, Minister of Finance Cheron stubbornly fought efforts of the opposition to lower the tax on improved real estate. Eventually he posed a question of confidence.

The government was sustained 290 votes to 270, the smallest majority it had ever received.

This vote was the culmination of bitter attacks by the opposition against Cheron throughout last week when the government's situation appeared so precarious that Premier Tardieu returned from London a day earlier than he had planned.

VARE WON'T QUIT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—A special dispatch from a staff correspondent of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin quotes William S. Vare, Philadelphia Republican leader, as saying that he had not changed his mind about being a candidate for the United States Senate against Senator Joseph R. Grundy.

Mr. Vare is said to have made this statement after a three-hour visit yesterday by James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Philadelphia Republican City Committee, and State Senator Samuel W. Salus, representatives of the so-called "war board" of the Philadelphia Republican organization.

The dispatch said that Hazlett and Salus did all the talking and Vare all the listening. Further conferences will be held.

Efforts have been made in some quarters to have Vare withdraw as a candidate for senator and concentrate his forces on a candidate from Philadelphia for governor.

AUTOIST FREED IN DEATH

A directed verdict of acquittal for Albert H. High, 24, of 341 Spring Garden road, Reserve township, charged with involuntary manslaughter, was ordered in Criminal Court today by Judge James H. Gray.

Evidence which failed to show negligence on the part of High in connection with the death of William Syka, 9, of 2903 Spring Garden avenue, on November 5 last, when the latter was struck by High's automobile near his home, resulted in the directed verdict, according to prosecution counsel.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure area that produced the low temperatures over this section is now centered over the North Atlantic ocean and is causing low temperatures over that section this morning. The barometer is falling everywhere over the Ohio Valley states, the lake region and the upper Mississippi valley and is causing cloudy weather throughout that section and light snow. The center of the disturbance is in the far Northwest over Alberta. There was a marked rise in temperature over all the states from the Plains states eastward and mild weather prevails over the far Northwest. Mild winter temperatures will prevail over this section for several days.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 2.5 feet; Lock No. 7, 12.0; Pittsburgh, 12.3; Dam No. 4, 6.0; Dam No. 5, 9.5; Dam No. 9, 10.7, and Dam No. 12, 8.5. The dams are down.

ASK RECEIVER FOR LAW BLDG.

A group of bondholders today asked that receivers be appointed for the Law and Finance Building, 24-story office structure at Fourth avenue and Cherry way.

Waste by officials in allowing taxes to accumulate was charged by the bondholders' group, which also stated the company is insolvent.

Those named as defendants in the petition are the Law and Finance Building Corp., F. H. Smith Company, whose officers are under indictment in Washington on charges of using the mails to defraud; Beverly Building Company, Columbia Trustee and Registrar Company, Southern Maryland Trust Company, Samuel J. Henry and Daniel R. Crissinger, former comptroller of currency under the late President Harding.

JAIL REMOVAL IS INDORSED

The skyscraper jail has no recommendations for any purpose other than the detention of untried prisoners, according to K. D. Megruder, executive secretary of the western branch, Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs.

The assertion was contained in a statement favoring the abolition of the county jail in favor of a civic center, as proposed by retail merchants, Chamber of Commerce and other organizations.

The penal affairs committee favors farms for tried prisoners, as suggested at Parkview, with special buildings where the different types of prisoners may be segregated and trained for useful lives when they regain liberty.

EDISON HOLDS FAME MEANS NOTHING

'Playing Game and Working At What I Like,' Inventor Says of Rubber Search

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 17.—"Fame doesn't mean much to me."

Thomas A. Edison, inventor of the electric light, the phonograph, the motion picture camera and numerous other devices of incalculable benefit to mankind, smilingly made this assertion today in his laboratory where he interrupted a 14-hour workday to grant the writer an exclusive interview.

The gray-haired genius revealed that he expects it will require "from six to eight years" for him to complete his present scientific experiment—the production of a rubber plant adaptable to the United States that would give this country an unlimited supply of rubber in the event of war. This means that Edison, who is now 83, figures on giving his next invention to the world at 90.

"PLAYING A GAME"

Asked his reaction to fame, he replied:

"No, it does not mean much to me. What I am doing is playing a game. I am working away at what I like and what I believe I am adapted for. It's all a game when you analyze it."

"How are your rubber experiments progressing?" he was asked.

"Coming all right," he replied tersely.

"Are you devoting all your mind to the rubber experiments?"

"Nothing else. I always concentrate," he answered with a smile. "This rubber research work is an enormous, but very interesting problem. It is very complex. I am dealing with a plant whose characteristics are allimar to that of a man, and you know how man's characteristics vary."

14,000 SPECIMENS

"We have collected approximately 14,000 different plants," said Mr. Edison. "I tested all of them and of the 14,000 a little over 1,200 have rubber.

"I'm trying to find the best rubber plant. Then I'll breed it, a la Burbank, to a plant of a higher per cent of rubber. In Napoleon's day sugar beets gave forth but 5 per cent sugar, but today sugar beets give 28 per cent. The beets have been bred up so as to give the maximum sugar possible."

Today

the outside world would be, if we had 1,000 airships able to visit, bomb and gas their capital cities, and an adequate fleet of submarines to look after hostile shipping?

After a few non-stop flights are made across the Atlantic and Pacific, in our direction, our government may realize that it has duties more important than carrying out the orders of Great Britain.

OUR delegation to London will cost the people enough to build several good airships, with its long list of upstanding, high spirited Americans, and its charming horde of stenographer ladies, "with fur coats and sheer silk stockings that amazed the Britons, overawed by our prosperity."

But there is some comfort. The King, if well enough, will give a state dinner at Buckingham Palace. And all the delegates will eat with the King and get a smile.

THAT should fill with honest pride four or five million Americans out of work. It will be the first royal state dinner for Americans since Woodrow Wilson not only ate, but slept in Buckingham Palace, being met at the railroad station by the entire royal family.

Five billions lent in war called forth that honor.

THEIR MOTHER SHOT

BETTY MOSS, 4 MRS. CHARLES RUSSI HARRIET MOSS, 2

Mrs. Russi, mother of Mrs. Esther Younkovitz, 20, with Mrs. Younkovitz' two children by a former marriage. Their mother and her hosts are in a hospital and police seek their stepfather, Enoch Younkovitz, 24, for the shooting at Cuddy, near Bridgeville.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN A. BOWENS, BOTH SHOT

Bowens, 45, and Mrs. Bowens, 23, both shot when Mrs. Younkovitz was shot during a party at the Bowens' home.

3 SHOT, POLICE HUNT HUSBAND

Police throughout the tri-state district today were searching for Enoch Younkovitz, 24, of House 129, National No. 2 Mine, Cuddy, near Bridgeville, who police charge yesterday shot his wife, Esther, 20, and John A. Bowens, 45, and the latter's wife, 23, in the Bowens home on Campbell street, Cuddy.

Younkovitz, according to police, disappeared after the shooting and a short time later turned up in Oakdale, where he met Clark Sutton and asked him to drive him to Treveskyn.

A short distance out of Oakdale they saw two policemen and Younkovitz asked Sutton to drive back of a nearby church until the policemen passed, it is said. In the rear of the church, Sutton said his passenger drew a revolver and forced him to exchange clothing with him.

Younkovitz then ejected him from the car and drove away, Sutton said.

Police said the shooting followed an all-night party in the Bowens home, attended by Bowens and his wife, Mrs. Younkovitz and three unidentified men. Younkovitz, they said, went to the house shortly after 8 a. m., and meeting his wife in the kitchen, shot her. He then walked out upon the rear porch, turned and fired through the open door, hitting Bowens and his wife, police say.

The injured were brought to St. Francis Hospital, where their condition was said to be serious.

Mrs. Younkovitz, who was married before, is the mother of two children, Betty, 4, and Harriet, 2.

Judge Asks Respite For Man in Killing

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., in the Court of General Sessions today requested Gov. Roosevelt to grant an additional respite to Frederick W. Edel at Sing Sing prison awaiting execution this week for the murder of Mrs. Emmeline O. Harrington, actress, December 23, 1927. Edel was scheduled to die this week. Judge Nott said that he would not be ready for another week to render his decision on the motion for a new trial made by Edel's counsel on the ground of new evidence.

CANADA SENATE GETS WOMAN

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Canada's first woman senator will be Mrs. Norman Wilson, of Ottawa, mother of eight children.

Appointed by Premier Mackenzie King, she will be sworn in when Parliament opens Friday. She will be known as the Hon. Carine Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson probably will be introduced to the Senate and given the oath of office after the governor general has read the speech from the throne, the usual practice. Senator Dandurand, of Ottawa, government leader, will escort her into the upper chamber and will introduce her to Speaker Hewitt Bostock.

The appointment of Mrs. Wilson ends a long fight by women for a representative in the national Parliament.

Dinner At Pitt On Founders' Day

Invitations to the second annual banquet tendered by the University board of trustees at Pitt are now being sent out by the committee in charge. The banquet will be held on Founders' Day, February 28, and will mark the one hundred and forty-third anniversary of the university.

INQUIRY ROW SPLITS DRYS IN SENATE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Developments in the prohibition controversy today were:

1—Drys of the Senate Judiciary Committee were disrupted over counter-proposals for searching inquiries into enforcement conditions.

2—The dry bureau announced it had begun a survey of enforcement on its own account.

3—A favorable report to the House of the "juryless dry trial" plan was forecast.

4—A review of the entire liquor and crime situation in Chicago was promised as part of the House Judiciary Committee hearings on dry repeal measures.

WHEELER, NORRIS AT ODDS

With one inquiry already sponsored by Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, a dry, a counter-plan was proposed by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, another dry. The Norris inquiry would be just as broad as the Wheeler plan, but it lacked the latter's condemnation of present enforcement conditions.

Both plans were disclosed by the Judiciary Committee without a decision being reached.

"There was a lot of talk," said Norris, "but no action. Everybody had an idea as to how we should investigate this subject, but no two of us agreed. Party lines were disregarded."

The Norris resolution would authorize an inquiry "for the purpose of enabling the Senate to effectively legislate upon the proper enforcement of prohibition laws." The Wheeler resolution would direct an inquiry to learn whether there is corruption or inefficiency in the prohibition bureau; whether the dry law can be enforced, and whether more liquor is being sold today than before the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted.

U. S. SURVEY BEGUN

The dry bureau's survey, announced by Commissioner James M. Doran, will go into every phase of enforcement from the character of municipal and state laws to actual observation by the rank and file of the population.

Palmer Canfield, former administrator at Albany, N. Y., a legal expert, has the research in charge and is studying the records in all states.

It was Representative Christopherson (Rep.), of South Dakota, who predicted that his bill to give United States commissioners the power to try minor prohibition cases would be approved by a House Judiciary Sub-Committee. The measures have the approval of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission.

Representative Sabath (Dem.), of Chicago, is rounding up witnesses to bring the whole Chicago situation into the dry repeal hearings, which are to be resumed Wednesday.

Sabath said he would invite Chief of Police Russell, Assistant Chief Stege and ex-Chief Morris to testify. There are in addition to Silas Strawn, State's Attorney Swanson and Robert I. Randolph.

Labor Leaders Held In Ortiz Rubio Plot

TAMPICO, Mexico, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Fifteen persons, among them prominet labor leaders, were arrested here over the weekend and sent under heavy guard to Mexico City in connection with the shooting of President Ortiz Rubio on his inauguration day.

The General Workers' Federation here telegraphed President Ortiz Rubio and Joaquin Amaro, minister of war, asking release of the detained men and threatening that if their plea was not granted they would meet Wednesday and arrange for a general strike of Tampico workers and a public demonstration.

New Cancer Remedy Given Woman Flown to Clinic

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Dr. W. B. Coffey, co-discoverer with Dr. John D. Humber, of the glandular extract treatment for cancer, administered a first treatment to Mrs. Irving Edwins, at St. Mary's Hospital, according to statements made here.

Mrs. Edwins, whose husband mortgaged his Washington ranch, chartered an airplane and raced his stricken wife 1,000 miles to San Francisco, was moved to the hospital from St. Francis Hotel yesterday.

Dr. Coffey withheld hope in the case of Mrs. Edwins.

"It was a mistake to bring her here," he said.

Reiterating announcements that he and Dr. Humber already have all the cancer patients needed for further experimentation, Dr. Coffey pleaded that no more request treatment at this time.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—Injections of the new glandular extract which apparently cures cancer by dissolution were given to 157 persons, many of whom would heretofore have been considered hopeless cases, by the discoverers, Dr. Walter Coffey and Dr. John D. Humber.

Of the 104 persons treated at the Coffey-Humber clinic, 62 had undergone previous injections. In every instance they told the physicians the pain had either lessened or vanished. Fifty-three cancer victims confined in hospitals were treated.

Son of Former Follies Girl Secretly Wed

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL.
Universal Service Special Cable.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The romantic courtship and secret marriage of a young American couple, prominent in fashionable circles here, was revealed when it was learned that Gerard Richardson, son of Edna McClure, former Follies beauty, and Ridie Leclair, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Pope Leclair, wife of the naval attache, are honeymooning at Montpellier.

The marriage of the 18-year-old couple was performed on February 3 at Barbazon, Haute Garonne. It was performed secretly and in the face of protests on the part of the bridegroom's mother, now wife of Ernest Plissen, one of the richest men in France. Mme. Plissen wanted young Richardson to finish his course at the Beaux Arts before entering into matrimony.

The Plissens are prominent in society at Saint-Jean-De-Luz, a seaside resort. It was here that the romance had its inception. The bridegroom's mother said tonight:

"The romance began on the beach last summer, reaching serious proportions before I could stop it. As a result, the boy's career has been halted before it was begun. Young Americans have too much freedom; much more than we ever had in the old days on Broadway."

Edda, Soon to Wed, Lone Intimate of Mussolini

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI.
Universal Service.

ROME, Feb. 17.—With the announcement that Edda Mussolini is to marry Galleazzo Ciano, Romans are wondering whether the young girl's father, square-jawed Premier Benito Mussolini, does not face the prospect of his daughter's wedding with just a twinge of regret.

For it is to his 19-year-old daughter that the taciturn dictator has most often turned in the few moments of leisure that he can snatch from affairs of state for that friendly communion of spirit that two persons of kindred natures and like interests can find.

It is a little-known fact, and a strange fact—in view of the basic materialism that associates itself with Mussolini—that Il Duce has somewhat of a passion for the violin and is an accomplished performer on that stringed instrument.

It is in their mutual fondness for the violin that Edda and her father have, perhaps, found their strongest common meeting ground.

Mussolini has never allowed even his most intimate friends to hear him when he plays the violin. The instrument is his one solace when he is depressed and overburdened with matters of moment.

It is recalled that Mussolini, when he was a young man, got into trouble with the police authorities in Switzerland and was put in jail because he was unemployed. During the long weeks that he was there he studied a great deal, among other things learning the French language, from the teaching of which he was later to earn his living. Perhaps it was at that time, too, that he gained his mastery over the violin.

EIELSON'S FLIGHT COMPANION, BORLAND, IS FOUND DEAD

SEARCH GOES ON FOR 2ND VICTIM

Body Buried Under Five Feet Of Snow 100 Feet From Plane, Wireless Reports

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The fate of Carl Ben Eielson, noted Arctic flier, and Earl Borland, his companion, was definitely established today with the receipt of radio advices telling of the finding of Borland's body buried in the snow at the spot near North Cape where their plane crashed November 9.

Recovery of Borland's body removed any doubts that the men had perished although death of the fliers had been accepted as a certainty following the finding of the scattered wreckage of the plane.

IN DEEP SNOW

Advices relayed from Pilot Harold Gillam who had been at the scene of the wreckage said Borland's body was located last Thursday under five feet of snow. It lay near the engine which had been hurled 100 feet from the wrecked ship.

Indications were that Borland was killed when the plane struck the tundra and searchers said Eielson also must have been killed outright.

HUNTING EIELSON

Borland's body was removed to the camp of tents and snow houses maintained by the 19 men conducting the search, and will be sent tomorrow to the icebound motor ship Nanuk at North Cape.

The hunt for Eielson's body was resumed today after an interruption of three days due to storms.

It was while flying to the Nanuk to transport passengers and furs to Nome that the plane crashed.

COOK COUNTY SCRIP PAY SCORED

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The county went ahead today with its plans to pay off some 4,000 employes with scrip.

Protests to this plan poured in from heads of State street department stores, the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' Associations, and Silas H. Strawn, head of the Citizens' Relief Committee.

Their contention is that the issuance of scrip would irreparably damage Chicago's municipal credit.

"ALL WE CAN DO"

"This is our payroll," replied Harry Newby, chairman of the County Board Finance Committee. "It is all we can do under the law. If the employes won't take the script, we can't force them to, but we will go ahead with the issue."

Action of the county board followed an ultimatum issued a week ago to the Strawn committee that unless financial aid was forthcoming immediately, scrip would be issued.

Even if employes accepted the scrip, their rent problems remained. With many real estate agents saying they would be guided by the actions of the Bankers Association, a meeting has been called of the Chicago Real Estate Board to discuss accepting the scrip in payment for rent.

SEES CREDIT BLOW

James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., said the "merchants should not be called upon to usurp the function of bankers." If the county carries out its intention to issue scrip, he said, "such action would positively destroy for many years the credit of the city."

The payroll calls for $350,000 worth of scrip, in payment of salaries of the last half of December.

KLINE SCORED IN CAB RIOTS

"The taxicab strike has become a public nuisance," Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, said in a sermon last night.

"Mayor Kline seems to have done nothing to end it, except to give the public a large number of inexperienced policemen, who are not suppressing violence, which is an insult to public decency and a disgrace to our city," he continued.

"The violence appears to be caused, not primarily by strikers, but by hoodlums and gangsters. The underworld seems to feel that the Kline administration is not going to be severe with it. The cab company and strikers are equally responsible if they refuse to sit in peaceable conference and adjust their differences. The newspapers have rightly called upon the Mayor to promote a settlement. The churches are under obligations to join with the press in demanding that the fighting parties arbitrate and rid our streets of this disgraceful warfare."

Al Smith Speaker At Bankers' Meeting

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, will be the only speaker at the nineteenth annual banquet of trust companies of the United States, to be held here February 20, in conjunction with the mid-winter conference of the trust company division of the American Bankers' Association, it was announced today.

Roy A. Young, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, Washington, and 20 of the nation's leading bankers, will be guests of honor.

PRIEST BLAMES TAXI FIRMS

The Rev. Dr. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, and friend and counsellor of the striking taxicab drivers, presented their side of the controversy today in an address to the Methodist Episcopal Ministers' Association. The audience was sympathetic and applauded many of the things he said.

Father Cox said the men's principal demand was for the closed shop. The pay demand of 40 per cent was of minor importance, he stated, and might be adjusted, but there was no hope, so far as a majority of the strikers was concerned, of their returning to work unless the company recognized the union.

Defending the principle of the closed shop, Father Cox called attention to the recognition of labor unions by the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the steam railroads.

He contended that it was not the strikers but the company that broke faith at the time the supposed settlement collapsed.

Father Cox said a man recently called on the strikers and told them he was negotiating for the purchase of the taxicab companies and would like to sign a contract with the union. Later, he said, he would have to make a secret agreement to recognize the union in four months. He could not do so now, he stated, as reported by Father Cox, because of objections raised by bankers financing the deal. The men would not assent.

Father Cox said taxicab driving was a kind of "racket," catering to commercial vice, and that one reason why the men were so eager for establishment of the union was that they hoped through the closed shop to place their occupation on a higher plane.

Fired by City, Finds Son In Crash First Day On New Police Job

John C. Pfeuffer, ex-city patrolman, still has troubles.

He lost his job in the recent police shakeup and got another job today. It was his first day as private policeman at the Terminal warehouse, Carson street, where he had been assigned to traffic duty.

When two automobiles collided in Carson street he peered into a sedan at the senseless form of the driver.

It was his son, Herbert A. Pfeuffer, 25, of 1325 Berkshire avenue, Brookline. The father hailed a passing machine and sent his son to the hospital.

South Side police, arriving on the scene a few minutes later, arrested Joseph Butchley, 2535 Mission street, on a charge of reckless driving. He was operating a truck which struck Pfeuffer's car, knocking it into another machine parked at the curb. A reckless driving charge was to be placed against Pfeuffer also.

New Broadway Show 'Angel' Makes Bow

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—An "angel" for Broadway appeared in a new guise today, with formation of an investment trust for the financing of theatrical ventures. Stock of the concern, offered as a "speculation" will be sold and "scientific financial management" applied to productions financed by the new concern, it was announced.

Lately three church bells were stolen here and police are making a frantic search for these "church bell pilferers."

PARLEY SPEEDS TAXI PEACE

passed between the opposing groups, but no blows were struck.

STRIKER ACCUSED

James Wilson, of 271 Swope street, a striking driver, was charged with assault and battery and with aggravated assault and battery, respectively, by William E. Chahoe, of Natrona Heights, and Louis Ramaley, of Brackenridge, in connection with outbreaks of violence in East Liberty Wednesday. Ramaley charged Wilson struck him on the mouth with a hair brush while seated in his cab.

Green cabs appeared on street parking stands downtown today for the first time since the strike started five weeks ago yesterday.

TAXI OFFICE STONED

Vandals early today staged a raid upon the dispatcher's office of the Checker Cab Company, Gazette Square, breaking windows and doors with rocks. Several large stones were hurled into the one-story brick office, police at Central Station reported. The raiders escaped.

An attempt was made to break into the "soup kitchen" of the striking drivers at 1011 Liberty avenue, early today, but the vandals were frightened away, police say. Both acts of violence occurred as the strike entered upon its sixth week after a lull in rioting over the week-end.

Police riot squads were out in full force again today and heavily guarded cabs were being operated downtown and in East Liberty and Oakland.

Only minor disorders attended the operation of cabs yesterday. No one was injured. Green and Yellow Cab companies reported operation of the greatest number of cabs since the walkout began.

In the East Liberty district, police reported someone had thrown a piece of pipe at a cab in the Pennsylvania Railroad station driveway where the majority of cabs were sent in view of the police order to keep the machines away from cab stands in the principal streets.

BRICK HURLED INTO HOUSE

Early yesterday a brick was thrown through the window of the home of Phillip Azzaro, 6406 Winslow street, from a passing auto. Another brick was thrown through a restaurant at 6373 Frankstown avenue, operated by Azzaro's brother, James.

Only one arrest was recorded. Frank Pittassi, of Mt. Vernon street, was taken into custody when police say he failed to obey orders against loitering.

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, was scheduled to address Methodist Episcopal ministers in the Methodist Building today on the taxicab strike. Father Cox has operated a relief station for the strikers since the early part of the strike and on several occasions has met with the men and discussed their problems with them.

SHOW-CLOSING BABY ARRIVES

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—The far-famed "act-of-God" baby was recorded among New York's latest arrivals today, for a daughter was born Sunday to Helen Hayes, stage star, wife of Charles MacArthur, youthful playwright.

When Miss Hayes was starring in "Coquette" she withdrew from the cast to await motherhood. Jed Harris closed the show, and the Actors' Equity Association brought suit to compel him to pay the company two weeks' notice.

Harris countered by declaring the star's condition was an "act of God," and that he was entitled to special dispensation, but an arbitration board ruled to the contrary.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—Francis Wible, 10, son of Fred Wible of South Brownsville, dropped dead while playing. Death was attributed to leakage of the heart.

POLICE QUELL RED RIOT

HAMMOND, Ind., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Police reserves were called to the headquarters of the Young People's Communist League today after several youths attacked Detective Sergt. Edward Warner and sought to eject him from a hall in which they were holding a meeting.

Made Kolin, 18, Irie Thompson, 21, Paul Bucha, 16, and Ernest Garner, were held on a carge of rioting.

"ACT OF GOD" ARRIVES

HELEN HAYES

Miss Hayes, stage star and wife of Charles MacArthur, youthful playwright, whose far-famed "Act of God" baby, an eight-pound girl, has arrived. Mrs. Hayes withdrew from "Coquette's" cast to await motherhood and the producer, fighting action to compel him to pay salaries, cited the reason as "an act of God."

ALL SAVED ON GROUNDED SHIP

FORT CANBY, Wash., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—With removal of another boatload of passengers from the Admiral Benson at 9:05 a. m. today, it was believed that all passengers had been taken from the Pacific Steamship Company's coastal liner aground off the mouth of the Columbia River. The ship went aground Saturday night.

Shore fog prevented Coast Guardsmen from making an actual count of those in the life boats, but it was believed it carried five persons, in addition to the lifeboat's crew, which would account for all the passengers. The 65 members of the Benson's crew were still on the steamer.

The rescuers were instructed to remove the passengers to another boat off the mouth of the Columbia, to be taken to Astoria.

The Benson was resting solidly in a cradle of sand from which seamen declared it will take an enormous force to move her. The ship had a list of about seven degrees, unchanged from the position she assumed upon settling after grounding Saturday night.

Approach of a storm was heralded by posting of southeast storm warnings from Marshfield to Tatoosh Island.

'Blackjack' Found In Prisoner's Cell

Marshall Urged for U. S. Solicitor's Job

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—James Marshall, son of the late Louis Marshall, noted lawyer, has been recommended for appointment by President Hoover as solicitor general of the United States to succeed Charles E. Hughes, Jr., it was learned today. Marshall is 34 years of age and a graduate of Columbia.

Cuban Ambassador Feted at Luncheon

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban ambassador to the United States, will be feted at a banker's club luncheon today by the Cuban Chamber of Commerce in the United States. More than 200 persons, representing financial and commercial institutions, will attend.

U. S. AIDS WAR ON GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The federal government has been called into the Chicago crime situation to afford police a new weapon for ridding the city of its bad men.

Immigration officers yesterday attended the police showup for the first time, scanning the parade of suspects to see if there were any subject to deportation. An investigation into the records of 20 men "a" a result.

The week-end crusade resulted in 1,124 arrests, a record number bringing the total since the drive started nine days ago to nearly 5,000.

Only a small percentage of the total number arrested have been held, but all have been put through the Bureau of Identification. Police found that 285 of those arrested over the week-end were men with records.

Three Men Killed on Greenville Crossing

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—Three young men were killed early Sunday when their automobile was hit by an Erie train at a crossing here. Orrin Reagle, 20; Richard Smith, 21, and Edward Weber, 23, were the victims. Smith was driving the men home from a dance. His view of the crossing was obscured by the frost covered windshield of the machine. The car was carried 30 feet down the tracks.

Crafty Egyptian Ruler's False Tomb Revealed

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—How an Egyptian ruler of 5,000 years ago craftily designed his huge tomb so that any person who sought to find his mummy would be misled into exploring an empty tunnel, was told in a report of the University of Pennsylvania Museum from its expedition at Meydum.

The expedition has been engaged recently in clearing away the face of a tomb known as a Mastabah. While this work was going on, the report of Alan Rowe, expedition director, states, the ruler's hoax was discovered.

"Deliberate cut had been made in the face of the tomb and the bricks had been so arranged as to form a stairway descending from the upper part of the outside of the tomb to the bottom of a stone core on the inside of the wall," Rowe reported.

"When the stairway reached the inner face of the wall, there was a drop of more than six feet, and beyond this was the opening of a tunnel in the rock which was carefully blocked with a brick wall about 15 feet from the entrance. After this obstruction the tunnel ran on for a distance of about 12 feet and then stopped.

"At no place is the tunnel higher than a crouching man and it is clear that the object of the stairway and tunnel was to mislead intending tomb robbers as to the true position of the actual burial chambers in the Mastabah."

WILKINS DEFIES SQUALLS, FLIES FAR SOUTH

Limitless Sea of Broken Ice Viewed Where Charts Show Land; Radio Silent

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

DECEPTION ISLAND—(Antarctica)—Jan. 17.—(Via S. S. Melville—KUP, San Francisco Exam. Cr. Wireless Station.)—The outskirts of the great Antarctic continent are shrinking.

Observations made on our outherly flights from the S. S. William Scoresby during the three and one-half weeks we spent in the vast area to the south of Deception Island complete the main objective of our sweltering our coastal discoveries.

Although hampered by the cold, the snow squalls and almost impossible flying conditions, we succeeded in penetrating as far south as Latitude 73 in Longitude 101.

From that point we could observe an apparently limitless sea of broken ice extending to the south and heaving restlessly to the swell of the sea.

And we were observing from a point far south of the "farthest limit" of the Antarctic continent as outlined on the charts.

DISCOVERIES VERIFIED

Our observations completely verified our discoveries 300 miles to the south and southwest of Charcot Land. In the entire three weeks we did not have a single good day for flying, but pushing through snow squalls and scudding under a low ceiling we found an ice strewn sea where land was thought to be.

Heavy seas and high southwest winds have hampered our work as well as the clouds. Despite the freezing cold and seas however the scientific work on the Scoresby by proceeded unhindered and much valuable data and specimens have been gathered.

We believe that the mountains in back of the S. S. Melville blanketed out the waves for it was impossible to communicate with the vessel or with the base station at Deception Island during our entire trip. Although our operator stuck to his key through day and night our signals were not heard.

We could not hear the stations in the region but outside stations came in strong especially KUP in San Francisco which was the most reliable of all.

CANNOT REACH BYRD

During our flights over the ice sea our radio worked well on the plane and we were in constant communication with the Scoresby, except for one hour on account of a broken connection. This was located and repaired before the end of the flight.

The return trip to Deception Island was one of the roughest in our experience. We were forced to run at half speed, wallowing in mountainous seas with our decks constantly awash.

The officers and crew, hardened by two and a half years in the Antarctic, handled the vessel so skillfully that our planes rode safely despite the high seas washing our decks.

Both planes and crew are safe aboard the steamer Henrik Ibsen. Thanks to the generous help of Sverre Nielsen, manager at Deception, and Capt. A. Svendsen of the Henrik Ibsen, we will be out to sea, bound for Montevideo, two hours after arriving at Deception on the Scoresby.

Our year's work is ended.

OPERA TO LOSE MATZENAUER

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Margaret Matzenauer, for 19 years a leading contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, announced that she will not return to the Metropolitan next season.

She appeared at the Metropolitan Wednesday for the last time, singing the role of Amneris in "Aida." At her own request she said the management made no announcement that it was her farewell performance.

Madame Matzenauer's decision not to accept a renewal of her contract with the Metropolitan Opera Company, read a statement given out by her attorney, "was due to her desire to have greater opportunity for her artistic activities in concert and oratorio and because of the fact of opportunity given by the Metropolitan organization to her to sing from her very large repertoire the roles which she has made famous both in Europe and in America."

Madame Matzenauer is the third of the Metropolitan's leading singers to leave the organization this year. The other two are Amelita Galli-Curci and Frances Alda.

She joined the company in November, 1911.

BANKER VICTIM OF BLACKMAIL

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Three men were to be arrested today on charges of blackmail in connection with the $200,000 shortage which precipitated the collapse of the People's State Bank of Maywood and the arrest of President Elmer D. Langguth and Miss Laverne D. Lendgren. The suspects collected huge sums from Langguth by threatening to expose his alleged association with Miss Lindgren, according to Patrick Roche, state's attorney's investigator.

It was announced that the grand jury will be asked to rush indictments against Langguth and Miss Lindgren, who are held on bonds of $100,000 and $10,000 respectively.

Authorities today were to search safety deposit vaults and the two apartments rented by Langguth presumably to carry on his affair with Miss Lindgren in their search for a cache of $100,000, which Langguth is believed to have set aside as a "safety fund."

The shortage in bank funds which resulted in the arrests of Langguth and his comely cashier is expected to reach $300,000, according to Roche.

Delving into Miss Lindgren's business success, investigators found that she had experienced a meteoric rise from stenographer to cashier under Langguth's guidance.

FIGHTING UNITS IN DISCARD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Two historic fighting units of the United States Army, the Third and Fifth regiments of the field artillery, will be discontinued "at the earliest practicable date" by Secretary of War Hurley.

The order which makes them inactive will be a part of a general reorganization of the field artillery, announced today by the War Department as caused by "the desire to get the greatest value per dollar."

In consequence the Third Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, must case regimental colors decorated with battle honors dating back to the War of 1812, while the Fifth, stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, must furl colors bearing streamers won at Manassas, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Lorraine, Picardy, Mondidier, Noyon, Alsne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne.

Andrus, Millionaire Straphanger, Now 89

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 17.—John E. Andrus, Yonkers multi-millionaire, started his eighty-ninth birthday by going for a brisk walk in the near-zero cold.

Later his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor, gave a birthday party for him. Andrus is known as the "millionaire straphanger." He said:

"I have so many birthdays I can't keep track of them. I feel well and my arm is firm. I hope to be 100 years old. Maybe then I will retire."

Minister Johnson To Visit Nanking

PEIPING, China, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Nelson T. Johnson, new American minister to China, will leave here Wednesday for Nanking to make the acquaintance of the Nanking government officials who did not greet him on his arrival here. The United States and other countries have kept their legations at Peiping instead of moving them to the seat of the new government, Nanking.

Telephone Saves 2 Overcome by Fumes

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Don de Clerico, and his wife were recovering today from inhaling gas fumes from a water heater, thanks to Miss Mary Jones, telephone operator, who sent a police ambulance to their home when de Clerico, just before losing consciousness, managed to knock the telephone receiver off its hook.

Arrange Funeral Of Dr. R. M. Pearce

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Funeral services were to be announced today for Dr. Richard Mills Pearce, general manager of medical education at the Rockefeller Foundation, who died last night. He was professor of research medicine at the University of Pennsylvania from 1910 to 1920.

Veteran Employe Of City Dismissed

Nathan Rosenberg, for several years an employe of the Department of Public Works and a veteran supervisor in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, has been dismissed, it was learned today. Rosenberg's dismissal was based on a charge of neglect of duty. Rosenberg lives in the Fifteenth Ward. His position pays $2,700 annually. Director Lang said many employes have been placed on part time basis in an effort to conserve funds.

Railroad Rebuilds Bridge Over Tracks

Replacing of the Alexander street foot bridge over the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad tracks in the West End, by a steel structure, was begun today by the company. Traffic will be cut off for about 10 days, officials said.

Artist Picks Californian As Ideal College Girl

Universal Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Out of 20,000 American college girls, the University of California has produced the ideal!

So Prof. Hamilton A. Wolf, artist, lecturer and traveler, announced in selecting Miss Claire Stoecke, of Berkeley, as the most beautiful college woman in the United States.

"For three years I have studied types of college beauty," explained Prof. Wolf, who is now lecturing on art for the extension division of the University of California.

"I was searching for a face that combined beauty and intelligence. The pretty doll face could not qualify.

"A truly beautiful modern girl must give the artistic impression of one alive to the affairs of the world and combine mental alertness with loveliness of feature."

Dog Missing Two Years Returns To Owner

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—Missing for two years, an airedale dog, owned by James H. Parker, retired Baltimore and Ohio passenger conductor, returned Saturday. Where it had been Parker has no inkling.

Once before the dog had been missing for two days. That time Parker learned it had been taken away in an automobile.

Grotto Street Pair Routed by Flames

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lloyd of 1355 Grotto street were forced from their home early today when fire was discovered between the walls of the building. They took shelter in the home of neighbors while firemen extinguished the blaze. The fire originated in the basement and spread upward between the walls to the roof. Battalion Chief Fred S. Beckett estimated the damage at $2,500.

PERILED, CHIEF SHOOTS MAN

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 17.—Rudolph Becker, 42, proprietor of a gasoline filling station in the Leechburg road, north of Arnold, is confined to the Citizens' General Hospital at New Kensington today, suffering a bullet wound in the left shoulder. He was shot, police say, when he resisted arrest and pointed a shotgun at Chief Fred Mathews of the Arnold force.

Chief Mathews had been called to Becker's home by neighbors who said Becker was chasing his wife and children with a razor and shotgun, police say. When Mathews entered Becker's home, the latter pointed the gun at him and the chief shot him in the shoulder, Mathews said.

The wounded man's condition is not serious, hospital attaches reported.

Plan $15,000,000 Drive to Scrap Unsafe Autos

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The "collegiate flivver" and other wheezing, palsied automobiles of venerable vintage are doomed to the scrap heap.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced that the industry would expend $15,000,000 this year in removing unsafe cars from the highways. The plan, endorsed by the chamber's board of directors, involves the scrapping of 400,000 machines in addition to the normal scrapping by the motor companies and proposes that the manufacturers provide a fund for removing permanently those automobiles that menace the safety of other highway users.

GENEVA TRADE PARLEY OPENS

GENEVA, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Representatives of 23 nations met in a conference here today in an attempt to stimulate trade by limiting tariff barriers.

The conference, which is mainly a European affair, follows a recommendation by the economic committee of the League of Nations that a basis be laid for possible future tariff reductions.

Although every nation in the world was invited, the only nation in the Western Hemisphere participating actively is Columbia. Several other Western countries, including the United States, are represented by observers. Every nation in Europe is participating with the exception of Soviet Russia which declined the invitation entirely.

EMILIE HAPGOOD DIES IN ROME

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Announcement was made here of the death in Rome, Italy, yesterday of Mrs. Emilie Bigelow Hapgood, one-time producer of modern drama classics in New York City and former wife of Norman Hapgood, editor and author.

The former Emilie Bigelow, a daughter of the late Anson Bigelow, Chicago banker, at one time occupied a prominent position in the theatrical world and once was president of the Stage Society. During the World War she founded and headed for a time the "Circle of War Relief for Negro Soldiers."

She and Norman Hapgood were married in Chicago, June 17, 1896. They were divorced in France in 1915. Two years later Hapgood married Elizabeth K. Reynolds, of New York.

A daughter, Mrs. Ruth King, who was with her mother in Rome, survives.

12 DIE AS COLD HITS EAST

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 17.—(INS.)—The winter's worst northeast gale, accompanied by swirling snow and biting zero weather today had resulted in 12 deaths in New England.

Two of the dead were fire victims in a blaze at Cambridge which destroyed a six-family frame tenement. A six-year-old girl was suffocated and her mother and sister were probably fatally burned.

Boston City Hospital reported several exposure cases, one of whom is feared may be fatal.

Cape Cod, lashed by the gale, was cut off by 10-foot snow drifts. A train on the Boston-Provincetown run became "lost" in the drifts but later was plowed out.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—With the temperature here at 7 above, snow removed today provided work for 8,662 unemployed men in addition to the regular force of 10,000. The lowest temperature in the East was 41 below, at Tupper Lake, near Saranac Lake, N. Y., with 30 below reported from several cities in Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

RUM RAID NETS 24 IN HOTEL

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Acting under orders of Director of Public Safety Schofield, 30 policemen swept into the Benjamin Franklin Hotel and without the formality of warrants arrested 11 women and 13 men on charges of illegal possession of liquor. Five of them were held for court today and the others discharged.

All but one of the women, it was said, were with their husbands in a suite on the fourth floor when the raiders appeared and hauled them away in four patrol wagons to a police station. The men arrested were members or friends of members of the Philadelphia Club of Printing House Craftsmen, an organization of printing house executives, which had celebrated an anniversary at the hotel.

Horace L. Wiggins, managing director of the hotel, charged that the raid was "illegal and unwarranted." He announced that he was prepared to offer legal or financial assistance to any of those taken in the raid.

SEVERAL HURT IN BANK BLAST

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The interior of the Mercantile Savings Bank Building in downtown Baltimore was damaged yesterday by an explosion of an accumulation of gas in the cellar. Five large windows on the ground floor were shattered, and bits of glass were hurled into the next block, cutting several persons, mostly firemen.

The blast also damaged a typewriting firm on the ground floor, an insurance office and apartment on the second floor, another insurance office on the third floor, and tore off elevator doors. Partitions throughout the building were knocked down.

The damage was estimated at $100,000 by officials of the bank, who said their records were not harmed and the institution would be reopened at once.

Hungarian Regent's Daughter to Wed

BUDAPEST, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Paulette Von Horthy, daughter of Nicholas Horthy De Nagybanya, regent of Hungary, is engaged to marry Count Julius Karolyi, nephew of Count Michael Karolyi, exiled former president of the country, it was announced today. Although closely related to the former president, Count Julius has never agreed with him politically, and hence remained high in the favor of the present government.

Teapot Dome Oil Drainage Denied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke said today that there was no drainage of oil from Teapot Dome by wells operating outside the government property. In a statement replying to an open letter written by A. J. Hazlett, editor of the Inland Oil Index, of Casper, Wyo., Jahncke cited a U. S. geological survey report to show there had been no drainage.

War Preparations On in North China

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Japanese semi-official reports state today that war preparations are proceeding throughout North China. The Shansi and other northern forces are said to have mobilized and to be moving southward against Chiang-Kai-Shek. It is reported that fighting occurred Saturday near Kweiteh on the Lunghai Railway.

HUNDREDS PAY TRIBUTE TO ARCHABBOT

Bishop Boyle, Other High Churchmen to Participate In Services at St. Vincent

The body of Archabbot Aurelius Stehle, O. S. B., today was carried from St. Vincent College, Beatty, Pa., to the archabbey church, where tomorrow morning funeral services will be conducted. Office of the dead will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and the solemn pontifical requiem mass will follow at 10 o'clock.

CLASSES DISMISSED

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Stehle archabbot of St. Vincent and founder and chancellor of the Catholic University of Peking, China, died Wednesday night at St. Francis Hospital after an illness of several weeks.

Hundreds of persons visited the archabbey yesterday to pay tribute to one of the most distinguished Catholic prelates in the world. All college classes were dismissed Saturday morning until after the funeral to make room for the scores of priests who came from out of town for the services.

BISHOP TO READ MASS

The Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese will celebrate the pontifical mass tomorrow morning. Other participants will be the Very Rev. Felix Rapp, O. S. B., diocesan assistant; the Rev. Callistus Sterle, O. S. B., brother of the Archabbot; the Rev. Leonard Stehle, O. S. B., assistant deacon; the Rev. Nepomucene Hruza, O. S. B., deacon of the mass; the Rev. Malachy Bawley, O. S. B., subdeacon; and the Rev. Otto Wenner, O. S. B., the Rev. Wolfgang Rapp, O. S. B., and Ven. Fr. Normbert Ruprecht, O. S. B., masters of ceremonies. The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Joseph Stehle, bishop of the Caroline Islands.

A large number of alumni of St. Vincent are expected to attend.

Officials of St. Vincent College today announced that the symphony concert which had been given by the college orchestra at Carnegie Music Hall here on Wednesday has been postponed indefinitely. A further announcement will be made after the Easter holidays, it was said.

APACHE CHIEF'S BODY MOVED

FORT SILL, Okla., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Tourists Army officers and enlisted men have looked upon an empty grave in the little Apache cemetery here for 21 years in the belief that it held the bones of Geronimo, notorious war chief of the Apaches. Sergt. Morris Swett, post librarian, revealed on the eve of the anniversary of the old warrior's death.

The terror of Arizona, New Mexico and the Sonora Mountains, died at the army post here a prisoner of war, February 17, 1909.

"The remains were removed secretly at night a short time after the funeral," Sergt. Swett said. "It is probable that no living soul save the remnants of a little band composed mostly of women, ever has known where they were taken and reburied.

"A relative of Geronimo has promised me that he may disclose the secret to me after the death of his aged mother, who now is more than 100 years old, but not until then."

Puffing Adder Called Non-Poisonous

DETROIT.—It is commonly believed that the small snake known as the puffing adder blows poisonous powder or spray from its mouth. Frequently reports are published that persons have been injured seriously by venemous spray spat into their faces by these serpents. The breath of the puffing adder, it is said, will kill a person at a distance of 25 feet. All this is fancy, pure and simple. The puffing adder is perfectly harmless. According to the United States biological survey, the snake's teeth are too short to inflict a wound even if it did strike a person.

Gangster Arraigned In Holdup Killings

DETROIT, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—John Sisuly, 26, the wounded Chicago gangster, who police say confessed a part in the two holdups of the main office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, pleaded not guilty today when arraigned in recorder's court on a homicide charge. He was accused of slaying Jess Catlin and John Scott, two special guards, last Thursday night. Raymond O'Laughlin, another Chicago gangster, was slain by the guards.

PLANE WRECK ONCE INDICTED, IS PUZZLE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The identity of an airplane, the hulk of which was found floating in the sea near Ensenada, Mexico, probably will be established soon.

C. W. Vawter, aeronautical inspector for the Department of Commerce, left here yesterday by automobile to view the wreckage and establish its identity. He declared there "was some mix-up in the numbers reported," but said the markings "sounded more like a United States Navy plane than anything else."

Navy officials at the North Island air base declared they had lost no planes in recent months of the type described in the reports from Mexico.

The wreckage was discovered February 8 off Todos Santos Bay and Mexicans said it bore the legend "Curtiss Airplane and Motors Company" and the identification "Contract 6651, Mar. 5-926, No. 16, F. C. C-3."

Navy planes carry contract numbers on a brass plate inside the cockpit. A Curtiss Hawk, piloted by Lieut. Parker, fell into the sea south of here a year ago after its propeller had been shot off during gunnery practice. The pilot parachuted to the water and was rescued, but the ship disappeared beneath the waves.

ALIENIST BACKS DOPE BILLS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Support for the anti-narcotic legislation introduced in Congress recently by Congressman Porter, of Pennsylvania, has been received from many sources in New York City.

Porter is sponsoring two bills one to create a separate bureau of narcotics under the Treasury Department and the other to license all physicians, druggists, manufacturers and others legally entitled to deal in narcotics.

Among those who see the proposed narcotic bureau as a material step forward in the nation's war on the drug evil is Dr. Siegfried S. Block, of Brooklyn, nationally known alienist and brain specialist, who has taken a keen interest in the anti-narcotic campaign. Dr. Block said:

"Next to scotching the drug evil at the source of production, I believe one of the greatest blows which can be struck at the trafficking in drugs will be the creation of the proposed bureau which will centralize federal control over narcotics. I believe that such a co-ordinated agency can go far toward halting the illicit importation of the outlawed drugs."

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Hope that one of the Porter narcotic bills may help reduce the amount of narcotics used to the exact needs of science and medicine was expressed by Coroner Bundesen of this city.

"For three decades there has been a steady increase in the number of drug addicts and the increase has been so rapid that it is causing great concern to those who have come in contact with its inevitable results—crime and murder," said Dr. Bundesen.

BAN ON PISTOLS STIRS MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The job President Ortiz Rubio has set for himself in "depistolizing" Mexico bids well to develop into a problem quite as intricate as that faced by the naval conference at London.

The Mexican president's program has much in common with that of the naval parley, contemplating not merely limitation of armament, but "actual reduction." He would limit to the army and the police the right to carry pistols and would reduce the present armament by exactly the number of pistols now strapped to the belts of civilians.

A superficial knowledge of Mexico is sufficient to give an understanding of the vast proportions of the president's project and the difficulties it presents.

Pistol toting has been common here for so long that it has come to be regarded by the average citizen as his inalienable right.

PROTEST LIFE TERM IN THEFT

Universal Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Signed petitions to Gov. Roosevelt to commute the sentence of Mrs. Ruth St. Claire, sent to prison for the rest of her natural life for shoplifting, continue to pour into the New York American. With the petitions came many expressions of protest against the inequalities of the Baumes laws under which Mrs. St. Claire was sentenced.

Three New York newspapers are adding their contribution against the Baumes laws.

The mayor of Syracuse, Rolland B. Marvin, heads the list of distinguished residents who were aroused by the unjust operation of the law, in interviews published in the Syracuse Journal. Others were Carleton B. Shaw, Jesse W. Kingsley, Assemblyman Richard Smith and Mrs. Horace Eastman.

N. Y. WILL PRAY IN RED PROTEST

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—In protest against religious persecution in Russia, Protestant churches of Greater New York will hold a joint service at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Sunday, March 16.

In announcing the meeting at services in the cathedral yesterday Bishop Manning invited people of all faiths to attend. The meeting will be held in conjunction with the Greater New York Federation of Churches.

Bishop Manning recalled that Pope Pius had urged all Christians to join him in prayer on March 19 for the cessation of Bolshevist persecutions and he asked all the clergy and people of the New York Episcopal diocese to pray on that date, in addition to attending the meeting March 16.

Chinese Counters Used by Romans

CHICAGO.—The abacus or bead frame, used for counting by the Chinese and Persians and developed as a gift of an instructive nature for children of the pre-kindergarten age, dates at least as far back as the time of the ancient Greeks and Romans.

Sportsmen Hurry Food to Game Preserves

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 17.—Members of nine Monongahela Valley field and hunting clubs have sent automobile loads of feed into Elk and Cameron counties, where their clubhouses are located, following messages from state foresters who reported suffering of game due to heavy snowfall. Ten members of the Donora Field Club left for their estate on Medix Run with quantities of grain.

The Charleroi Mountain Club dispatched four automobiles to their camp on Mix Run with instructions to distribute 1,000 pounds of cracked corn and wheat.

State foresters informed Les Kinder and P. H. Mollenauer, officials of the Charleroi Mountain Club, that quail and pheasants are dying by the hundreds and there is suffering by all wild life.

India Grows Most Of World's Teas

NEW YORK.—(INS.)—Of the world's tea production for a year—863,000,000 pounds, which is double that for 1900—India and Ceylon sent out approximately 630,000,000 pounds, or about 73 per cent, according to import figures just published.

Figuring very conservatively 200 cups of tea to the pound somebody drank 172,600,000,000 cups of it in 12 months, of which 126 billion cups were India tea. Britishers, as might be expected, drank the greater portion of this volume, the figures in round numbers being 424,000,000 pounds which was nearly six cup. of India tea daily for every man, woman and child in Great Britain.

'Mezuzah' Sacred Symbol of Jews

NEW YORK.—The scroll hung on the doorway of every orthodox home is called, in Hebrew, a "mezuzah." The observance of this custom is in fulfillment of the command in Deuteronomy, the fifth book of Moses, "And they shall be upon thy gates." The scroll contains these words in Hebrew. It is a symbol of a Jewish home and a reminder of loyalty to religion.

Infant, Believed Slain, Found in Bag

The body of a baby, born late last night, morgue officials believe, was found enclosed in a traveling bag this morning in front of 5201 Dresden way. Mrs. Michael Phalen, resident of that address, found it when she came to the doorway for the morning milk. Police were called and the body was turned over to morgue officials, who believe the child was slain.

Evans Vanities

At Three Unprecedented Prices

95c $1.95 $2.95

By a very fortunate circumstance, we were able to secure a number of these single, double and triple vanities (made by Evans, noted manufacturers of personal accessories) to sell at these unusual prices. Identical designs have been sold from our regular stock at very much higher prices . . . and were sought by those choosing unusual gifts.

Many styles are represented in each price group . . . some with finger rings, some with modernistic enamel designs, some with cloisonne enamel, some with an enameled design on the silver-finished case. Some have compact powder, sifter compartments, some have the lipstick attached by a chain, some contain rouge.

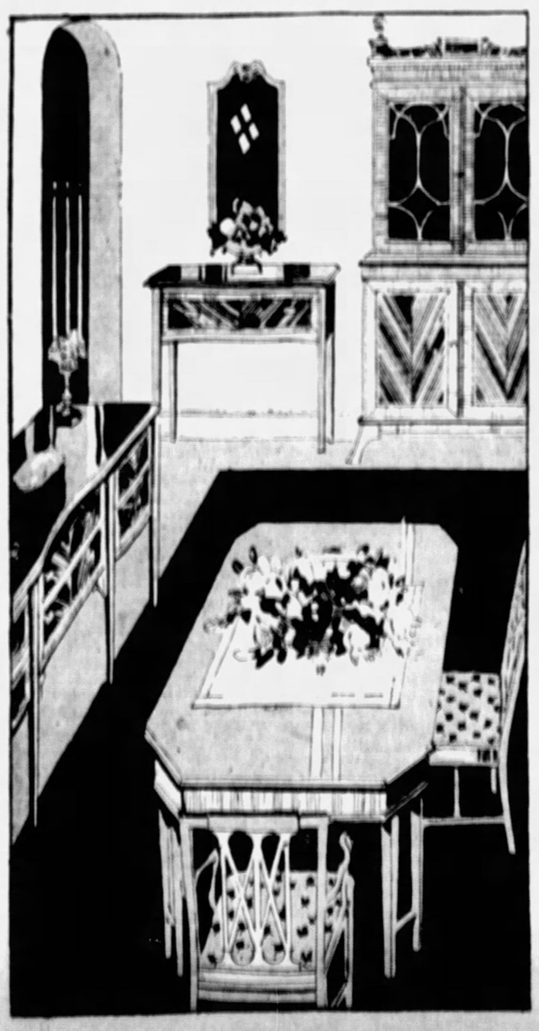
Dining Room Furniture

To own a dining room suite that reflects good taste and an appreciation of true quality is one of the requirements of the art of cultured living. That more than justifies an investment that will insure refinement of design, durability of materials and perfection of workmanship in the furniture you choose—the furniture about which your close friends will gather on those occasions when you entertain for dinner—the furniture with which you will "rub elbows" for many, many years.



In the February Furniture Sale—

10-Piece Dining Room Suite, $545

One glance at this suite pictured places it in the category of furniture which you will be proud to own. The grace, the simplicity, the beauty of its design—the superior quality of its materials (walnut or mahogany)—its rich satin finish—its figured fronts, banded with satinwood—its fine cabinet work—all stamp it as a suite fit for the most critical host and hostess.

Designed on Sheraton lines, a reproduction of a much higher priced suite, it is one of the best values in the February Sale. It consists of an 8-ft. extension table, a buffet with lined silver trays on each side, a console-type server, a spacious silver chest, one arm and five side chairs. 10 pieces, $545.

ADMITS KILLING WITH HAMMER

OLATHE, Kan., Feb. 17—(AP)—William Skelton, 55, a carpenter, confessed, county authorities said today, the hammer slaying of his neighbor, T. A. Sanders, 81, a retired shipowner, at his home in Leavenworth, Kan. Sanders, whose body was found Saturday night, had spent 40 years on the Great Lakes as a captain and owner of a vessel, his friends here said.

After being shown blood-stained clothing found in his house and a hammer which officers said was used to strike the fatal blow, Skelton told the officers he killed the retired shipowner to obtain money which he believed Sanders had hidden in the house, but that he was too frightened to search the house for money after striking Sanders.

Burns on the face of Sanders probably were caused by contact with a stove on which he fell after being struck, the investigators reported. The officers still are seeking an explanation of the cuts on the retired shipowner's face, apparently made with a sharp instrument. Skelton denied that he tortured Sanders in an effort to force him to reveal the location of his money.

MUSIC

Yost String Quartet

Schenley Ballroom

J. Fred Lissfelt

The Yost String Quartet gave its third concert in Schenley Ballroom yesterday afternoon, offering but two compositions, the clarinet quintet of Mozart, and a modern work, a quartet of Pizzetti.

Domenico Caputo, our best clarinetist, joined the quartet for the Mozart, as beautiful a work as can be found in the library of chamber music. It comes from the last years of this composer's life, the themes are cast in exquisite moulds and are as graceful as many of his vocal inventions. It is easy music for the audience.

Not so with the Pizzetti quartet. Here, too, is a mature work of a very clever mind. The four parts are composed with the care of solo writing, which enriches the scoring, and makes first hearing of the work extremely difficult. Different from most later Italian music, it is more clever than melodic, and it would be well to hear this quartet again, for much of it is bewildering at first hearing.

NICARAGUA O.K.'S CONCESSION

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 17 (AP)—President Moncada has approved a contract between the Ministry of Public Works and the Tonopah Mining Company of Nevada, U. S. A., granting the company a 25-year concession to exploit mineral deposits in public lands of the Prinzapolica department. This territory is situated near the eastern coast of Nicaragua.

The contract must be approved by Congress.

Local mining engineers say that the Tonopah company has secured the first copper mining properties concession in Central America.

The company has agreed to build a 50-mile railroad from its mines to the Caribbean sea and to work the copper deposits on a large scale.

EXTRA—A Special Purchase and Sale!

Boys' "Elastic Top and Knee" KNICKERS

Just in Time for Spring

Mothers know best and say these are the best. The elastic webbing on waist and knee is warranted to outlive the garment. (A new pair if it doesn't.) Knickers are tailored of better woolen fabrics in light, dark shades. All lined.

Seven Features of "Elastic Top and Knee" Knickers:

1—Eliminates the use of any belt at waist as the elastic webbing fits snug and holds the garment properly.

2—Requires no gutters or straps at knee as the elastic webbing grasps the legs accurately without binding and does more than hold the hose securely and gives that well-dressed appearance the boy requires at the leg.

3—Knickers will wear over or under the knee as the boy wishes.

4—No more shirt tails slipping out.

5—No more legs of knickers dropping down.

6—No buckles or straps tearing off.

7—No more wrinkled stockings.

Every Boy Will Want "Elastic Top and Knee"

WAFFLE IRON

Waffles were always a popular dish but now they are made doubly so with the aid of the new electric waffle iron. They're so easy to make by simply plugging-in to the nearest electric connection without even the bother of greasing. The electric-waffle iron quickly transforms those nourishing ingredients of eggs, milk, flour and butter into tempting, delicious waffles.

These well known makes of waffle irons are offered during this sale at the reduced price of $9.50 cash or on the unusually convenient terms of 95c down and 75c monthly added to your electric bill.

Dog Hero in Bandit Capture
A railway melodrama, with the Fast Mail roaring into the action just in time to frustrate a payroll robbery, will be the sketch. The hero of the story is a dog—Jamsary. The "flash back" technique employed by the "movies" to portray simultaneous action in two or three different places has been adapted in a startling way for this radio drama, and for the first time a radio presentation will carry simultaneous but widely separated and swiftly-moving actions, all easily distinguished from each other through sound effects and the natural casting of voices.
In quick succession the radio audience will be transported back and forth from the locomotive cab in which the Old Timer is riding, to the bank that is being robbed, and from the telegraph office where the heroine of the story is confronted with a choice between duty and love, to the courthouse through which the Fast Mail is rushing westward.

No Strength—No Energy
All Run Down and Pounds Underweight
This is what you need—this pleasant, safe, scientific, thoroughly reliable and beneficial treatment

A pleasant, easy way to get well and strong again now awaits you at any drugstore. Simply ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets. It seems too good to be true, yet it is a fact that after years of research and experiment McCoy's Laboratories, Inc., of New York City, have succeeded in doing what every cod liver oil user has longed for. They have perfected a method of extracting the wonderful health and growth vitamins from disagreeable, fishy tasting liquid cod liver oil and putting them—full volume and strength—into tablets without odor, taste or greasiness.

Rich in Sun-Health

Two McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets are equal to one teaspoonful of the pure vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made. Their only ingredient is genuine cod liver oil extract . . . no harmful or habit-forming drugs, no inert medicines, no temporary "pick-me-ups." Yet they are so rich in the "sunshine" vitamin D that taking them regularly every day is equal in health benefit to lying all day on a sun-flooded beach in your bathing suit. McCoy's Tablets also contain enough A vitamins to give you each day the vitamin-health-and-body-building value of more than four pounds of butter, 22 quarts of milk or nearly one dozen eggs.

Full of Growth Vitamins

To build up your strength and energy, and make yourself more fit for work and pleasure, start taking McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets today. And give them to your children to help growth, to correct or prevent rickets, to strengthen bones, harden teeth and build up resistance against disease. You do not have to miss the mid-day dose—easy to carry, easy to take.

You may rest assured that for any sick, anemic, rundown or underweight condition for which cod liver oil is known to be beneficial, it is just as safe, just as beneficial, and far more pleasant to take or give McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets instead. 60 tablets, 60 cents at any drugstore.

58 HELD AFTER RANKIN RAIDS

Caught in dragnets of Rankin borough police and State Police from the Greensburg barracks, 58 men and women were scheduled to receive hearings before Burgess Thomas Tierney, of Rankin, tonight and tomorrow night.

Lieut. John Rubbo and five borough patrolmen raided the Negro cabaret of Leander Pegral, 241 Second street, late Saturday. Pegral and 14 women and 22 men, all Negroes, were arrested and released on forfeits later. Hearings were set for tomorrow.

State police raided the Fourth Avenue Hotel, arresting Dominick Rishney, alleged proprietor; 14 men and six women as visitors. The men were released on forfeits, but the women were held pending hearings tonight. The place was raided a week ago by dry agents.

STUDENTS EARN 26 MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 — (Universal) — Is a college education a four years' loaf? Not according to a survey completed by the National Federation Association.

Their report just made public declares that college and university students earned $26,000,000 in 1927-1928.

Furthermore, the 763 colleges and universities which keep employment records estimate that 46 per cent of the men and 23 per cent of the women are earning part or all of their expenses.

Quick relief!

"I thought that chest cold would be with me all winter."

"Colds and coughs seem to like me—once I get them they certainly hang on. When I caught cold in November I thought I was in for it, alright.

"My daughter gave me some Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup which she used for her children . . . Well, sir I lost every sign and trace of that cold in three days. Now I've got my own bottle in my medicine chest all the time. I keep healthy—thanks to Smith Brothers." — N. Holbrook

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs so quickly because it has Triple Action: 1—it soothes, 2—is mildly laxative, 3—clears air passages.

GIRL, 10, GIVEN TO MOTHER

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. — Dolores McClellan has lived for 10 years, yet she is now living with her mother for the first time in her life.

Since her birth, the child has been under the care of her grandmother, Mrs. Josephine Petersen. When the child's mother demanded in court that her little daughter be returned to her, the grandmother capitulated.

But Judge Martin Isaacs ruled that Dolores stay with her mother for three months. At the end of that time the child is to have decided whether the treatment she receives is as kindly as that received from her grandmother. Then she will be permitted to stay.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 17 — Mrs. Jennie Ware, Negro, 70, was killed when run down by an automobile driven by Charles M. Jolly, of Taylorstown. Jolly took the woman to the Washington Hospital, but she died before reaching there. Jolly was released on his own recognizance for inquest.

Man, 80, Rescues Wife, Then Dies In Flames

HARVEY, Ill., Feb. 17. — (AP) — William Richardson, 80 years old and feeble, became a hero. Awakening to find his home being consumed by flames, he gathered up his invalid wife, Anna, 72, and carried her to safety.

Then he re-entered the blazing structure to secure a bag containing his few valuables. Fifteen minutes later, firemen found him dead on the bedroom floor.

Chicago Health Institution Lauds Amazing Flaxolyn Health Discovery

Dr. George Starr White (M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. A., London), author of "Health," "Youth," etc., says, "Flaxolyn helps bring sound sleep."

Many Liver, Kidney, Stomach Sufferers Here Now Have Keener Appetites; Enjoy Sound Restful Sleep; Intestinal Action Regular—Tells Formula of Flaxolyn.

Dr. Victor Hugo Lindlahr and his associates who founded the remarkable Lindlahr Sanitarium, has given to Dr. Lunta's Herbal Flaxolyn the highest possible approval, by recommending and endorsing it throughout their famous health organizations.

In the Lindlahr Magazine, "Radiant Health," the following statements by doctors have appeared, showing what Flaxolyn, which is nature's roots and herbs compounded with sun baked flaxseed, and such valuable medicaments as have the highest approval, has done in all sorts of cases.

High Blood Pressure!

Dr. Woodruff of Port Angeles, Wash.: "Flaxolyn successful as an aid in this condition."

Constipation!

Dr. B. Lust, editor of the "Nature Path": "Flaxolyn is natural and priceless in all digestive ills."

Nervousness!

Dr. L. McMillan, Chicago: "Flaxolyn has no equal or duplicate anywhere."

In addition to the above the London Health Centre, Dr. George Starr White, the famous Pacific Coast medical author, and other authorities have highly endorsed Dr. Lunta's Herbal Flaxolyn because

IT IS A TONIC-LAXATIVE.

Hundreds of other doctors who have used Flaxolyn in the treatment of such symptoms as dizzy spells, liver disorders, indigestion, headaches, belching, bloating, sleepless nights, have already written in praise of Herbal Flaxolyn. Dr. L. Dupre, Orange, Texas, says: "Every box that I have distributed has given the best of satisfaction."

Dr. J. M. Gardner, Idaho Falls, Idaho, states: "My patients demand Flaxolyn and are asking for more. They do not consider it as a medicine but as an herb tonic which, of course, it is, and a good one."

Since taking Flaxolyn hundreds of local folks no longer suffer from weakened, run-down condition—constant headaches—and, above all, poor appetite, muddy blood and sluggish bowels.

DOCTORS USE FLAXOLYN PERSONALLY

It CERTAINLY Must Bring Amazing Results

Dr. Horace Bond of Phila. says: "I am writing to express my gratitude for that which Flaxolyn has done for me. Suffered severe intestinal disorders for several years. My condition has steadily improved through Flaxolyn."

Dr. Mary Leavitt of Cleveland says: "I have used Flaxolyn myself and find it a great aid to normal functioning."

Don't wait. Start taking Flaxolyn today. Does not gripe, because it is a natural food. You will feel the tonic change at once. You will enjoy renewed vigor, a new grip on life.

The pleasant new Vitamonized Herbal

FLAXOLYN

Made after the open formula of Dr. Harris H. Lunta (M.D., D.O.) Your instinct tells you that the following herbs contained in liquid Flaxolyn, are good for you.

"THERE'S ONE THING that stands out above all others in making a girl really alluring," says Clara Bow, whose vivid beauty and personality have won her world-fame in motion pictures. It's lovely skin.

"You may have marvelously appealing eyes—and a lot of charm—and a beautiful figure.

"But just notice the way people cluster around a girl who has lovely skin! And any girl can have lovely skin if she takes good care of it!

"I got my first chance in the movies, partly, at least, because of what my father calls my 'baby-smooth' skin.

"You see, motion picture directors found out long ago that unless a girl has marvelous skin she can never make millions of hearts beat faster when she appears in a close-up. The incandescent lights reveal the tiniest flaw in the skin!

"That's why we motion picture actresses have to keep our skin at its very best every minute.

"Several years ago some of us began using Lux Toilet Soap, and were enthusiastic about it.

NANCY CARROLL

"So other screen stars began to use it—until it wasn't long before almost every important actress in Hollywood was using it. Janet Gaynor—Joan Crawford—Billie Dove—Bebe Daniels—Dorothy Mackaill.

"Take Nancy Carroll, for instance, one of Paramount's most fascinating girls. She keeps her fair skin delectable as an apple blossom with Lux Toilet Soap.

"And Mary Brian, too. Her skin is clear and smooth as a little girl's. Jean Arthur, too, keeps her skin lovely with Lux Toilet Soap.

MARY BRIAN

"In fact," Clara Bow goes on to say, "nearly every girl I know in Hollywood uses this soap. And aren't we glad that we have kept our skin in good condition—the talkies have even more close-ups than the silent pictures have!

"When I get letters from girls all over the country—so many of them saying nice things about my skin—I long to answer every one of them and tell these girls that they can keep their skin just as beautifully smooth as we screen stars do—by using Lux Toilet Soap."

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use it

There are now 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars. Of these, 511 use Lux Toilet Soap, both at home and in their studio dressing rooms. Indeed, as a result of their enthusiasm this fragrant white soap has been made official in all the great film studios in Hollywood.

KAY FRANCIS

If you aren't one of the millions of girls and women who are using this fine soap, made by just the same method as are the finest soaps of France, do try it. You will be delighted with its quick generous lather—even in the hardest water. And with the way it keeps your skin always charmingly fresh and smooth. Order several cakes—today.

She says: "Just notice the way people cluster around a girl who has lovely skin! . . . And beautifully smooth skin means even more to a screen star than to other women. Lux Toilet Soap is such a help in keeping the skin in perfect condition!"

MR. NEIL HAMILTON HAS BOAT SO HE STUDIES NAVIGATION AT UNIVERSITY

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 17.

NED SPARKS dashes a div bit of cynicism. "What's your definition of a star?" he was asked. "A star is a chap who takes credit for your good work in his picture," drawled Sparks.

For the past [illegible] weeks Neil Hamilton has been tutored by Capt. F[illegible] to catch[illegible] and navigate night [illegible] the U[illegible] of South[illegible] ifornia. Ne[illegible] caught up [illegible] an eve[illegible] a week [illegible] tends this U[illegible] C. class. Neil has a boat [illegible] the Digby. [illegible] too large to [illegible] a launch [illegible] too small to be a yacht. Name your own boat. It has an auxiliary motor, whatever that may be. Neil has a hankering for [illegible] sally spaces. But you can't make [illegible] mistakes in the watery deep and get away with any added [illegible]. Hell of the nautical [illegible] and navigation study.

Neil Hamilton

D'ja hear the one about the Scotchman who [illegible] a bottle of wood alcohol [illegible] and drowned?

More Hollywood Dogs Poisoned

A WEEK ago I say this column splashed [illegible] fleeting recent wholesale [illegible] cases in Laurel Canyon [illegible] middle of the week the L. Evening Herald [illegible] headlined [illegible] Hollywood [illegible] were [illegible] for the summer. That the Laurel Canyon [illegible] residents had pooled a reward to be given to the person who caught the poisoner and successfully prosecuted him. With customary modesty this department sleuth wonders if her story kicked up the small dust.

Colleen Moore

Colleen Moore's pet Aberdeen dog was poisoned this week. And died. Even Chicago lists a canine tragedy. Irene Castle McLaughlin's 90 dogs died in a kennel fire believed to have been started by an enemy. Let's act late for protection to dogs. Albert Payson Terhune is the bureau's suggestion for public relations director of the move.

Rumor. Romance. Rex Lease, youthful screen juvenile, Betty Pierce, ditto ingenue. The two met December 19, 1929, at the Vine Street Theater. It was the first rehearsal of "The Rear Car." A play, not a Pullman. Heart acrobatics [illegible] dates steady. Rex has been married. Next month he gets his final divorce papers. Wedding bells? Well, mebbe. . . .

Robert Milton Gets Fan Letter

ROBERT MILTON, W. K. stage and screen director, has seen his name in electric lights above New York theaters. Which is "earned" fame. But thrill fame waited until yesterday to come.

Bob received a fan letter. His first. From one who saw his recent directorial effort, "Behind the Makeup." And Bob was that delighted with the appreciate letter.

Apropos of Mr. Milton, years ago he and Doug Fairbanks were room-mates. This was before Doug or Bob reached stellar heights. In those days they dreamed happy dreams of success and lived frugally on a small sum a week. Then they went their separate ways, each vowing they'd never look up the other until their names were in electric lights. They kept the vow.

Time lapse.

Came an afternoon when Bob was swinging along the White Way. A yell, and Doug bounded toward him.

"I told you it would happen, Bob. I told you."

"You come with me," Bob chuckled, "and I'll show you something."

Dough did. Another theater. Electric lights—Robert Milton, Excelsior. Likewise happy days.

MINSTRELSY AND BEER MIXED

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Minstrel life of the days when Volstead was just another name in a Granite Falls (Minn.) telephone directory is on exhibition in The Grand Parade, the new talk and song picture in the Harris.

The production details the story of an actor who succeeds in vanquishing Old Man Barleycorn after many barroom bouts and who comes back to a glorious triumph on the minstrel stage. It also details the battle of two women for this same actor. One of these women is a gay blonde and the other is a plain little slavey. And of course, the little slavey wins out in the end, as is the usual case in fiction.

The picture has succeeded in catching an authentic atmosphere of the days of saloons and hansom cabs. The bartenders look real, the beer looks real and many of the characters look like they have a real thirst. Moreover, and of more importance, the picture has caught the spirit of minstrel days. And it reaches entertainment heights in sequences that present an oldtime minstrel show in action.

Fred Scott, from the concert stage, appears as the actor who comes back. He has a good tenor voice that he uses frequently in saloon and minstrel show episodes. And Helen Twelvetrees makes herself into a sacrificing and heroic slavey. Others of the cast, including numerous old-timers of the minstrel stage, are seen to good advantage.

Really "The Grand Parade" is just a new variation of the "Ten Nights in a Barroom" theme—a variation that is dressed up with music, song and black-faced minstrel men. But it does have some dramatic moments. And it does jog memory into a happy state.

Harris Chain Houses Pick Up Amos, Andy

Most of the theaters of the Harris chain in Pittsburgh and elsewhere, beginning today, will devote the Amos and Andy period on the radio, 7 until 7:15 o'clock, each evening solely to receiving the broadcast of those two popular radio artists as they describe their trouble with the Fresh Air Taxicab Company of America Incorporated. All neighborhood houses in the chain and the Palace downtown are to arrange their programs so that Amos and Andy will not be interfered with.

Perkasie Protests Sunday Closing Ordinance

PERKASIE, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Resolutions calling on the borough council to repeal the Sunday act passed at the February meeting or hold a referendum on the matter were adopted at a mass meeting in Menlo Park. The Perkasie Fire Department and Chamber of Commerce adopted similar resolutions.

Council's ordinance, originally enacted in January and re-enacted this month over the veto of Burgess Carey S. Groff, provides for a fine of $25 to $100 for any amusement, recreation or exhibition operating on Sunday for profit.

'SHOW BOAT' BACK IN NIXON

Ziegfeld's "Show Boat," which had its world premiere in the Nixon, and has since had long runs in New York and Chicago, returns to the Nixon tonight, to remain for a week. Charles Winninger, Howard Marsh, Eva Puck and Sammy White, Jules Bledsoe and Aunt Jemima are among members of the large cast.

"Journey's End," war play by an English soldier, R. C. Sherriff, opens the second and final week of its engagement in the Shubert Alvin this evening. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday. The engagement terminates Saturday night, February 22.

"Just Suppose," romantic comedy by A. E. Thomas, seen here some years ago with Patricia Collinge featured, will be presented tonight and throughout the week in the Pitt by the George Sharp players, with Edith King as a southern girl with whom a prince falls in love.

'HAM' ACTORS LAND IN ARMY

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Troopers Three," new Tiffany talkie, came marching and galloping across the Olympic screen Saturday on its world premiere. It is all about three "ham" actors who get thrown out of a theater and land in the U. S. Cavalry. It is funny and hits a fair entertainment pace. The children, boys especially, will eat it up.

The usual comedy situations that revolve around army rookies are there. Some of them are done up in original style. A real cavalry troop is exhibited on cross-country rides and on parade. A U. S. Army post is the locale for much of the action. Romance enters when one of the actor-soldiers falls in love with a certain girl. And the melodramatics break out in a big way with a fire scene near the finale. And here is the old angle of how the hero rushes to the rescue of his enemy and rival for the girl's hand.

Rex Lease has the hero role. And he is heroic enough and romantic, too. Only he should keep to the clinches and not go in for the singing in his love-making. Dorothy Gulliver isn't an actress and doesn't arouse any interest as the heroine. Slim Summerville, as the fellow who thinks the cavalry would be all right if it didn't have any horses, contributes a good comedy role. Just to look at him is to laugh.

Savor of finest cheese

in new, still more healthful form

*Digestible as milk itself!

A real contribution to cheese lovers! In this golden brick, Kraft-Phenix—the world's greatest cheese makers—have achieved a new delight in mellow cheese flavor. In a form so digestible everyone can eat it.

Velveeta is choicest Cheddar cheese with all the precious qualities of the rich, whole milk left in. A secret, patented process! By means of it you get the benefit of the milk-sugar, calcium and minerals, lost in the usual cheese making. And perfect digestion is assured.

Spread Velveeta like butter for dainty savory little sandwiches. Chill it and slice for a piquant addition to any simple dessert. When you cook with it you'll be amazed at the ease with which it blends, melts and toasts.

Ballroom Romance.

My room is a dingy place at best,
With a window and a door
And a narrow cot for a weary soul—
What need have I for more?

For my window looks on a bit of sky
With stars in a field of blue
And the door was made for its purpose, dear,
To open and let you thru.

So I open my window wide at night
And I throw a kiss to a star
And I pray that God may keep you safe

A FORM OF CRITICISM

THE newest Wilson Mizner quip routed from Hollywood to Broadway concerns the internationally known wit's debut into the restaurant business out there. Mizner, in case you hadn't heard, has written hit shows, but after writing for the films discovered that they considered him only so-so. As a restaurateur, however, Mizner is a big hit. "How do you account for your success in the beanery racket?" someone asked him.

"I'm a success running a hash joint in Hollywood," was the retort, "because it is easier to stick a stake into their heads than an idea."

MERCILESS TRUTH

Now that all the suspects in the various unsolved Broadway murders have been set free "for lack of evidence," everybody goes to the theater again, where they can depend upon seeing the villain punished.

THE SILLY WILLIE!

ONLY a drunk can get away with a thing like this. After making the rounds of the speakeasies and getting himself plenty saturated on fun-milk, a stew staggered into one of the movie theaters to witness a midnight performance. Perhaps the picture bored him. At any rate, during a tense moment he got up and yelled: "Good God, is there a doctor in the house?"

Well, there was a doctor in the house. An important looking man in the third row arose and answered: "I'm a doctor."

The drunk smiled amiably at him, and then hiccoughed: "Harya, doc?"

THE BOUQUET PYEW!

". . . hence the novels resemble New York life as closely as the works of Walter Winchell do, and why Winchell has so many imitators is beyond me.—Ted Shane in Judge."

By golly, Ted, let's put that here where it'll be read!

VIRTUE IS REWARDED

RENEE CARROLL is probably the most popular of the Longacre hat-bandits. She is now officiating at Sardi's Restaurant, the rendezvous for professionals, and her chief boast is that "not one man can say this much about me!" After working for a concessionaire for six years, turning all tips over to him, she comes into her own on March 6, her twenty-second birthday. On that day, her employer's privilege expires. Mr. Sardi will reward her on that day by not renewing the concessionaire's lease. Instead, the privilege to pocket all tips will be turned over to Miss Carroll, who will be listed by the historians, perhaps, as one lass who made good on Broadway by staying good—if uninteresting.

INCIDENTALLY

Another Broadway kid, a colleague of Renee's, also comes into her own soon. Her name is Mavis King, who peddles flowers, checks hats and makes herself affable in the stay-up-late places. When Tommy Guinan reopens his night club in the Harding Hotel shortly the hat concession will be Miss King's, who paid $6,000 in cash for the privilege.

And to amaze you a little more, this night club will charge its doorman $100 per month to whistle for cabs there, and the waiters must pay the management a $50 fee to work in the gay place without salary.

THINGS THAT BURN ME UP AND KNOCK ME COLD

AT least some of us, privileged to write under our own names, may even matters in this fashion. Several week-ends ago it was recorded by this bureau that Nanette Guilford, the Metropolitan warbler, would divorce Max Rosen, the renowned fiddler, and an hour after publication the pair harangued the writer via the phone, later threatening a suit charging "criminal libel."

So certain were we that the report was true we refused to retract the statement. Yesterday's rags, however, front-paged Miss Guilford's suit for divorce from Max Rosen.

Some people are phoney that way.

NOVELETTE

William A. McGuire, the playwright, whose newest effort is "Ripples," the current Fred Stone vehicle, found himself stranded in a small town 18 years ago, without a dollar. Via the flirtation route, McGuire fell for a pretty girl who wanted to have fun. The desperate McGuire appealed to a local theater manager for coin, and not getting any encouragement, offered to sell him a sketch he had written the week before. The man, a former actor, paid him $25 for the act. McGuire took his new gal around town, blowing the $25 on her to make an impression, and then wound up by losing her to a chap who argued she was his wife.

The actor-manager who bought the sketch for the $25 still appears in it on the various small-time circuits at a weekly wage of $600.

GAG

HE has been difficult to get along with since he was starred (for some reason or other) in his first show, which suffered from lack of audiences, and he complained about the most trivial matters from day to day. His newest squawk concerned his billing out front. He didn't think his name in lights was large enough, and after a long quarrel with the company manager, he proceeded to the front of the house, got a ladder, climbed to the marquee and began measuring the letters of his name. Of course a huge mob collected.

The manager was among them snickering. "Go away from me," screamed the temperamental ham, to the manager, "or I'll kill you!"

"Oh," groaned the disgusted manager, "I don't care what you do, but for God's sake stay up there. It's the only way you can draw a crowd!"

Poor in Distress As Snow, Cold Hit Gotham

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (AP.)—A week-end snow storm, followed by intense cold that set a new record for the winter, brought distress to some of New York's poor and financial relief to others.

Thousands were driven to refuge in free lodging houses, as the temperature dropped to 7 above. In the Bowery refuge of the Salvation Army humanity overflowed from the bedrooms into the sitting room and the lobby, where 400 found warmth. Sleeping men, huddled on the benches and floors of outlying subway stations.

To at least 8,862 of the city's unemployed, however, the cold and 3½ inches of snow brought jobs. They were put to work removing snow from the streets. With the 7,000 men regularly employed they labored all day with hundreds of motor-driven plows, cross walk plows, loading machines, trucks and even horse-drawn carts.

PERULT LINER AWAITS TRIAL

HAMBURG, Germany, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The North German Lloyd liner Europa, twin ship of the record-holding Bremen, was given her first showing this week-end since being damaged by fire in March, 1929.

The Europa has been completely rebuilt, and will make her trial trip on Washington's birthday, February 22. She will leave on her maiden voyage for New York March 19.

One feature of the Europa's decorations is a "Schurman Room" dedicated to the former American ambassador, who christened the Europa. Another feature is its "unsinkable" lifeboats equipped with motors.

Portugal to Aid Stricken Angola

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 17 (AP.)—The Colonial office has announced far-reaching measures for rescuing the Portuguese West African colony of Angola from an economic crisis. They include extension of industrial and agricultural credits to the colony, creation of new shipping lines and better communications in the colony and a new tariff scale. A slump in the value of coffee exports is chiefly responsible for Angola's plight.

Man Riding Mule Shoots Deputy, Killed

KRYPTON, Ky., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—An attempt by Deputy Sheriff Newt Mann to arrest Jasper Langdon, 28, here resulted in the fatal shooting of Langdon and the wounding of Mann.

According to the deputy sheriff, he attempted to arrest Langdon, who was riding a mule around the passenger station, on a charge of drunkenness. Instead of getting off the mule at his command, the deputy sheriff said, Langdon opened fire, wounding the officer. Mann returned the fire and Langdon fell from the mule dead.

Mann was taken to a hospital at Hazard, where it was said he will recover.

PUPILS DRINK LESS, CLAIM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Indications that there has been less drinking among high school students since the prohibition laws than there was prior to their enactment were described as being reflected in reports in a survey being made at the request of the Law Enforcement Commission.

J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education Association, said that his organization had been asked by the commission to aid it in making contact with sources of information and that early reports that he had seen indicated that there was less drinking by students under the dry laws than there had been before.

Crabtree said that, while he did not feel at liberty to make public the reports, his familiarity with school conditions had led him to anticipate such a result. He added that he expected the findings of the survey to be made public soon.

His organization, Crabtree said, had been called upon by the commission to furnish the names of high school principals over the country, who in turn were requested for information upon the subject. Thousands of principals already have complied with the request, he added.

Crabtree, in a speech at a dinner given by the Educational Association of the District of Columbia, in honor of Miss E. Ruth Pyatt of Lincoln, Neb., head of the national organization, said that in addition to co-operating with the Law Enforcement Commission, the national association was lending its hand to further various other federal projects.

Among these he said was an effort to speed up school construction, in accordance with the recent request of President Hoover that building work be accelerated to relieve financial depression.

HOLD HEARINGS IN 3 WARDS

Three meetings are scheduled this week by the redistricting commission of Allegheny County, at which time plans will be offered for redistricting the Fifth, Fourteenth and Twenty-fourth Wards of the city for the installation of voting machines.

Residents of the Fourteenth Ward will be heard Wednesday night in the Wightman School. Commissioners David Lawrence, George E. Meyers and Mortimer B. Lesher will conduct the hearing. The same night, Commissioners Howard Neely, Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and John T. Small will conduct a hearing in the Spring Garden School, Twenty-fourth Ward.

The Fifth Ward meeting will be held Thursday night in the Watt School, at which time Chairman W. R. Criss of the commission and Commissioners Charles E. Flinn and William H. Ziefel will listen to plans.

Don't let a case of halitosis jeopardize friendships, love affairs, and business relationships, as so many have done.

The intelligent and fastidious precaution is to use full strength Listerine every day as a mouth rinse. It ends bad breath and improves mouth hygiene.

Kills germs—destroys odors

Full strength Listerine ends halitosis because it is an active germicide*, which attacks the germ conditions that produce odors. Then, being a powerful deodorant it destroys the odors themselves. Even the scent of onion and fish yield to it.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our NEW SPRING BOOK of PATTERN STYLES is now ready. Price FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

SAVES FAMILY IN PLANE CRASH

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The presence of mind and speed of hand that helped make Lieut. James H. Doolittle one of the Army's most successful stunt fliers, yesterday saved him and his family from possible injury or death in an airplane crack-up.

Lieut. Doolittle, who recently left the Army to enter commercial pursuits at St. Louis, was taking off for that city with his wife and two sons, James and John.

As he taxied across the field and attempted to turn, the wind caught his plane and flipped it over, breaking the wings and propeller and smashing open the gas tank.

But in the brief instant that it took the craft to turn over, Doolittle had reached for the ignition switch and shut it off, thereby preventing the escaped gasoline from igniting.

He and his family were unhurt. He planned to depart with them for St. Louis by train.

Stunt Pilot Saved By Parachute, Fliers

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Roy Hunt, a stunt pilot, made a 2,000-foot parachute jump yesterday as the wings of his airplane collapsed as he was coming out of a loop. Hunt alighted in San Francisco Bay and was endeavoring to escape from his tangled parachute when he was rescued by the pilots of a trans-bay ferry, which descended to the water beside the struggling pilot.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

ALIEN REGISTRY BILL SCORED

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, last night attacked a proposed federal bill supported by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, which would require registration of all aliens in the United States.

Addressing the fifteenth anniversary dinner of the American Jewish Congress, he said:

"It is impossible for me to understand the reasoning of the Secretary. . . . This scheme, with its proposal to make all aliens submit to annual inspections, and to be issued cards with their photographs attached, savors too much of the third degree and the rogue's gallery to be acceptable to real Americans."

GIRL CHANNEL FAKER WED

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Dorothy Cochrane Logan, who figured in a channel swimming hoax in 1927, has revealed that shortly afterward she had married Horace Carey, her trainer. She said she had delayed announcing her marriage for professional reasons.

She was strongly criticized for having pretended to swim the channel and to better the record of Gertrude Ederle. Before the hoax was discovered she received a check for $5,000 for the supposed breaking of Miss Ederle's record.

In November, 1927, she was fined $500 and $50 and costs by the lord mayor for "unlawfully, knowingly and wilfully making false statements in a statutory declaration." The fine was given not for hoaxing the public but for "committing an offense akin to perjury." Her trainer was fined half as much.

JAPANESE BUY FOKKER SHIPS

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Fokker officials anounced the signing of a contract licensing the Nippon Air Transport Company, of Japan, as the first extensive manufacturer of planes in the Far East.

Pending completion of the Japanese company's manufacturing arrangements, the Fokker factories at Passaic and Teterboro, N. J., will build and ship to Japan five Fokker super-universal planes to supplement their fleet of six tri-motors, three seaplanes and 12 land planes, all Fokkers.

The order for the five new Fokkers, accompanying the contract, was reported to officials of the International Aircraft Exposition as involving a total of $100,000.

Japanese officials in discussing the contract with the American company in New York indicated they expected to expand their lanes throughout Manchuria into Siberia and eventually through China to Shanghai.

SEVEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE CONVINCES THIS FAMILY

Mrs. Walter L. Schoenig of 2001 East St., Pittsburgh, speaks for her husband and her children, as well as for herself, when she says: "We've never been without REM in our house since 'way back in 1923, when we first heard of it. My husband's a postal employee, and he and I and our children often get colds-and-coughs during the nasty weather we have in Pittsburgh in winter, and it's good to have some medicine we can depend on. Whenever we run out of REM, we get another bottle at once at McKees', corner of East and Royal. We think there's nothing like REM and the children don't mind taking it, either." You'll discover, too, just as the Schoenigs did, that REM is different and better than ordinary cough syrups. Be sure to get REM—you'll be glad you did!

REM'S easy to take, too. Children and parents can both appreciate that!

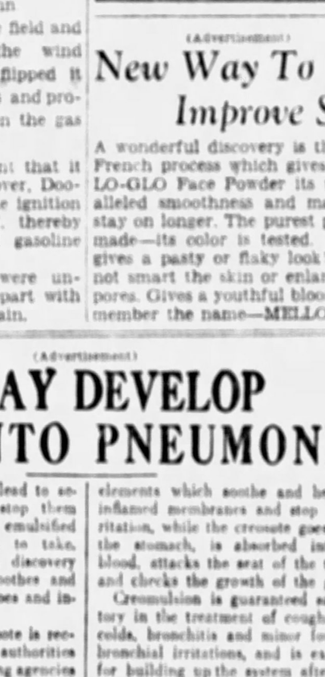
My hands never get CHAPPED from dishwashing now....

I use Noxzema to keep them velvety smooth and white



"DISHWASHING was a nightmare to me—it made my hands so chapped. One day my sister-in-law noticing their condition, got me a jar of Noxzema. I never dreamed that anything could heal my hands so quickly. And it kept them so white and soft looking. I use Noxzema regularly now."

Mrs. Agnes Gregory,
3969 Packard St., Long Island City, N.Y.

Experiences like this account for Noxzema's widespread popularity. Doctors and nurses recommend it—millions everywhere use it for healing and preventing chapped hands.

This snowy-white cream combines all the bland, soothing medication of a healing cream with the refining qualities of the daintiest toilet cream. That's why it relieves smarting instantly—softens and whitens rough skin—and quickly heals painful skin cracks.

'BLACK FRIDAY' MARKS PANICS

NEW YORK — "Black Friday" does not refer to a particular date, as often supposed, but is the name given to several Fridays on which financial panics have occurred.

Apparently the term was first applied to the Friday in December, 1745, when the news was received in London that Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender, had reached Derby, only 10 days' march from the capital. A financial panic resulted immediately. "Black Friday" was probably suggested by analogy with Black Monday, an old name for the Monday following Easter.

The term "Black Friday" was revived in England for May 11, 1866, when a panic followed the failure of the London firm of Overend, Gurney & Co. In the United States the term is applied to September 24, 1869, when a panic occurred as the result of Jay Gould's effort to corner the gold market in New York, and to September 19, 1873, when a panic followed the failure of the banking firm of Jay Cook & Co.

Obituary

George G. Herring.

George Grant Herring, of 847 California avenue, Avalon, for many years general agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad here, died in his home today. Years ago Mr. Herring entered the Pennsylvania Railroad offices here and later became affiliated with the old Union Railroad. Later he joined the Southern Pacific system and was general agent until his retirement in 1925. He was an organizer of the North Boroughs Y. M. C. A. branch and for many years was chairman of the board, a member of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, the board of trustees, treasurer of the building fund and a teacher in the Sunday school. He also was a member of the Hungry Club, Avalon Lodge, F. & A. M. and the Pittsburgh Traffic Club. He leaves a sister, Miss Lucy Herring, of Avalon.

Flat Tire Balks Robber Suspects' Escape

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Feb. 17.—A flat tire prevented three suspects from escaping after the robbery of the Atlantic gasoline station in Blockhouse Run, police report.

Clifford Cozart, Leo Hinkle and Rony Erubish, all of New England Hill, are held for investigation, after John Allen, watchman at a nearby coal yard, identified the trio.

CHICKEN BLOOD IN HUMANS HIT

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal. —(INS.)—Chicken blood transfusion does not appeal to Dr. Edwin William Schultz, Stanford University bacteriologist.

Expressing his opinion of the chicken blood transfusion performed in Lincoln, Neb., recently, to save the life of a boy critically ill with pneumonia, Dr. Schultz said:

"I should certainly hate to have chicken blood running through my celebral circulatory system, as the corpuscles in a chicken's blood are considerably larger than those in a human's."

The procedure followed is not new, Dr. Schultz said, except that chicken blood is a new form of foreign protein to be used.

The possible value of such a treatment is that it may increase the bodily temperature, and a fever has curative effects on the disease.

U. S. DRY KILLER BACK ON JOB

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Acquitted by a jury in Federal Court here on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Gust Henry Wirkkula, a rum-smuggling suspect, Emmet J. White, United States customs officer, was to return to his duties today as a member of the border prohibition patrol.

White was suspended after killing Wirkkula on a country road near Little Fork, Minn., last June 8, when the latter failed to stop his car which the officer intended to search for liquor. Reinstatement became effective automatically with his acquittal.

The jury returned its verdict after less than three hours' deliberation.

3 OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES IN HOME

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

THERE will be none to challenge the statement that the Bar Association lost its most colorful figure when Attorney Rody Marshall died. Consciously or unconsciously, Mr. Marshall emphasized the drama of trial. To cases which were dull in ordinary hands he supplied color.

No one has come up to take his place as the showman. Prichard and Coll have gained reputations as noted defense lawyers, but they apparently do not regard the courtroom as the stage it seemed to be with Marshall on the scene.

We watched Mr. Marshall as counsel for the defense in a spectacular heart-balm suit a few years ago. The plaintiff, a lady of the chorus, was suing a gentleman for the round and pretty sum of a half-million dollars. What we remember most clearly is a line of testimony which Mr. Marshall extracted from the lady on cross-examination. By his manner he seemed to attach great significance to it. The line was that the lady had once played a part in nothing less than "The Gold Diggers."

These belated lines were suggested by a discussion we listened to the other day. Two critical lawyers and a veteran newspaperman were giving their opinions on the best all-around lawyer practicing in Pittsburgh today. They were unanimous for Oliver K. Eaton.

One changes one's mind as one grows older, we always say. Take this business of having your picture taken. For years we have contended heatedly that the photograph business was false, that 100 out of 100 pictures were flattering and therefore untruthful. Why, we argued, let the retoucher paint out the wrinkles and the frown if they really belong? Well, we had our picture taken the other day and now we have the proofs and they haven't been retouched yet—but they're going to be.

HE was a young musician, a trumpeter, and he came up from Down Yonder a few weeks ago to play, quite appropriately, the trumpet in a downtown cabaret. He brought along his flivver and on this particular day he was rattling along the boulevard bound for work. A limousine was proceeding at what seemed a snail's pace to the trumpeter, so he eased his flivver past the big car. As he did so, the dignified gentleman in the limousine frowned at him severely and waved a warning finger. Trumpeters being no respectors of waving fingers, our hero emitted sounds best known as the birdie. A few hundred yards later the flivver was jammed in traffic and the limousine moved by.

But the trumpeter caught up, and as he passed the foe a second time he received a second warning similar to the first. This time the trumpeter threw caution to the winds and thumbed his nose at the limousine, if not the occupant.

Well, the two machines reached Sixth avenue and the boulevard at one and the same time, and the gentleman in the limousine called a cop and the trumpeter spent the next few hours in jail. The mistake he made was in trying to speed a flivver past the limousine of James M. Clark, the director of public safety.

Will Rogers Says:

CLAREMORE, Okla., Feb. 17. I SURE used to envy General Grant and Jesse James when they had smokeless cigars named after 'em, but here I am sitting in the brand new, most up-to-date hotel in the southwest, the Will Rogers Hotel, in Claremore. It's six stories high. That's higher than any hotel in London and its got more baths in one room than Buckingham Palace, where the king lives, has all put together got more elevators than the Rice Hotel in Houston had during the Democratic convention and these run cracked ice and white rock in each room. That's standard equipment. Here is the town that you take those wonderful baths that cure you of everything but being a Democrat.

I know now how proud Christo Columbus must have felt when he heard they had named Columbus, Ohio, after him.

Yours,
WILL.

Chickie Is Introduced to Smiling Young Admirer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce is attending business college when the story opens. Arthur Sontag, a classmate, takes her to a dance and she confides to her friend, Mary Blake, that the avenues of romance are opening to her. Mary and Chickie blandly discuss love and marriage. Chickie thinks it will be all kisses and "walking on the mountain tops with her lover by her side." She forgets Arthur in the excitement of getting a position in an office. One of her co-workers there is Janina Knowles. Through Janina she meets Jake Munson, a rich and attractive bachelor. Mary suddenly marries a poor young chemist, much to Chickie's regret. Jimmy Blake, Mary's brother, begs Chickie to marry him, but without success. Chickie is attracted to a handsome young man who smiles at her from the window of another office. Chickie goes to a party given by Munson, against her father's protest.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

CHICKIE'S going to Jake Munson's party was like a light passing from the house.

Jonathan sat with his hands clasped; an old man, a man suddenly emptied of life. He sat there a long while. Abruptly, he got up and hurried to the door. He walked out on the steps, looking up and down the street. The car that had taken Chickie was long out of sight.

He went back to the room. He opened the evening newspaper. He held it stiffly before him.

Jennie, deep in a little square chair, smiled gently and rocked. Echoes of song murmured within her. She was a girl again—she was Chickie tasting anew the dear, lost sweetness of youth. Absently she took off her spectacles and wiped her eyes. In the quiet house, a few moments ago so crowded with youth and and color, Jennie's sigh trembled.

"Our Chickie's beautiful."

No answer.

Then, after a long time, with a gruffness that startled her: "She goes out too much."

Jennie sat forward nervously taking the glasses from her nose, nervously putting them back again. "Why, Jonathan. But at nineteen—"

"Yes, yes, nineteen! I know all that! Nineteen! The truth is we let Chickie run away with us."

He saw Jennie's lips quiver; he saw her face pucker up. He hid the sight from him with his hand pressed against his forehead.

After a long while, he said in a hushed, imploring tone as though he wished her to contradict: "Jennie, I could swear I smelt tobacco on Chickie's breath last night."

Defended

Jennie Says There's No Harm in Chickie Smoking

The silence throbbed as though something ran between them, cowering. Jennie's face grew ashen; she was unable to speak.

Without looking at her, Jonathan beseeched: "Does she, Jennie? Does Chickie smoke?"

"Well, well—"

"But does she? Just answer that."

"As—yes, she does—a little—"

He turned his white face from her.

The mother, with one of Chickie's silk stockings poised in her hand, felt her heart bound. The needle slipped, going deep under the nail of her finger. It bled. Tears o sick agitation trickled down her cheeks.

Chickie—and Jonathan looking like that—ah, dear God—

She went over and touched his arm. At first he didn't look at her—at first she couldn't speak. Then she saw his eyes screwing together, but wet, just the same in the corners.

She found it in her heart to laugh softly. "Ah, Jonathan—at nineteen—why, I can remember so many things—we should thank God—we should be on our knees."

He slid his hand upward to his face—

Jennie smiled. "The idea! Why, didn't you say yourself it's not like when we were young. Why—there's no more harm in Chickie's smoking—" She went rushing on—eager—her lips shaking.

Stays Awake

Mother Awaits Chickie's Return and Cannot Sleep

He lifted questioning eyes full into hers. "It's not the smoking, Jennie. It's where the smoking and all this going about end—"

Oh!—the pain of that—but he went on mercilessly: "Jennie do we even know who Chickie is with?"

Yes! Oh, she knew!

"A Mr. Munson. A very fine man. He owns a big business. Chickie knows all about him. He's very well known."

Chickie had added excitedly: "Oh, mother, darling, the girls are all wild about him. You never saw anything so handsome! Can you believe it—he's been wanting to meet me for months."

Jennie raised her head exultantly. Could she believe that! Why, it was incredible to her that any one should look at Chickie and not adore her. Even thinking of Chickie made her veins glow, made her say now aloud:

"Jonathan, we should be ashamed to talk so! Our own child—"

He shifted uneasily.

Yet that night he was the one to fall asleep. Jennie lay wide awake, a chill creeping round and round the edge of her heart.

Terror-Stricken

Jennie Watches for Hours For Daughter

The clock in the dining room struck. It was a cold little hammer knocking in her throat.

Half asleep he asked, "Chickie home yet?"

Asleep again. The deep monotony of his breathing struck her with a curious wonder. Ah—but she, Jennie, couldn't sleep.

The cars whizzed down the street and went grinding at the turn. They stopped.

Growing late. Silence thickened, pressed down like dead hands, heavy and cold.

WOMAN SAVES CANARIES AS FIRE RAGES

Seven Fire Companies Aid in Carnegie Rescue; House Reduced to Ruins

Porkie and Bobbie, canaries, today were still wondering why they were carried up to the roof of their home late Saturday night, and then down a long ladder by a man with a peaked hat and long overcoat. It was an exciting experience.

Mrs. Mary Middendorf, living in the first floor of a double frame house at 9 Shawhan avenue, Scott Township, near Carnegie, took her pet, Porkie, and went to visit her daughter, Mrs. John Lutz, in the apartment above. Porkie's cage was set beside that of Bobbie, Mrs. Lutz's canary, in the kitchen, while mother and daughter visited in the front room.

Mrs. Lutz smelled smoke, and, opening the door into the kitchen, ran into a cloud of smoke and flame. Their escape cut off by the fire which had found its way to the stairway, the women climbed through a third story window onto the roof, and screamed for help.

Above the crackling of the fire Mrs. Lutz heard Porkie singing. She climbed down into the smoke-filled apartment, fought her way into the kitchen, and dragged the cages up to the roof, where a rush of cold night air revived the birds.

Firemen from Carnegie found the house a mass of flames, and sent out a call for aid. A fireman carried Mrs. Middendorf down a ladder. She was followed by Mrs. Lutz and another fireman who carried the cages. More firemen came from East Carnegie, Glendale, Crafton, Bower Hill, Heidelberg and Pittsburgh.

The house was destroyed. Nothing in it was saved except the canaries and a box of valuable papers which Mrs. Lutz grabbed on her run for the ladder leading to the roof.

Free Rides Given On New Trolleys

The Allegheny Valley Street Railway Company, operating from Aspinwall to Natrona, yesterday gave free rides to several thousand persons who tested out the 12 new cars placed in operation by the company Saturday. From 2 until 4 p. m. the cars were crowded with men, women and children. Each car is named after a town in the district traversed by the system. The cars cost $200,000, officials said.

Ben Avon Residence Damaged by Flames

Ben Avon police today were investigating a fire which damaged the home of Dr. R. T. Johnston, 6617 Church avenue, Ben Avon, yesterday. The blaze was believed to have started from a spark from a chimney. Ben Avon firemen confined the flames to the roof. The loss was $500, according to a police report.

LANG REPORTS ON KENNA 'GIFT'

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang today made his report to Council on the erection of a gasoline station by Edward M. Lenna on Brosius way, Nineteenth Ward.

Lang declares that the grade of Brosius way is such as to make it impractical and uneconomic for the operation of vehicles and points out that a flight of steps will serve adequately the residents of that district. The director adds: "I am absolutely sure there is no politics involved as Mr. Kenna would not expect any special privileges or favors frim this administration."

Woman Swallows Poison After Row

Mrs. Margaret Rodgers, 28, of 805 Sandusky street, was reported in a serious condition in the Allegheny General Hospital from the effects of poison swallowed, police said, following an argument with her husband in her home early yesterday. North Side police reported holding her husband, Frank Rodgers, 29, for questioning.

2 Autos Destroyed When Garage Burns

Two automobiles were destroyed late last night when fire swept through a garage in the rear of the home of Joseph Lewandowski, at 6314 Forward avenue. The blaze, which was discovered by a pedestrian, resulted in a $1,000 loss, firemen said. The cause was undetermined.

POLICE USE INHALATOR IN RESCUE

Two Girls and Man Rushed To Hospital After First Aid Is Given on Scene

Two girls are in St. John's Hospital, one in a serious condition, and a male companion was permitted to go home after first aid treatment, as a result of being overcome by carbon monoxide fumes late last night in the home of Miss Jean Chinski, at 1111 Woods Run avenue.

Miss Chinski, 17, with Miss Estelle Pavlic, 20, of 24 Florence avenue, Bellevue, and Charles Yates, 21, of 425 Second street, Monongahela, were sitting in the front room of the Chinski home when overcome by fumes issuing from a gas heater, police reported. Members of Miss Chinski's family, asleep on the second floor, alarmed at her failure to retire, investigated and found the three in the room. Miss Pavlic was unconscious, and Yates and Miss Chinski were partly overcome.

Woods Run police were summoned, and Wagonmen Harry Buch and Harry Hamilton used an inhalator for more than an hour on Miss Pavlic before the three were removed to the hospital. The two girls were detained and Yates was permitted to go home.

Miss Pavlic is employed as a nurse in the home of L. P. Madden, 24 Florence avenue, Bellevue.

FIREMAN FALLS OFF ROOF, HURT

Cyril A. Schaaf, 27, of 199 St. Joseph street, Mt. Oliver, a member of the borough volunteer fire department, was in St. Joseph's Hospital today with a fractured left arm and probable internal injuries suffered last night when he fell from the roof of a two-story dwelling at 197 Ormsby avenue, Mt. Oliver.

Schaaf was fighting a blaze which broke out in the attic of a house occupied by Mrs. Marian Klein; her daughter, Mrs. John Schwartz and her three children, who were forced into the street by smoke. The damage was estimated at $1,200.

Girl Found in Street Held for Hearing

Found lying at Fontella and Stedman streets by police, Miss Clara Caluhio, 18, of 1513 Sheffield street was to be given a hearing today in Morals Court. The young woman, police say, first told them she had been beaten by two men. Physicians were unable to find any marks, police say. A short time later she changed her story and said she had been automobile riding with Sam Laquatra, 25, of 1335 Page street. Laquatra, when arrested, admitted being with the girl, but said he had left her at her home.

Traffic Fatalities Increased in Year

Adult traffic fatalities in Allegheny County increased by four during January over the same period last year, figures prepared by Burton W. Marsh, of the City Bureau of Traffic Planning, from Coroner W. J. McGregor's official compilation. Sixteen fatalities resulted against 12 during January, 1929. No fatalities to children were reported.

Nine of those killed were crossing streets either in the middle of the block or disobeying traffic signals at controlled intersections.

Inquiry Seeks Cause Of Incline Accident

Investigation into an accident on the South Eleventh Street Incline late Saturday, when 12 persons were injured, was to be launched today by officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. According to R. S. Bull, superintendent of power and inclines of the company, the incline is inspected daily by inspectors of the company and a city inspector.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: What is your favorite exercise and why?

NEAL A. COLLINS, salesman, Geo. M. Wilson Company, Downtown: "I'll choose golf as my favorite exercise. It is a sport at the same time. When playing golf one derives benefits from the fresh air and by walking from one hole to the other. Skill and science required in putts and drives add other touches to the game that give it a most interesting appeal. Then associations made on the links add a mental stimulus to the player. Therefore it's an all around good exercise."

Neal A. Collins

ILMA B. EARNEST, secretary, Downtown: "There's nothing like dancing, whether it is ballroom or stage, for exercise, in my opinion. I like dancing because it's a pleasure. Most exercise, if it is of the one-two-three - four type advocated by physical culturists, is monotonous and tiresome. With dancing one can enjoy one's self and at the same time receive health and exercise."

Miss Earnest

FRANK PACKARD, clothing salesman, Homewood: "Baseball playing is my favorite exercise and it has been since I was a mere youngster. I still play it professionally, but I haven't lost any of that old-time amateur enthusiasm. I like it because baseball inspires confidence, gets one into the open air and finally because it requires a certain amount of skill to be proficient."

Frank Packard

HELEN GRAFF, Homewood: "I don't have any special favorite exercise, but there are two or three that I get a lot of enjoyment from. They are dancing, swimming and setting up exercises. I like dancing because you can benefit your health while going through the rhythmic movements the art requires. Swimming I like, because every muscle of your body is put into play. At the same time you are feeling the splash of pleasant water all around you."

Miss Graff

W. H. WEISMAN, display manager, East End: "I'm decided whether golf or bowling is my favorite exercise, I think that both hold the same place in my affections. Golf is my favorite in good weather and bowling when the snow flies and the winds blow. Both have their good points; golf in that one gets the benefit of fresh air and walking at the same time, and bowling for the limbering it gives the muscles.

W. H. Weisman

LESTER SAMOLSKY, student, Washington: "Billiards and basketball are my favorite exercises. I like to play for the enjoyment that they give me, both in mental and physical stimulation. Both improve the mind, at the same time providing exercise that is highly beneficial to the body. There are a lot of other good games that I like as exercise, but not to the extent of my affection for those I mentioned."

Lester Samolsky.

Resurrection Church Card Party Tonight

Proceeds of a card party tonight at Resurrection Hall, Chelton avenue, Brookline, will go to the building fund of the Resurrection Church, according to William Devine, chairman. Euchre, bridge, "500" and old maid will be played and 75 prizes will be distributed. A door prize will also be awarded. Mr. Devine, Christ Coulter, Albert Rourke, John Seeberger, Leonard Rauh, Frank Rectenwald, John Cummings and John McCarthy comprise the committee in charge.

St. Wendelin Church Arranges Party

The second annual card party for the benefit of St. Wendelin's Church will be held in the school, Custer avenue, tomorrow night. Euchre, 500 and bridge will be played. Bowling will be an added feature. The women of the parish will serve lunch.

Boys Sheltered in 'Army' Home Held for Theft

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 17.—Accused of stealing $150 from the Salvation Army Home, 795 Fourth avenue, John Nord, 18, formerly of Johnstown, and Harry Jones, 17, were held in the New Kensington lockup today. The youths were arrested in Leechburg early today.

Both youths, police said, had been staying at the home and are alleged to have looted the office during the absence of officials yesterday. Practically all the money was recovered. New Kensington police said.

Capt. Victor C. Bryan, of the home, returned the youths to New Kensington from Leechburg.

CONGRESSMEN TO ATTEND YOUGHIOGHENY CONFERENCE

CANALIZATION PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED

Kelly, Wyant and Engineers To Confer With Up-River Leaders on Improvement

Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Braddock, and Congressman Adam Wyant, of Greensburg, who helped introduce a joint bill in Congress for partial canalization of the Youghiogheny River, were to meet here today with engineers and the law committees of the Youghiogheny River Improvement Association.

Final arguments will be incorporated in a brief the association will file with Maj. Jarvis J. Bain, United States engineer for this district, which he and the Rivers and Harbors Board of the War Department will consider along with testimony offered three weeks ago at a hearing in this city.

Maj. J. E. Moorehead, technical advisor; A. M. Stevenson, president of the association and Watson McKee of McKeesport, will attend the conference, representing the association. The project calls for the building of two locks and dams between McKeesport and West Newton at an estimated cost of $3,000,000. Opening the river to barge movement will afford cheaper transportation to coal fields which at present depend solely on railroads, the association claims.

DRINKING BOUT ENDS IN FIGHT

Three men will receive hearings before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court tomorrow on charges of assaulting Joseph Zakrzewski, 45, 2618 Josephine street, early Sunday morning. The men are Tony Dombroski, 40, and John Olowski, 38, both of 2613 McCord street, and Jack Allison, 30, of 3016 Harrums way.

The men say the four participated in a drinking bout all Saturday night which ended in a free-for-all fight. Zakrzewski, they claim, was injured when he fell down a steep embankment into Barry street. Zakrzewski is expected to die, according to police.

Pittsburgher's Plane Model New Flying 'Wrinkle'

INVENTS FLAP WING PLANE

A new feature in aircraft designing has been found in the working model of an airship constructed by a Pittsburgh violin maker.

Prof. William Roescher, of 1714 Fifth avenue, is the inventor. In 1904, he says, he constructed a wooden frame with wings which were flapped by foot power by the passenger in the machine. For financial reasons, he dropped aircraft designing until he set to work on his present model.

"My idea in this ship," he explains, "was to get away from restrictions of conventional design. I place gas-chambers in a dirigible envelope fore and aft. I use a biplane's wings, but make the lower plane movable. With no load, the weight of the machine is balanced exactly by the lifting power of the gas. A motor provides power to move through the air.

"The pilot can lift the structure from the ground or land it gently by flapping the lower wings with his foot."

RELIGIOUS WAR IN RUSSIA VIEWED

Michael Williams, editor of The Commonweal, a national Catholic publication, addressed 1,700 persons last night at the annual open meeting of the Fort Pitt General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, in the Harris Theater. The choir of St. Ireneaus Church, of Oakmont, sang parts of several masses under the direction of Edward P. Riehl. Louis F. S. Cook was general chairman.

Mr. Williams said that the majority of people of Soviet Russia are religious and will continue to practice their religion in spite of their temporary masters. He referred to the significance of the Church of Englands' response to the encyclicial of Pope Pius XI, on the Soviet menace to religion, as an indication of Catholic leadership in the fight against the Communist plan.

The Rev. Thomas F. Coakley, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, introduced the speaker. Mr. Williams was present at the coronation of the present Pope and gave a graphic picture of the ceremony.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Entertain For Winter Colonists At St. Petersburg

WITH spring not so far off even here in the cold north, folks in winter resorts in the southland are having a gay time for the final weeks of the season there. Down at St. Petersburg entertainments are planned for every hour of the day, and since the Pittsburgh colony is among the largest there, Pittsburgh folks are particularly prominent in the old southern city.

One of the popular hostesses at St. Petersburg is Mrs. Alfred E. Hunt, of Ardsley avenue. Recently she gave a luncheon bridge at the Hotel Soreno. And bowls of pink roses lavender stalice and yellow snapdragons and tall pink tapers decorated the luncheon table.

And among the guests were Mrs. W. F. Connor, Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. J. D. Sterrett, Mrs. Frank S. Dodge, Miss Romaine Clarke, Mrs. Albert Horne Burchfield, Mrs. J. D. Maxwell and Mrs. J. M. Shields.

Another important event in the social life of the winter colonists of St. Petersburg was a reception and tea Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Connor gave recently in the Palm room of the Hotel Soreno. And Mrs. Connor, in gold lame and blue velvet, received with Dr. Connor before an embankment of garden flowers and palms. Miss Romaine Clarke in ciel blue chiffon helped receive the 125 guests.

Among the guests were Mrs. James D. Sterrett, Mrs. J. D. Maxwell, Mrs. Alfred E. Hunt, Mrs. William M. Bell, Mrs. Albert Horne Burchfield and others. Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Burchfield in gowns of fleet blue crepe, poured.

YOU all remember I'm sure the puppet plays the Junior League gave last winter for the entertainment of children and of grown-ups for that matter.

This year the league will do something new. It will give a play for young boys and girls and will start rehearsing before much more time has passed.

The national junior league has become particularly interested in theaters and theater plays for children. At a conference on children's plays held in Chicago in December, Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner and Virginia Goldsbury represented the Pittsburgh juniors. And they came home eager to start something.

So on Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock the league will hold try-outs in the University Club. And among the judges will be Chester M. Wallace of the drama department of the college of fine arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins, of the Stage and Play Society.

The play to be given is "The Wizard of Oz." Mrs. Scribner will be in charge of the production aided by Virginia Goldsbury who is chairman of dramatics.

And the play will be presented in the Pitt Theater which will be given to the league for the production by George Sharp.

Speaking of the Junior League, I'm reminded of the Junior League Nutrition Clinic poster contest. And the prizes have been awarded to Raymond Baxter Dowden, first; Lewis E. Posterius, second, and Sterling Smeltzer, third. And they are all students of the College of Fine Arts.

AND I know some travel news, too. The J. Willis Dalzells of Ellsworth avenue are home from a Mediterranean cruise and from a fortnight in Southern France.

And Nancy Hume James spent the week-end in Ashland, Ky., with her brother, Charles Hedges James, III.

Had you heard that Mrs. Wallace Hurtle Ross, of Morewood avenue, and her daughter, Eleanor, have gone to spend several weeks with Mrs. Ross's daughter, Mrs. C. B. Dunbar, in Augusta, Ga.?

MISS MARGARET LUCRETIA PATTERSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hart Patterson, of Grafton avenue, was married on Saturday evening to Neil C. Reed, of Syracuse, N. Y., in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church with the Rev. J. Reginald Moody officiating.

The bride wore a French gown of antique ivory satin, fashioned in princess mode. The veil falling from a coronet of old thread lace worn by the bride's grandmother was caught with orange blossoms and formed a long court train. She carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies. Miss Ethel Courtwright, of Chicago, was the maid of honor, wearing a gown of orchid tulle over taffeta made along princess lines with bouffant skirt of shaded orchid. Miss Clare Passinger of Pittsburgh, one of the bridesmaids, wore green flat crepe in princess effect, and the other, Miss Betsy Patterson, sister of the bride, wore peach flat crepe with simulated bustle effect in back. The bride's mother looked charming in peach satin. Mrs. Alexander E. Patterson, of Chicago, wore a French creation, and Mrs. E. B. Mitchell, godmother of the bride, wore eggshell satin.

The best man was Webster Rice, of Philadelphia, a classmate of the bridegroom at Syracuse University. The ushers were Albert C. Martin, of Pittsburgh; William Marvin, of Whitehall, S. C., and Theodore Peasley, of Cincinnati, O. Small Alexander E. Patterson, of Chicago, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. The organist was Earl Collins, a fraternity brother of the br[illegible] and the [illegible] Cunningham.

SURE HE'LL WED CHINESE GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Still determined to marry the young Chinese girl with whom he was prevented from eloping to China several weeks ago, Victor Boisseree, former Olympic Club athlete, was returned here from Seattle last night to face charges of failing to provide for his two children.

On the same train but in a different compartment, was Miss Florence Lee Tai, San Francisco-born Chinese girl, the object of Boisseree's affections.

"Love transcends all racial barriers," Boisseree declared at the city prison. "My arrest has only delayed our wedding plans."

CHIFFON ADDS SHEER CHARM TO THE NEW EVENING MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—For shear beauty, wear a chiffon frock. It has been many seasons since such exquisite chiffon evening frocks have added their share to the charm of the evening scene as it is staged at the various delectable spots along the lovely Riviera. There is something so pleasing and effective about chiffon that it is surprising that one sees so little of it in evidence. Black chiffon is always gracious and never outwears its welcome as do some dresses of more sumptuous fabric. An important point for those on a wardrobe budget. Reg chiffons are especially suitable to both blonde and brunette coloring, as they enhance the beauty of each type, and are particularly suited to the long clinging line prescribed by the mode.

THE evening frock shown was sketched at a dinner dance at the Cafe de Paris in Monte Carlo, where one is always certain to be delighted by the picture presented by beautiful women, exquisitely and tastefully dressed, with magnificent jewels and perfect accessories. The evening frock, which was worn by a tall slim blonde, was of geranium chiffon with shirred flounces, scalloped at the edge, on the cape and skirt. Ruchings of chiffon, cut out in petal form and massed to resemble flowers, bordered the line where the flounces joined the body of the gown. The skirt was somewhat shorter in front, but touched the floor in back.

BLACK and white are the winning colors in the sporting world. Some of the smartest sports outfits seen at Cannes have been of this combination, giving a note of urban smartness to resort clothes, that adds to their attraction, and makes them at home anywhere. And this cannot always be said of clothes designed solely for country wear. The outfit shown here was worn by an extremely chic woman sojourning at Cannes. The sweater and skirt are of black jersey in a fancy weave, and the tailored blouse is of white men's shirting. Over all was worn a full-length coat of black and gray ribbed jersey bordered with black tricot. The beret was black flannel, the bouttoniere, a natural white camelia. Dull black pumps and white gloves stitched in black completed this study in black and white.

STATE BUILDING SHOWS SLUMP

HARRISBURG, Feb. 17.—(AP)—An unprecedented decline in building and construction in Pennsylvania occurred in the first months of 1930.

Despite the nation-wide urge for increased building during the new year, inspired by President Hoover's appeal, statistics made public by the Department of Labor and Industry, revealed that permits for building operations to cost only $4,874,024 were issued by municipalities during January. Contrasted to the $16,771,446 total for January, 1929, last months' figure represented a drop of 77.5 per cent.

The drop, the department said, was the largest in the five years that figures have been obtained by the department and compiled.

GAIN IN MONESSEN

Only 16 of the total of 43 cities and boroughs reporting to the department, experienced advances in building last month over the corresponding month of last year. The increases in all but three "were so small that the gains were of no appreciable consequence," a statement of the department said.

Allentown reported the biggest gain. Permits were taken out during the month for work to cost $302,050, an increase of more than 186 per cent over last January. Monessen was second with an increase of $126,340, and the other large gain was reported by Uniontown, which was $98,190.

Philadelphia headed the list reporting declines with a drop of nearly $14,500,000. The total for the month was $2,719,925, as against $17,161,370 last January. The January, 1929, total was the highest for the corresponding months of the 10 years preceding.

BIG DECLINE HERE

The second largest reduction occurred in Pittsburgh, where permits were issued for work to cost $683,640, which is little more than half of the work started last January.

Other cities with large declines were: Erie, $565,120; Reading, $483,881; Harrisburg, $460,275; Wilkes-Barre, $123,962, and Scranton, $127,731.

The decline, while general in most classes of building, was especially marked in buildings of residential type. Permits for only 117 one-family dwellings were issued during the month, as compared with 480 in January, 1929.

"Undoubtedly," the department's statement summarized the conditions, "1930 will witness an unprecedented volume of activity in public works construction, but a very quiet year is indicated for residential and commercial lines."

TAKE SALTS IF STOMACH ISN'T ACTING RIGHT

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyperacidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest; we belch up gas; we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink it while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to help neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results.

LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXXV

TOM had been drinking. He did not show it in any way. But when Lovejoy sat down near him in her little low chair she caught the unmistakable scent of whisky on his breath.

"Do you always drink in the morning?" she asked him acidly.

He shook his head. "No," he said dully. "I just had a drink with Al Anderson. I stopped in to see him at his office."

He put his hand into an inside pocket of his coat and took from it a few pieces of folded paper.

"If those are the famous letters, Aline wants them," Lovejoy told him with her eyes on the paper. "She sent here to go down to your office and ask you for them. You must have passed her on your way here."

Whether you believe it or not those really are her letters, Tom."

Tom unfolded his papers. She saw then that they were not letters but bills. Bills from the furniture store and the china store and the drapery store where she had bought the things for the new house.

"I came home to talk to you about these bills," Tom said, spreading them out upon the orchid taffeta cover on her bed. "You spent between three and four thousand dollars on this house, Lovejoy, last month. And it's going to take a lot of managing to get those bills paid within a year."

Lovejoy stared at him. Last night he had been ready to leave her. Now he was talking over household affairs with her as calmly as though they had never had a quarrel.

"You see, I made a lot of money for a while this spring. Tom went on, "and I'll make something over a hundred a week all summer. But that will only pay our household expenses unless we cut them way down."

Lovejoy laid two fingers over her mouth to hide a yawn. This sort of talk always made her tired.

Making Less Money

"Tom," she said with a little drawl, "please don't expect me to believe you. You've been making two and three hundred dollars a week for three or four months. Now, why should you suddenly drop down to a hundred?"

He gave his head another shake.

"I've been dropping down steadily—for five or six weeks," he told her quietly. "You see, it's this way, Lovejoy. In the summer people don't buy as many bonds as they do in other seasons of the year. Three of my best customers are in Europe with their families right now. Lots of others are up in the Maine woods or in Canada, fishing . . . Bonds always slow up in the summer along with a lot of other things."

Lovejoy did not believe him. She only half understood him.

"I imagine we'll get along all right," she said indifferently. She got up from her chair and walked over to her dressing table.

"Not unless you help me," Tom said quickly. "I have almost a thousand dollars put away, and I'll have to send all that out today to these furniture people. We're just got to cut down expenses here at home!"

"All right!" Two spots of bright color burned suddenly in Lovejoy's cheeks. "I'll tell you where we'll start saving money first thing—We'll fire Norrie and get a $10-a-week girl to help around the house."

He thought that over.

Tom Disapproves

"That's the worst thing we could do," he said, "unless you will promise to take care of the baby all the time and let the little $10-a-week girl do the work you're doing now. It wouldn't be safe to leave the baby alone hours every day with some young kid who doesn't know anything about babies."

Lovejoy set her teeth.

"I knew you wouldn't let Norrie Shane leave this house!" she answered him bitterly. "You could save $35 a month easily that way—but you don't want to save money if it means losing your marvelous Norrie!"

"I want . . ." he began, but she silenced him.

"I know what you want!" she cried wildly. "You want me to cook and scrub and wait on you and her all summer long! You want me to do without any new clothes! You want me to give up my bridge clubs and the Thursday Night Club and all the friends I've made this winter! You want ME to do the saving and the scimping—and won't do it!"

"I want you to take care of your own child," Tom contradicted her, "because I can't afford a good nurse for him any longer. But if you won't promise to do it, I'll have to keep that nurse—even if we go without shoes this summer."

There came a soft knock on the door, and then Norrie Shane's voice.

"Lovejoy, will you tell Tom that I just put some dry socks in his room?" I noticed that his feet were wet when he came in."

"Oh, dry up!" said Lovejoy under her breath, and blew away.

She thumbed her nose in Norrie's direction.

"And that's another reason why I want to have Norrie in the house," Tom remarked when she had gone downstairs. "She keeps the buttons on my shirts and the spots off my ties. She darns my socks for me and empties the ash-tray beside my bed."

"I'll tell the world she does!" Lovejoy agreed spitefully.

Her voice trembled with the fury that began to blaze up within her like a sheet of flame.

"She does it purposely!—She does it because she wants to show me up!—She's crazy about you and she wants you to know what a good wife she'd make!—And you, you perfect sap, you've fallen for it!"

"And I'm glad you have!" she finished. "Because it leaves me free to do what I want to do. I'm going down to see Steve Ogilvay this very morning about divorcing you! I'm going to leave you just as soon as I can, Tom Nicholson!"

Wants His Son

"Listen to me, Lovejoy—you can go just as far away as you want to," he said at last, "but you can't take the baby with you. Steve Ogilvay's never going to be a step-father to my son and don't you forget it!"

"Who's going to stop him?" asked Lovejoy, slangy and impudent and defiant. "And who says I can't have my baby if I leave you?"

"I do," Tom said simply. "I won't let you have a divorce if you ever try to take the baby out of this house!—I'll take those letters and that telegram that Hilda gave me last night into court. And any judge in the country would give me my kid—just on the strength of those two letters and the things that Hilda knows about you."

Lovejoy knew right then that she was beaten. She knew that he meant what he said—and that there were no lengths to which he wouldn't go to keep young Tom.

Phones Steve

After that she had no heart to go to see Steve Ogilvay.

Late that afternoon she telephoned him.

"I was coming to see you," she said to him. "Things are in such a knot, Steve. Tom's found out about you and me—and I'm afraid to come to your office. I'll call you up in a few days."

That was the thing to do, she decided. To let things slide—

"I'm going out of town for two or three weeks—on business," Steve's voice came crisply to her over the wire. "In the meantime you make up your mind what to do, won't you, Lovejoy?"

She said she would and hung up.

She spent the rest of the gray, wet day in bed.

How can I give up my baby? Lovejoy asked of the unpaid-for curtains and the silk-covered chairs in her luxurious room. She cried herself to sleep that night.

The next morning was a morning of rare sunshine, of blue skies and of silvery-white clouds.

Her heart felt as light as a cloud when she opened her eyes and looked out upon the rain-washed grass and leaves.

She stretched, thinking how pleasant it was to be there with the fresh appetizing smell of Norrie's coffee in her nostrils and the distant whistling of Tom in the shower-bath in her ears.

Why should I change all this? she asked herself lazily. I have my home and my baby—and Tom really isn't going to be as poor as he says he's going to be—and I can keep Steve hanging around as long as I want him.

If she married him he might lose some of the adoration he had for her—just as Tom had.

At nine Aline came running in, fresh and smooth and fragrant in white handkerchief-linen and one of the new white berets. She didn't look a minute over twenty, and she was bubbling over with life and gayety.

"Don't forget this is my day to have the Wednesday bridge club, Sugar!" she said, bursting into the bedroom. "I'm on my way downtown to buy some score cards and a guest prize—Hop out of bed and come along with me—"

And so once more Lovejoy found herself back in the old pathway—the pathway that led from bridge tables to cocktail parties and French Style Shoppes and then back again.

Beauty Ultimately Finds Its Halo on the Screen, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

IT IS said that one of our most popular and beautiful stars of the screen was once a humble worker in a barber shop.

Another, with regal air and stately charms, it is said, was a waitress in a small lunch counter.

Which only proves that beauty must be staged to be appreciated.

Those who discovered these lovely girls in their lesser sphere had the true appreciation of beauty.

But there are thousands of girls in stores and offices who have all the perfection of features, charm, grace and personality of stars, yet those about them do not seem to see it.

Men fall head over heels in love with girls even less attractive but who are more advantageously presented on the stage or screen.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Leslie Was Not the Cause of Mary's 'Need' for Money

BOTH Dicky and Harry Underwood rose quickly from their chairs as Mary came into the room. They sometimes omit this courteous gesture when as her uncle expresses it "she is flying in and out so often that only a jumping jack could keep up with her." But I knew that their present promptness had its roots in their fear that she might guess we had been discussing her. My own camouflage was a sincerely concerned exclamation.

"Mary, child, you're covered with snow!"

"Yes. Isn't it gorgeous?" she laughed and, though I scrutinized her face closely, I could see no sign of the rebellion, even suffering which had been reflected in it when she was talking to me before her uncle's homecoming. Either her histrionic ability was standing her in good stead, I told myself, or else my imagination had exaggerated the importance of her outburst.

I was afraid it would all melt off before I got up here to show it to you," she rattled on, "but Lewis shot me up in a hurry. I'm quite proud of myself—regular North Pole adventurer, I am."

She spun around on her toes, and I knew that she was perfectly aware what a beautiful picture she made with her fur coat and small hat covered with snow and framing her glowing face and brilliant brown eyes. She could not help but know also that the eyes watching her were friendly, admiring ones, and I said to myself that she needed no oral confirmation of those truths from me. But she did need an admonition, and I gave it crisply.

"Mary, take off your wraps before that snow melts. You can't risk getting damp and chilled with your voice, you know."

She laid her packages upon the table and stripped the coat and hat off obediently, shook the snow from them and spread them over the radiator to dry. Then she turned to me with a saucy little moue.

"Much good the old voice is doing me," she said. "Maybe I'd better get it hoarse. I might get a job as helper to a fruit huckster and yell 'Strawberries and watermelons.'"

It was burlesque of the more serious note she had struck with me before Dickey had come in. Mr. Underwood twisted his face into a grimace of apparent disgust.

"Haven't you any heart, girl," he asked, "twittering about eats like those on a day like this? But do these old eyes deceive me, or did you put mail upon that thar table with the parcels?"

"Oh, I forgot," Mary said contritely. "Yes, there are letters there with the things Uncle Dicky sent me out to buy. There are four of them, all for Aunt Lillian, and one of them is in Marion's fist. May I not take them over to her? I'm crazy to hear what Marion has to say and I don't dare to stay around when Uncle Dicky unwraps those things he sent to me to buy. That haberdasher is the most fiendish thing—his wares are simply awful."

"Then you'd better run along," her uncle told her, "for when I'm crossed about a collar you know I'm a cruel brute. How about it, Harry? It's nearly dinner time. Don't you think Lil can be wakened now?"

"Of course," Mr. Underwood agreed promptly. "Tell her I'm over here, Mary. I'll be over in a few minutes."

As the door closed behind Mary both men looked at me.

"Did I understand you to say," Dicky asked incredulously, "that you thought Mary had seen Jack Leslie?"

"I don't know." I returned truthfully, and, indeed, I was ashamed of the doubt of the girl that had come to me. "It's only this" and swiftly I told them of Mary's stormy announcement that she wanted to get a job in a chorus or somewhere coupled with her admission that she needed money.

"She was so evasive about it," I finished, "or so I imagined, that when you spoke of having seen Jack Leslie I wondered if he might not have met her and tried to threaten or cajole her into dancing with him again. But since she came back from her errands I see I must have been mistaken."

"I imagine you were," Harry Underwood said slowly. "I don't believe Leslie would dare such quick and crude stuff as that. His is more a wailing game. No, I think you can credit Mary's outburst to nerves and natural resentment against Phil Veritzen. By the way, I'd give half a sig to know where that old lad is sticking his head in the sand. You and I are going to be up against it to know what to do with his productions if he stays away much longer and gives no sign of his whereabouts."

"I know," I agreed listlessly, for at that moment I felt I did not care whether or not Philip Veritzen ever came back to his offices. "But tell me, do you think Jack Leslie has anything to do with this threatening long-distance call of which I was just telling you?"

"No, I don't," Harry Underwood answered promptly. That reference to me settles that. I'm not sure, but I think it's an aftermath of that Kenelica thing. We took care of all the big snakes, but some of the little ones wriggled through. They're not really dangerous, but they could give a nasty sting if they got the opportunity. But there's nothing to be done except wait and see what they're trying to cook up; probably only trying to give me a bad hour or two. That's their idea of pleasure—to frighten people. But remember, not a word to Lil."

"Why not?" asked Lillian coolly from the door.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Women Are Like That!

WHEN a man can't offer a woman dollars and cents, he will often be surprised to see how far a little flattery and incense will go.

It isn't those men who "loved and rode away" that a woman remembers most regretfully, but those who MIGHT have loved—but rode straight past.

According to a recent judicial decision, a wife has the right to life, liberty and the privilege of calling her husband on the office telephone a hundred times a day. Which apparently, doesn't leave the husband any chance of life or liberty at all.

Sometimes a man's "homesickness" is nothing more nor less than a matter of feeling sick at the thought of having to go there.

A man will sometimes nobly sacrifice a great love for the sake of conscience or duty—but it's awfully hard for him to relinquish a brand-new little spring flirtation, which has just begun to be interesting.

Don't let the milliners persuade you that looking glasses are no longer reliable and that gray hair is "becoming to such a young face," dear heart. Just turn the pink lights down low and go in for black velvet and pearls. You're not sick—you're forty!

Somehow, most of this modern synthetic love-making seems to be right in unison with the age of paper napkins, paper drinking cups, canned music and gas-logs.

A man doesn't fall in love any more; he merely dallies cautiously around the edge of it, until some girl comes along with enough enterprise to shove him in.

Flattery costs nothing—and one way to keep your wife from spending a lot of money at the beauty parlor might be to tell her now and then, how young and pretty she looks.

To Polish Silverware

The housewife has many other more pleasant ways of whiling away the shining hours than to polish silver. Here's a bright way of putting aside the paste and powder. Put forks and spoons into a basin of hot soapy water with a little soda dissolved in it. Wash carefully, brushing forks between the prongs, and drying thoroughly on a dry cloth. They will put on their most glittering table manners.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, February 18.

A GENERALLY prosperous and pleasant state of affairs is predicted from prevailing auguries, but there is also prospect of intriguing and perplexing developments. Be careful with all writings and agreements, shun litigation, accident and subtle conditions.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward for a year of much opportunity and many advantages. But they should shun quarrels, litigation and danger through writings. Personal affairs will be intriguing and flourish despite some singular complications.

A child born on this day should have many splendid talents and accomplishments making for success and happiness in life.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchok and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play, "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

CHAPTER XIII

"I'm afraid," murmured Mrs. Forbes, clutching Dulcy's arm excitedly, "if Roger ever finds out that I knew about this elopement—I don't know what he will do."

"Do? Why he'll congratulate you," Dulcy told her with complete assurance. "All the world loves a lover, you know," she added gaily.

Mrs. Forbes was growing more panicky by the minute, and when she heard voices of men approaching, she gave one startled gasp and started tip-toeing upstairs.

Even Dulcy's serene composure vanished and she too took to flight, but not quite quickly enough.

"I'm sorry about the billiard table," Gordon was saying in the most abject, apologetic tone. "Doesn't matter, I assure you," Forbes' voice fairly bristled with aggravation. "It was quite a novel experience trying to play billiards up and down hill. I may never feel the same about the game again."

Their voices were coming closer and closer and Dulcy huddled against the wall wondering whether to flee or face them.

"Probably I can have the table fixed before you go," Gordon went on, trying to placate him.

Dulcy Flees

"I doubt it," Forbes answered gruffly, just as they came in sight. "I may be called back to town any minute on important business."

Forbes took one startled look at his wife, who was trying to drift up the stairs with studied nonchalance, and knew that something was wrong.

"There's nothing the matter," Dulcy assured him in a quavering voice before he could even ask, thereby making matters a little worse. "We were just going upstairs?"

"Eleanor," his voice boomed in a tone of command.

There was no escape for Mrs. Forbes, but Dulcy scuttled off up the stairs like a wild animal that has heard a gun.

"Eleanor, I want to talk to you."

There are moments when even the bravest soul looks for the nearest exit, leaving women and and children to fight for themselves. Van Dyke and Gordon almost collided in the rush to the kitchen door. Many a braver man has sought a drink under such circumstances.

"Who won the billiard game?" Mrs. Forbes asked brightly when she recovered her composure somewhat.

"Miss Parker," he answered violently.

Forbes Is Angry

Mrs. Forbes could not keep her eyes off the staircase. At any moment now the elopers would come hurrying down and be caught. She edged over to a corner of the room, hoping to maneuver her husband into a corner from which he could not see the hall. She was sure he suspected something.

"What's the matter, dear?" she asked finally, unable to stand the strain any longer. She might as well face his wrath now as to remain in suspense.

"What's the matter?" he repeated so breathless with rage that he could hardly get the words out, "Why I—the—"

"Nothing has happened has it?" She was sure now that he knew the worst.

"Happened!" he exploded, "I should say it has. I go in there to play a game of billiards. I think that finally I am going to get 10 minutes of pleasure out of this insufferable week-end. And what do I find?"

That is just what Mrs. Forbes wanted to know. It was some time before she gathered from his random remarks that all he had found was an unsteady billiard table. But even that could not restore her calm, for now he was off on another tangent.

"You don't care what happens to me. You just go ahead carrying on with that fellow Van Dyke."

It was useless to remind him that Van Dyke had been with him all evening.

"And where's Angela? A fine person you are to look after Angela. I suppose she is out gallivanting with that scenario-writing nincompoop. More of Miss Parker's work. I saw the way she threw them together."

"Imagine if we had a fellow like that in the family! That's about what will happen if you encourage her like this. And I want you to know that if anything comes of this—if you let her go on seeing him—I never want to see her again. Or you either!"

Forbes was pacing the floor again. Back and forth. Back and forth, kicking the edge of the rug viciously as he passed. Each time that he reached the far corner of the room, Mrs. Forbes drew a sigh of relief. Each time that he came in sight of the hall and the staircase beyond, her heart almost stopped beating. Each moment she fancied that she heard footsteps—and doom—approaching.

Intends to Leave

Forbes suddenly stopped pacing the floor, and faced her defiantly.

"I'm not going to spend a night in this house. I'm not going to stay her and be driven crazy by that woman. Trying to make me play golf and ride horseback! Telling me what is good for me! I'd like to tell her what's good for her! Murder would be almost too good!"

"What are you going to do?" she asked feebly.

"Do!" he fairly exploded. "I'm going home. Just what I would have done after I had been here five minutes if I had had any sense. But I wanted to talk business to Gordon. And I thought even that chattering magpie would shut up long enough to make it possible eventually."

"That's the kind of friends you and Angela pick up!"

Mrs. Forbes was sure she heard footsteps in the hall. She looked around frantically for another door. She would never dare take him into the garden, he would be sure to see Angela and Vincent heading for the garage.

Charlie, dear, just go upstairs and lie down for a while," she urged in an effort to quiet him.

He shook her hand from his arm as if it had been a burning hot coal. Up and down, back and forth, he paced again.

Suddenly, Dulcy appeared in the doorway, smiling, radiant. If she heard what he said it didn't bother her at all, for at least the elopers were safe, stealing quietly toward the front door from the hall behind her.

She giggled nervously as she stood there at a loss, for once, for something to say.

Elopement Stopped

"Where's Angela?" he finally demanded gruffly.

"I—oh—why she's right here."

Taken by surprise, Duley waved a hand in the direction of the hall, calling:

"Angela, come here a minute. Your father wants you."

Angela and Vincent could hardly believe their ears. There they were, almost at the door to freedom, and Duley, who had promised to help them, called them back. There was nothing to do so they hurriedly stowed their bags and wraps in a hall closet and came in the room, a little breathless.

"Angela, where have you been?"

"Oh, just around—with Mr. Leach."

"Well—" Mr. Forbes gave his words the solemnity of a decision handed down from the bench. "I want you to stay right here beside me the rest of the evening."

Angela cast one appealing look at Dulcy. There was a desperate chance that she might still be able to help her. But Gordon came in just then, and under pretext of fondling her tenderly, whispered fiercely, "For heaven's sake, Dulcy, don't do anything. Just let everyone be quiet for a while."

"Oh, it's much too early," Dulcy announced to everyone at large. "Just give me a moment and I will think of something for us all to do."

Gordon had a hunch that whatever she suggested would be wrong. And Gordon was right.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Sandwich Technique

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A friend and I were discussing table manners the other day and I evidently have been under the wrong impression as to certain things, one of them being the correct way to eat a sandwich when in a restaurant. I have always thought it was permissible to eat a sandwich using both the knife and fork, cutting the sandwich into small sections and eating it with the fork. My friend says this is a breach of etiquette, but until I see your answer in print I will still retain a little pride. (The sandwich is not moist.)

ANXIOUS.

YOU are absolutely correct in your sandwich eating technic. And I am proud of your maintaining that it is correct to eat a sandwich with both the knife and fork. The most punctilious eaters always do this.

Certainly this manner of eating couldn't be "a breach of etiquette," as your friend maintains. How could it be, since by eating the sandwich in this way, we would, logically, be using the most careful manners? The use of the knife and fork surely keeps our fingers from becoming even the slightest bit soiled.

Should Take Gift.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am a young man of 20 and have been invited to a young woman's birthday party. Will you please tell me if it is necessary for me to take her a gift? I have always considered this the right thing to do, but yesterday a friend told me that the male guests at the party should not take gifts and that this part is left to women at the party. Please enlighten me on this matter, and if I should take a gift, what would you suggest? J. F. F.

BY all means, a gentleman should take a gift to the birthday party. It would indeed be most unsallant and downright discourteous to allow the women to make all the attractive gestures. I should think that men who do this would feel cheap! The point is that the gentlemen should take such gifts as are appropriate for gentlemen to give ladies, a box of flowers, or even better, a corsage, or a box of candy, or, if the young lady plays the piano, a group of interesting new songs, or always appropriate, too, the well-chosen book.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sound Health Depends in Great Measure on Feet

IT IS OF tremendous importance to the general welfare of the body that we have well-developed sound feet. Yet civilized man has not done very well for his feet. It is fortunate for us that no other part of the body is so long suffering as these useful members.

DR COPELAND

How many thousand times a day does the foot go up and down the earth, carrying all the weight of the body? These feet of ours are hard workers.

Have you seen a Marathon runner with his feet of wings carrying him steadily, miles and miles, to victory? He couldn't succeed without good feet.

The toe dancer performs with that marvelous piece of mechanism that turns, pivots, dances with ethereal lightness to the musical rhythm of the orchestra! Training of the feet has made this possible.

Why not get acquainted with your feet? Take a good look at it and learn to appreciate it! Right below your ankle is a piece of anatomic structure the like of which you cannot find the world over. Bend, twist, turn it, and the foot moves smoothly. It is flexible and strong.

There are twenty-six bones there, connected by more than four times that number of ligaments. There are endless muscles that play over one another in perfect harmony. This complicated mass of bones, ligaments, muscles, nerves and blood vessels is marvelously arranged so as to enable the foot to bear the body weight, and to permit its owner to walk, run and jump with ease and grace.

The constructions of the foot is on the plan of a double arch. One arch runs the length of the foot, while the other arch runs across it. These arches give spring to our motions. They absorb the shock as the foot strikes the ground. Underneath these arches are the protected nerves and blood vessels.

Proper care of the feet is a matter of intelligence. There is the necessity, first of all, of cleanliness. Wastes and impurities of the body pass in the form of perspiration from the feet and the oil glands pour out secretions, so that it is imperative that feet and stockings are kept clean and shoes changed often. After bathing the feet can breathe again.

In walking, do you swing along easily and gracefully—toes straight ahead? Many people do not. The American Indian is a splendid specimen of physical beauty as he runs swiftly along, toes straight ahead, in the direction he is moving. We may take a lesson from him. That is the correct way to stand or walk or run.

Flat feet and weak arches are prevented by walking with the toes pointed straight ahead. In case you have been wearing too high heels for comfort and efficiency, you may have backache or other aches, and lower-heeled shoes will probably be indicated. In such a case, reduce the height of the heel gradually and take proper foot exercises. Walk and be healthy.

GALES HAMPER BYRD RESCUERS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 17. (AP.)—The captain of the ship Eleanor Bolling, en route to take Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's expedition out of the Antarctic, sent word here today that he was encountering strong gales with heavy seas and even with favorable conditions could not reach the ice-pack before the week-end.

He gave his position as 440 miles south of the Otago Heads.

Raymond Mercola, the Byrd expedition's supply officer, was here today and said that barely a week remained before the ice-pack was expected to freeze solid, possibly imprisoning the expedition's 70 members. He added that the Eleanor Bolling had not a day to waste if it was to reach the group on time.

Mercola said that if the expedition returned to Dunedin it would probably leave for New York as soon as possible. It is understood here that Admiral Byrd intends to return to the United States by mail steamer and later join the Eleanor Bolling at Panama.

It had been proposed to leave 10 men at the base and send an expedition back next summer, Mercola added, but the members were getting tired and the scientists were eager to get back to the United States and publish their data.

PAIR ADRIFT IN LIFEBOAT DIE

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Two of the four sailors of the Eastern Transportation Company coal barge which foundered off the Delaware Capes Sunday, were frozen to death in a lifeboat 14 miles southwest of the Five Fathom Lightship at 6:40 a. m. today by U. S. Coast Guard patrol boat No. 218, according to Boatswain George Walker, of the base here.

It was first reported that all four of the missing men were aboard the lifeboat, but when the Coast Guard vessel reached port it was found two of the members of the barge's crew were missing.

Some doubt was thrown about the identity of the missing barge today, as the men were found in a lifeboat marked "Carroll," while it was reported the missing boat bore the name of "Merrill."

The missing barge was one of three being towed to New York by the tug Monrose. All three broke their tow ropes during a fierce gale yesterday, but the two other vessels were recovered. An all-night search failed to locate the missing boat.

DREYFUS DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—James E. Dowd, of Chicago, who had been reported as having information that might connect the death of Mrs. Aurelia Dreyfus with the unsolved murder of Dot King, "Broadway butterfly," today said he believed Mrs. Dreyfus was killed accidentally.

Dowd denied he had said he could give the grand jury investigating Mrs. Dreyfus' death "startling testimony."

Mrs. Dreyfus, a witness in the long investigation into the Dot King slaying, fell from the porch of a boat club in Washington in 1928 and was injured fatally.

A coroner's jury decided her death was an accident, but an investigation was ordered after relatives had told officials they believed she might have met foul play because of her knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the King murder.

FLIER SETS NEW ALTITUDE MARK

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 17.—(INS.)—The world's altitude record for light airplanes rested in America's possession today following the feat of Pilot B. F. (Barney) Zimmerley in climbing his Barling monoplane to an unofficial altitude of 27,250 feet yesterday.

Two sealed barographs carried by Zimmerley and recording marks of 27,800 and 26,700 feet were sent to Washington for official checking by the National Aeronautic Association. Until these records are approved Zimmerley's record will remain unofficial.

The flight broke the old record of 22,500 feet for light planes which was established by Paul Baumer, of Germany, July 8, 1927.

ENFORCEMENT FUND BOOSTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Backing the administration's law enforcement program, the House Appropriations Committee today recommended extraordinary appropriations of more than $2,000,000 for these activities of the Department of Justice and Coast Guard.

The amounts were carried in the first deficiency bill, totaling $48,151,854. The measure also carried millions of veteran hospitals and other federal construction work.

Raising the annual budget of the Department of Justice, already voted, by $2,000,000, the committee provided for expansion of federal prisons and increased work of bureau of investigation and United States marshals' offices.

The committee recommended $260,000 for the purchase of 30 small boats to be used by the coast guard in suppressing liquor and other sumggling on the Great Lakes.

The committee recommended a $240,000 increase for the Federal Trade Commission to speed the "power trust," chain store, newsprint paper, cotton seed and peanut price investigations under way.

A request of the employment service for $50,000 to establish special veterans offices was cut to $23,000. Cities tentatively chosen for these offices include Pittsburgh.

Hindenburg Receives Nationlist Leader

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—President Von Hindenburg, who has made it a custom as a matter of principle always to be willing "to hear the other side," today received Dr. Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, who submitted his party's frequently expressed objections to the Young plan and the German-Polish agreement.

2 Hold Up Village Bank, Get $2,000

WILMINGTON, O., Feb. 17.—(INS.)—Two young and shabbily-dressed masked bandits entered the Port William National Bank at Port William Village, near here, held up and bound assistant cashier James S. Yount, the only employe in the bank at the time, and escaped with $2,000 in cash, shortly before noon today.

RUM SHIP SEEN OWNED IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—That there is "considerable evidence" that I'm Alone, sunk as a rum runner in the Gulf of Mexico several months ago by the Coast Guard was "owned in the United States by a New York bootlegger," was asserted in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee on the first deficiency bill, reported today.

Testimony was given by William R. Vallance, assistant to the solicitor of the State Department.

"As far as the testimony of witnesses is concerned," he said, "of course, we have an interest in sending before the Tribunal the dummy stockholders of the Canadian Corporation in whose name the I'm Alone is registered. We have considerable evidence that the I'm Alone was owned in the United States by a New York bootlegger."

State Department officials asked the committee to include in the measure an item to cover the cost of arbitrating the controversy which arose between Canada and this government over the shooting.

George Wharton Pepper, former United States Senator from Pennsylvania, Vallance said, had been engaged to represent this government in the arbitration.

Half of Old-Sized Currency Retired

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—More than half of the old paper currency has been taken out of circulation and replaced with the new size bills since they were first issued last July.

Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee on the first deficiency bill, G. O. Barnes, assistant treasurer, said that of $696,000,000 in national bank notes in circulation, $410,000,000 had been replaced by the new currency.

15 More Servants For Hoover Asked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Hoover hospitality has made necessary addition of more servants to the White House staff.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, director of public buildings, asked appropriations on the basis of 77 employes this year, as compared with 62 last year, in hearings on the first deficiency bill.

White House Fire Still Mystery, Official Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—The fires which swept the White House executive offices and slightly damaged the Capitol during the holiday season still remain mysteries.

The House Appropriations Committee, seeking light on the fires in hearings on appropriations for repairs, closely questioned Col. U. S. Grant, director of public buildings, and David Lynn, architect of the Capitol.

The White House fire, Grant said, either started in the attic room from spontaneous combustion or cleaning materials or from a spark coming from the flue of the fireplace in the office of Secretary Newton. The Capitol fire, originating in the artist's model room, was either caused by spontaneous combustion or a cigaret, according to Lynn.

Missing Czarist Leader Feared Soviet Captive

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 17.—(INS.)—The first tangible clue as to the whereabouts of Gen. Alexei Koutiepoff, leader of the former Imperial Russian army in exile, who has been missing for three weeks, came to light here today.

Refugees arriving from Moscow declare that agents of the Ogpu, Soviet secret police, received an "important prisoner from abroad" on the night of February 6.

As this date is soon after the general's disappearance from Paris, it is assumed the "important prisoner" is none other than the missing czarist leader.

For the past three weeks a systematic search had been made throughout Europe for the missing general. Two alleged eye-witnesses told Paris police they saw the general kidnaped by three men while walking near his home. And the belief immediately was expressed that the kidnapers were agents of the Soviet police.

Thousands of exiled Russians now domiciled in Paris acknowledge Koutiepoff as their leader and they made strenuous demands of the French authorities to leave no stone unturned in an effort to determine his whereabouts.

CHICKIE

wrapped the old pink worsted shawl about her, felt cautiously down the hall to the living room. She turned back the window shade, peeking through the narrow crack.

Street empty, wind hollering through alleyways, rushing tornbits of paper about the lamppost. Then a couple sauntering arm in arm, leisurely, as though time had forgotten to pass.

An automobile honked. Jennie's hand tightened on the shade. The machine went skimming past.

Jimmy, swinging around the corner, hurried past. She watched him with gentle eyes—that dear boy, Jimmy.

Gone—a bleak loneliness in the street . . . a chill whispering. She tightened the shawl about her, rubbed her cold feet one against the other.

But she stood there, holding fast to the curtain, peering through the crack. Half past one and then it was two.

She was afraid to go back to bed. And she was wild with terror lest Jonathan awaken. It was 2 o'clock and Chickie had not come.

In the limousine she sat in front with Jake Munson. He greeted her exuberantly: "So we have little Rachel with us, after all. We woo her seven years and at last we get a smile." His laugh came deeply, as from a joyous spring within. She could see the flash of white, even teeth.

Beauty and luxury—she sank down in the soft cushions. She closed her eyes happily as they rolled toward Westchester.

They swerved into an enchanted garden. They stepped into the glowing heart of color and music.

Chickie held back a sigh of rapture. Her eyes passed with an exquisite thrill from the warm hangings and the lamps to the wide stairways; from this to the careless, brilliant forms swaying in the dance. Life—charming and beautiful, just as she had dreamed.

They waited as the men checked their hats. Beside Janina there was another girl, tall, tailor made, with a clean, brushed back look. This was Ida Larkin. She wore black spangles, cut severe, queenly. On each forefinger she had an immense ring of black onyx. Very otherwise, Chickie thought it.

Janina, too, was in black, with a daring orange feather caught in the girdle below the waist. Striking—to. Brilliant and intelligent—Janina looked tonight. She touched Chickie lightly on the arm—ran her fingers over Chickie's skin:

"Well—glad you're here?"

"Oh, love it!"

"Of course. New dress. Look angelic. All dolled even to the shoes. Huh—all alike, aren't we! All slaves when a fellow like Jake snaps his fingers!"

Chickie's eyes kept up their smile; her lips parted. She was afraid to speak—afraid of the tickling at her throat. Janina laughed—soft, biting. She said with her eyes mocking, "I'll say they're worth it."

The men were coming over. Jake was smiling—at her. He towered over the others. Ida Larkin's husband — a slight, very natty man, and the other—dumpy, rotund little fellow with merry eyes, red face, half bald. They called him "Nicky." Every one was very affectionate to Nicky. In return he dispensed favors and smiles without discrimination.

Nicky, as it happened, was one of those agreeable, sociable old bachelors who fight shy of marriage all their lives—more persistently than other men—and in escaping capture by one woman, they are used, abused, petted and laughed at by all the rest. He went wagging along now at the side of Jake.

Chickie wondered if he was to be her partner. Old fellow of forty. She felt a little twinge of contempt. Then Jake offered his arm. He bent his head, giving a low sound, half laugh, half challenge, "Now for fun and frolic!"

She remembered the song from the "Merry Widow." This Jake Munson, with his magnificent presence, his vital animal joy of life, reminded her of the prince.

As they entered the dining room the comparison became vivid. He walked in like a king, head thrown back, black eyes and scarlet lips all flashing. He was greeted like a king. At half a dozen tables the faces of women lighted up; men bowed as though proud to be acknowledged by this great, splendid fellow.

Chickie's pulse beat rapidly with elation. She forgot Janina and her mean, degrading taunt. She walked through an atmosphere that glittered; drew in breaths that sparkled. She felt herself charged as though electric shocks were mildly and brightly darting through her.

"So your name is Chickie?" Munson, holding her chair, gave her a pleased, happy look as though she belonged to him and he wished everyone in the room to know it.

"No! My name is Helen. It's only my father and people like that who call me 'Chickie.'"

"Then count me one of the 'people like that,' will you?"

"But they've all known me a long, long time."

"We'll know each other a long time. I promise you—longer than that."

Janina, sitting at Jake's left, leaned forward, pushing a small cup toward him. "Fill it, Jake, but don't promise rashly. Chickie is young and innocent. She'll believe you. Remember, new violets every yea , Jake!"

He gave her a quick, mocking glance, poured clean, golden liquor into her little cup. But he looked full at Chickie, saying with his red lips laughing, "We drink to the one that is blooming tonight!"

He took a sip—passed the cup to Chickie. Janina's eyes flashed with a tense, hard eagerness. She watched and smiled.

"Now," said Jake, "Well dance."

She glided through the rythm, surprised at the wild brightness that sang in her heart. She was here. She had worried the whole afternoon and there was not a thing to worry about—just music—just sweet sparkling gayety.

Jake hummed as he danced. At the foot of the stairs he stopped, looking down upon her glowing face. "You were never here before, Miss Bryce?"

"Who told you so?"

"Yourself. Let's wander upstairs, because I want you to tell me some other things. I want to know why you've kept me waiting nearly a year—"

He saw the quick misgiving in her hesitation; in her short question: "What is upstairs?"

His laugh rang out. "Oh—so Janina's been telling you I grab girls off the great highway and burn them at the stake has she? Well, there's nothing upstairs but a corridor, a few card rooms and more dining rooms. Did she give me such a black eye as that?"

"Well—Janina believes all men are devils—so of course you couldn't be an exception. She thinks the only thing for a girl to do is to light a hotter fire quick. Burn men to cinders first! That's her belief."

"Is it yours?"

"No—you see, I've heard as how one man in every 10 is an angel, and—"

"You're waiting for the tenth? Is it wings you want from life, Miss Bryce?"

"Well, I don't know, Mr. Munson, if I want wings exactly—but something shiny and beautiful—not like what other people get—"

There flashed before her Lucy and her drudgery; the plaintive humdrum of little Jennie's days. Now Mary, with her lithe, buoyant figure gone—Mary, in a bulky brown coat with a scant little beaver collar.

Jake saw the young, eager hunger in Chickie's parted lips. His eyes bent warmly with a smile to hers. "It is beautiful tonight?"

"Yes."

"It can be beautiful like this for you every night. For a girl like you—"

"Why for me?"

"The world loves to toss flowers under lovely feet!"

"I haven't noticed it, Mr. Munson."

"You will. When you say you want something shiny and beautiful, do you mean money, clothes, automobiles?"

"I could use those things very nicely, but I'm not sure I want them first. I don't know—"

She did know. She was just then remembering the white flame that burned immortal in her thoughts; the flame young Arthur had first kindled when his lips had touched so lightly on hers; the flame Jimmy had a little touched.

How often even now in her imagination she watched sunsets with some magnificent other whose arm made a sweet hollow for her head.

Softly Jake Munson's hand covered hers. "You want love first?" Love, Miss Bryce? That's the shiny and beautiful thing. It's the easiest of all to give."

He spoke with murmured tenderness and met a spark in Chickie's eyes. She said, glancing into his rich, expectant face, No, it isn't, Mr. Munson, unless you mean the kind of love Janina always means."

"What kind is that?"

"The kind that doesn't pay."

"How do you know it doesn't pay?"

"Oh, I've watched other girls. They don't seem happy. They're always worried and scheming."

"And what is your kind of love, then, that pays so well?"

"I'm not sure, but when it comes I'll know it. It will be something strong and glorious, like a great wind blowing on a mountain top—just sweep you clear into the clouds."

"Suppose it doesn't come?"

"It will. I've always believed life had some wonderful, big dazzling joy tucked away in her pocket for me—"

She stopped abruptly, her finger pointing to the room below, her breath rapid. "Who is that dancing with Janina? Oh, they see us—"

A laughing face stared into hers.

"Barry Dunne," Jake answered. "Nice boy. Oh—you know him?"

Her cheeks stained red like a shout of guilt. Janina and Barry Dunne were coming up the stairs. Janina said: "A surprise for you, Chickie. Like it?"

Chickie glanced into pleasant eyes—green, flecked with amber—the very eyes that had drawn her so mightily across the alley. The red-haired young man winked merrily: "The chasm is bridged at last, Miss Bryce."

HEARING HELD ON ANNEXATION

Judge James H. Gray in Quarter Sessions Court today heard arguments on the annexation of parts of the Fourth and Eighth wards of Baldwin Township to the city. He will hand down his decision Wednesday.

Attorney Harry A. Jones, representing five township electors, maintained that a petition for annexation of about half of the Fourth Ward and one-third of the Eighth to the city was illegal because it had not held the signatures of 5 per cent of the residents of each ward.

Attorney John J. McGrath, representing the petitioners, said that 5 per cent of the electors of the territory involved had put their signatures to it.

Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, scheduled to preside in Criminal Court cases here this week, notified Judge Harry H. Rowand today that he will be unable to serve because of an urgent summons he has received from Harrisburg.

Judge Graff has been mentioned as the successor to Presiding Judge W. D. Porter, of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, who died last week.

JUDGE BEACOM DIES AT 70

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—James S. Beacom, 70, former Westmoreland County Orphans' Court judge, died suddenly a few hours after he had been one of the principal speakers at memorial services held by the Westmoreland Bar Association for Silas A. Kline, whose funeral was held Saturday afternoon. Beacom was a former member of the Legislature and had served as state treasurer.

He was a native of Westmoreland County and had always resided in Greensburg. He was graduated from Washington and Jefferson in 1880 and admitted to the bar in 1884.

Prominent as a Republican, Beacom had served as a delegate to two national conventions. He was Orphans' Court judge for two years, beginning with 1920.

He leaves his widow, the former Miss May H. Zimmers, of Blairsville, and four children.

PIRATES LEAVE TOMORROW

SPORT COMMENT

Ring Come-Back at 39. • Another Sprint Device.
Chances Against White. Faber Is Time Defier.

FIGHTER IDLE SIX YEARS TRIES AGAIN

CAN a fighter be absent from the ring more than six years and make a successful come back at the age of 39? That question lends no little interest to a bout scheduled for next Friday night in Chicago, in which Charley White will make his reappearance in the roped square against Frankie Hayes, of Philadelphia. White will be 39 on March 25. He hasn't fought since he knocked out Bobby Barrett in the sixth round of a tilt in Philadelphia on December 18, 1923. But physicians have pronounced him in excellent condition, the Illinois Boxing Commission has granted his application for a license, and Charley is all set for the first test in actual competition.

Charley White

There was no denying White's class in his heyday. He had a left hook that was packed with dynamite, he was a terror to champions and topnotchers in general, and once in 1920 he socked Benny Leonard with a force that spilled the lightweight title holder out of the ring and came within an ace of putting him away for the count. Pittsburgh fans got some first hand information as to Charley's ability in three bouts here. He met Dick DeSanders for six rounds on October 23, 1916; Johnny Ray for 10 rounds on May 27, 1922, and Jack Zivic for 10 rounds on June 11, 1923.

BUT all of that was in the long ago. White was much younger then and had been idle but a short time. That he can show a semblance of his old self at the age mark, and after so long a stay on the shelf, is to be doubted. Fighting at 39 has never been fashionable, to say nothing of the handicap that a six-year lay-off means.

True, there have been one or two exceptions to the age rule. Jem Mace was 39 when he came over from England in 1870 and won the heavyweight championship by defeating Tom Allen in 10 rounds at Kennerville, La. Bob Fitzsimmons was bordering on 35 when he beat Jim Corbett for the heavyweight title in 1897 at Carson City; he was 38 when he knocked out Jim Daly, Ed Dunkhorst, Gus Ruhlin and Tom Sharkey in a row in 1900 at New York, and he was 52 when he appeared in his last bout with K. O. Sweeny in 1914 at Williamsport.

MACE and Fitzsimmons, however, were two of the fistic marvels of all time. Not every generation produces such a ring wonder as either. And besides they hadn't been idle for six years when they achieved their big feats. They had worked steadily at their pugilistic trade.

So the chances appear to be largely against White's getting anywhere, though he is evidently sincere in his efforts. But Charley himself can't see it in that light. In fact, he even protests against references to his approaching bout as an attempted come back. He insists that he never went away.

Bob Fitzsimmons

"UNLIKE a lot of fighters who go into retirement, I won my last battle and there was no reason for me to quit boxing at that time," White declares. "I had been boxing for 18 years when I withdrew, and in that time I fought champions 36 times. I do not mean 36 different champions, but 12 different champions on 36 occasions. They were Frankie Conley, Abe Attell, Johnny Kilbane, Owen Moran, Ad Wolgast, Matt Wells, Jack Britton, Ted Lewis, Willie Ritchie, Freddie Welsh, Benny Leonard and Johnny Dundee.

"MOST of my bouts against the champions were no-decision contests, and the only way I could have won any title was by a knockout. And that was almost impossible because nearly all of the champions in those days carried their own referees, and were experienced enough to hold on or stall.

"Now that almost every state permits decisions, I feel that I have an opportunity to win a championship. Since my last bout I have been conducting a health studio for women, in addition to pursuing my studies at DePaul University. I have also made a greater study of the anatomy, and I feel that with my knowledge and my physical condition, medical authorities having pronounced the latter perfect, I am fit to meet any fighter of my weight in the world."

IT looked as if the Pirates would hold the spring record for number of candidates tried out at shortstop with five youngsters listed for inspection at Paso Robles in Dick Bartell, Charley Engle, Stuart Clarke, Ben Sankey and Floyd Young, but it develops that the Cleveland Indians will at least tie the Bucs in that respect.

For Roger Peckinpaugh also has a quintet of young shortstops lined up for a test at New Orleans. They are Carl Lind, Ray Gardner, John Burnett, Tony Piet and Jonah Goldman. Peck has found the filling of Joe Sewell's shoes at short quite as tough a job as Jewel Ens faces in plugging the gap between second and third for the Picaroons.

Charley Paddock

AS might have been expected, the decision of some of the amateur athletic powers to permit the continued use of foot blocks in sprinting contests has opened the way for the introduction of further appliances to aid the runners. To the Nicholson foot blocks have been added the Templeton hand blocks, providing rests or supports for the runner's hands while his feet are on the Nicholson starters, and now comes another starting method suggested by Lawson Robertson, of the University of Pennsylvania. The latest is a rope behind the starting line, the end of which the sprinter grasps while in an upright position awaiting the bark of the gun.

CHARLEY PADDOCK, former world sprint champion, though he has withdrawn from competition, makes it a point to remain in shape through practice and to keep in close touch with the game. He has been testing out all three of the new starting aids on the Pacific Coast and has some interesting views as to their relative merits and possibilities.

"There is no argument that the Nicholson foot blocks save the time formerly spent in digging holes and speed up races and meets," Paddock says. "They lift the runner's feet above the track, saving time formerly lost in coming out of holes, and they give the sprinter better leverage in the fact that the feet are higher.

"BUT why not use the Templeton hand blocks, too? They are just as much of a help because the foot blocks alone give a cramped feeling at the start. There's too much of a strain with the feet higher in the air. Raise the hands five or six inches with the Templeton hand blocks and help the cause still further.

"However, I think Robertson's rope is the best method of them all. Robertson says that if they're really trying to make the start faster they ought to go the limit. The rope places the runner in an upright position similar to that used by the old professionals in their standing starts, but it also includes the feature of enabling the runner to get his feet in position in international sham-

WESTMINSTER HOLDS TOP IN CONFERENCE

By JESS CARVER.

The chief results of last week's college basketball party or parties seem to be a flock of headaches for some of our better known coaches. The entire week was a headache in one way or the other for most everyone, only about three of the tristate institutions escaping without putting their figurative noses into trouble.

Probably the most interesting development of the program was the leap into the victory column of the Carnegie Tech varsity, which, after losing 11 in a row, cracked Dutch Hermann's Penn Staters squarely on the old beezer last day night. The triumph over the Lions was encouraging, to say the least, to Coach Ralph Hogan. It was also encouraging to the boys, and to all followers of the Banner of Carnegie.

DUTCH DROPS PAIR

One of the most headachy headaches is being sported by Brother Hermann, the syncopated State mentor. His Lions cracked up twice while in our midst, losing to Pitt and Tech. One headache more or less fails to worry the Dutchman, so he'll probably recover early. In fact, he evidenced unmistakable signs of convalescing as early as Sunday morning.

Westminster solidified its position at the top of the Tristate Conference standing by beating Waynesburg in the only league start the Titans made. The United Presbyterians also beat off Allegheny and Wash-Jeff in the other games of a busy week.

Pitt had only Penn State to get by and enjoyed a week of more or less rest. West Virginia was thumped by the Dukes, but recovered nobly and served Geneva a lacing Saturday. Wash-Jeff broke even, losing to Westminster but winning from Carnegie.

ALLEGHENY LOSES

So now we turn to the northern brethern. Grove City, Thiel and Allegheny. The Grovers walloped Thiel and Allegheny. Thiel won its first Conference game by beating Waynesburg and Allegheny lost to Westminster. Not much to excite oneself over there, save to mention that Allegheny has a better ball club than its record might indicate.

This week's action begins tonight with St. Francis and St. Vincent's being scheduled to wear their Irish hearts out against one another at Latrobe. Tomorrow, two local teams will see action, Pitt meeting Wash-Jeff in a Big Four game at Washington and the Dukes entertaining Waynesburg in a Conference struggle up on the Bluff.

INVITATIONS OUT

Invitations for Carnegie Tech's fourteenth annual interscholastic track and field meet and special relay events went out to hundreds of high schools in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York and Ohio today. Graduate Manager Clarence Overend announces that the event will be held at Tech Field on Saturday, May 3.

NEGOTIATIONS DROPPED

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Graduate Manager A. A. McDonald has announced negotiations have been dropped by Westminster basketball officials for a return basketball game with Waynesburg. Coach John Lawther, basketball mentor, and college officials decided the present schedule was an ample test for the Titans, McDonald said.

Locals to Play For Squash Titles

Dave Gilmore, of the Allegheny Country Club, and Percy Siverd, of the P. A. A., have been named to represent Pittsburgh in the singles play of the annual National squash racquets championship tournament, to be held in Chicago next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, while a team made up of Frank White, of the Keystone A. C., captain; W. Mc C. Reed, of the P. A. A., George L. Blocking, of the Keystone A. C.; J. Scott Burke, of the P. A. A., and A. W. Hamilton, of the P. A. A., will compete for the team championship.

The party will leave Thursday and will be accompanied by Ben Pope, squash professional at the Keystone A. C., and possibly Harry Heinsworth, athletic director of the Keystone A. C.

Elliott, Former Major Leaguer, Taken in Raid

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Harold E. (Rowdy) Elliott, former major league baseball player, was arrested Saturday on charges of violating the national prohibition laws as proprietor of an Ellis street restaurant, although he insisted he was only a patron.

Elliott, former catcher for the Boston and St. Louis teams, was released on $1,000 bail and will be arraigned today before a United States commissioner.

FIRST CORSAIR SQUAD SET FOR START

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Hustle and bustle incident to a big departure were in evidence at Pirate headquarters today, the usual activity having to do with the jump off of the Buccaneer advance guard tomorrow night. Officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad advised the Pirate bosses that plans are complete for taking the party on the first leg of the journey. The little group of athletes, with a half dozen others, will leave Pittsburgh at 9:30 o'clock. Chicago will be reached early Wednesday morning, the plans calling for a transfer of the travelers to the Santa Fe station, from which they will head for Los Angeles.

When Pirate officials formed the early group the name of Burleigh Grimes was included, but the holdout star will not be in tomorrow's sailing list.

SPLIT ON CONTRACT

Grimes and his employers are split wide open on the question of a two-year contract. Moreover, much of the time of the star pitcher is being taken up with his impending divorce suit.

As the first squad made ready to leave it was considered even cubital as to whether Grimes would be straightened out in time to depart with the second squad of Pirates which is due to move out of Pittsburg one week from Wednesday night. The contract question is serious enough without the handicap of his domestic ill.

Vice President Sam Dreyfuss has declared that Grimes, considerable cogitals that Burleigh will not be given a two-year contract. The moist ball star, on the other hand, says he has his mind set on a document of this classification and there the stubborn matter rests.

Manager Ens does not seem to be greatly worried over the turn of events involving his ace of the mound. The new pilot figures that something will develop to bring Grimes to the Paso Robles camp and Jewel is going ahead with his training preparations as though everything were as merry as a wedding bell.

IN CAMP SATURDAY

The advance guard is due to reach the training camp next Saturday afternoon. The arrival will be too late to permit of any stated workout on that day, but on the succeeding Sunday Jewel plans to direct some sort of light recreation in order to get the athletes limbered up for the strenuous activities of the following day.

Coach Scoops Carey will leave with the first squad. He is due to arrive in town today, coming from St. Louis. Ens and Sam Dreyfuss will be in charge of the party. Out of the city there will be only few athletes, but there will be additions to the squad along the route of travel.

MOOSE RING LOCATION TO BE MOVED

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

With a view to increasing the seating capacity of his arena and at the same time providing more good seats for his patrons, Promoter Francis Flynn of the Moose Temple Boxing Club today announced plans for the extension of his ring from the stage out into the first six rows of orchestra seats. Specifications have been drawn up and the improvements will be ready for next week's show.

The change will provide more rows of seats on the back part of the stage and will make ringside seats of the present side seats in the orchestra section. As at present located, with the ring entirely on the stage, these seats are the least desirable in the house, due to the fact that the ring posts and the boxers' seconds obscure the action from the persons sitting there.

While arranging for the reconstruction of his arena, Flynn also was busy filling in his card for his Tom Malco-Joe Walcott show next Friday night and arranging for a battle between Jackie Rodgers and Howard Mayberry Friday night of next week. He has a conference scheduled in the boxing commission office to iron out the tangles involved in the closing of the latter contest.

WILSON IN SEMI-FINAL

For his semi-final Friday night, Flynn has signed Jack Wilson, of Jersey City, and Chuck Zelnack, of Glassport, middleweights. Wilson recently made his local debut at the Moose, knocking out Georgie Chambers in highly sensational fashion in two rounds. Entering the ring unheralded and unsung in a substitute capacity, he took the fans by storm and looked the part of a "ringer" and there has been a demand for his return. Zelnack holds decisions over Harry Spencer, Mickey Solmen and others.

Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, victor last week at the Moose over U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Andy And-

Three extra periods were required to produce a winner, the Kansasans winning by a free throw and a quick field goal just 25 seconds before the third extra period ended.

GIANTS, CHISOX BEGIN SPRING DRILLS TODAY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Baseball spring training will start in San Antonio today. Two major league clubs—the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox—arrived here last night.

The giants will have their first workout at 10:30 a. m.

The White Sox however, will await an inspection of the ball park at St. Mary's University before the word is given to start training.

Among the arrivals on both clubs were pitchers and catchers, other players will report later.

BUCS MENACE CUBS

BUFFALO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, champions of the National League, closed his Buffalo home yesterday and departed for Chicago for a brief meeting with the Cub business executives and to round up his pitchers and catchers and take them to Catalina as the advance guard of the training camp. McCarthy declared he confidently expected the Cubs to repeat.

McCarthy said he expected greatest contention from the Cardinals, Pittsburgh and maybe New York.

"McGraw is always dangerous, especially after a bad year," said McCarthy. "He had that last season. Look out for him now."

ADOPT SCHEDULE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—A playing schedule for the first half of their split season was adopted by Eastern League club owners at a meeting here yesterday. Opening day games on April 16, with the same pairing to hold over for the following day, call for Springfield at Albany, Pittsfield at Bridgeport, Hartford at Providence and New Haven at Allentown.

The four visiting clubs of opening day will have their home openings on April 18, with Bridgeport at Springfield, Providence at Pittsfield, Albany at New Haven and Allentown at Hartford.

PURDUE PASSERS KEEP LEAD IN BIG TEN

COLUMBIA, PENN TIED IN EAST

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The firm of Charles (Stretch) Murphy and Company, representing Purdue in the Western Conference basketball championship race, still dominates the league with a record of five straight victories.

Ohio State did everything but hand Purdue its first defeat of the season Saturday night, but fell shy at the finish—with Murphy as the cause. The Buckeyes led by two points with seconds to go, when Murphy, who had been held to one field goal by Wesley Fesler and Stewart, took a pass from fleet Johnny Wooden and connected for a basket to tie the score. In the overtime period, Ohio was unable to keep up and was out-scored four points to two, to give Purdue a 27-to-25 decision.

Wisconsin, hanging about waiting for something to happen to Purdue, protected its own interests by defeating Northwestern, 29 to 22 at Madison. The victory was the Badgers' fifth in six starts.

TIE FOR THIRD

Indiana and Illinois made it a two-way tie for third place, the Illini defeating Minnesota, 26 to 22, and the Hoosiers trouncing Chicago by 28 to 16, while Michigan, which had shared in the tie, was idle.

Six games are on the schedule for this week. Illinois and Ohio State will meet for the second time tonight at Columbus, while Northwestern and Minnesota finish their set at Evanston. Michigan goes back into circulation Saturday night at Bloomington against Indiana. Purdue meets the only new team on the second half of its schedule Saturday night, in Minnesota at Minneapolis, while Wisconsin plays its return engagement with Chicago at Chicago. Northwestern plays its second game of the week against Illinois at Champaign.

EASTERN RACE WIDE OPEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Defeats last week for both Pennsylvania and Columbia, coupled with Cornell's victory over Dartmouth, have made the 1930 Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League championship race a wide open affair with no outstanding favorite.

Columbia, after giving Penn a terrific trouncing at New York, fell before the cellar-dwelling Elis of Yale at New Haven Friday. Thus, the beginning of another week of league warfare finds Columbia and Penn tied for the lead, each with three victories and one defeat, and the rest of the pack all within hailing distance of the top.

Idle all week, the Princeton Tigers maintained their hold on third place without a struggle. The Tigers have broken even in four games, deadlocked for fourth place are Cornell and Dartmouth with Yale still at the bottom of the standing.

Five league games will be played this week. Dartmouth plays Yale at New Haven tonight. Tomorrow Penn may find the Tigers particularly troublesome at Princeton. Columbia battles Cornell at Ithaca on Wednesday night. On Saturday a twin bill finds Princeton taking on Yale at New Haven while Cornell is meeting Penn at Philadelphia.

TROJANS IN PLAYOFF

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Southern California's basketball team today was certain to participate in a playoff for the Pacific Coast Conference title. The Trojans were a full game ahead of the California Bears.

The University of Washington Huskies led the Northern Division by two games and were favored to compete against Southern California in the title playoff.

If Washington defeats the Idahoans in a two-game series at Seattle Friday and Saturday, the Huskies will clinch the Northern Division pennant.

Loretta Neitzel Defends Crown

SKY TOP, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Loretta Neitzel, Detroit school teacher, successfully defended her National ice-skating championship yesterday in competition against a score of the country's leading skaters. The races were held on the Lower Lake of the Sky Top Club.

Miss Neitzel, who holds several world records for speed skating, led the field with 110 points, winning three of the four events. She won the 220-yard event in 12 1-5 seconds; 440-yard race in 46 seconds, and the three-quarter mile in 2 minutes, 45 3-5 seconds.

Headed by Manager Jewel Ens, the local athletes will shove off for the far coast tomorrow night. The second Corsair squad will not move toward Paso Robles until next week.

FREDERICKSON SIGNS TRIO

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Manager Frank Frederickson of the Pittsburgh Ice Pirates, who play at Ottawa tomorrow night, has made it known that he is beginning to reap some profit from his tour of the mid-West leagues in a searching effort to get new and stronger material for next year's team.

He was reported to have advised the local club last night that he has signed contracts for three players, a defense man, weighing 188 pounds; a left wing, 192 pounds and six feet tall, and a right wingman, 171 pounds. He has placed two other prospective Pirates in Winnipeg on the Buc negotiation list.

Frederickson is in Winnipeg today, and is headed for St. Paul and Minneapolis. He is expected back in Pittsburgh in time for the locals' battle against the Montreal Maroons here Saturday night.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Horton Smith sank a 15-foot putt on the eighteenth green here yesterday for a birdie 3 to win 1 up in an exhibition match in which he was paired with Jack Redmond against Fred Lamprecht and Nelson Whitney.

LOCALS NEAR TOP

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17.—Several Pittsburgh men and women finished among the leaders in the putting competitions held on Barbour Oval for trophies offered by G. C. Nimmons, of Chicago. Leading this contingent was T. M. Cook, who negotiated the 18 holes in 37 putts, 18 for the first nine and 19 for the second half, to land in a tie for fourth place. J. W. Marsh tallied 20-19—39.

In the women's class Mrs. Cook was credited with 19-20—39, Mrs. Marsh with 20-22—42, Mrs. S. C. Reed with 25-25—50, and Mrs. H. H. Laughlin with 21-21—42.

Sport Vignettes

Pitt is planning a fine gesture to its departing senior basketball stars, Charley Hyatt, Paul Zehfuss and Les Cohen . . . . It will be staged in connection with the W. & J. game at the Stadium, March 12 . . . . City officials and other notables will turn out to grace the occasion and it will be known as Pittsburgh Night . . . . The name of Hyatt will live for years in local athletic history . . . . Here is a basketball player born to the game . . . . His equal never has worn the livery of a local team . . . . And don't think little Paul Zehfuss, a former Trinity Church star, hasn't been a mighty factor in the success of the Panther teams of the last three seasons . . . . He's one of those little, but oh, my! fellows . . . . Doc Carlson, the Pitt head coach, will tell you of his worth in words of high praise . . . . And Les Cohen never has been fully appreciated by the fans at large . . . . The tall center has fitted perfectly into the Panther machine . . . . Other honors likely will be arranged for the team as a whole and these three departing seniors in particular, but the evening of March 12 will be a red letter date in local basketball history . . . . Some idea of what these players have accomplished may be gained from the fact that in the 1927-28 season they went through the schedule undefeated and bagged 21 victories, winning the national collegiate championship trophy . . . . Last year, they won 17 and lost 5, and this year they have turned in 14 triumphs and lost only to Syracuse . . . . And the schedules have been consistently high-class and severe in every sense . . . . It is not generally known, but the rules of the State Athletic Commission make it mandatory for the boxers as well as the managers to sign contracts for all bouts, despite the fact that the contracts between managers and boxers give the former power of attorney in arranging matches . . . . Contracts containing the signatures of the managers alone are not recognized as binding . . . . Roy Riegels, famous for that backward run that lost a Tournament of Roses game for California, now becomes an assistant coach of his Alma Mater . . . . Give the boy a hand, he has lived down one of the biggest "boners" in history and come through with his head up, a shining example of what bulldog courage and stick-to-itiveness will accomplish under most discouraging and soul-trying conditions. HARRY KECK.

BRUINS CLINCH ICE TITLES

DETROIT, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—With 35 games of the season's 44 played, the Boston Bruins have clinched first place in the American group of the National Hockey League, adding one more great feat to their already brilliant record.

Johnny O'Connell and Floyd Young will be the only athletes to entrain here. The latter is a rookie from the Piedmont League, who is very impressive. Young plays both the infield and outfield.

ROOKIES TO GO

The party will be increased considerably at Chicago, where Ervin Brame, Glenn Spencer, Andy Bednar and James Walter will make a hookup. Dr. Charles A. Jorgensen, new trainer of the team, also will climb aboard at this port.

The second big leg of the journey will land the squad in Kansas City late Wednesday night. At this spot Henry and Walter Meine, Al Bool, Haj Tinney, Charley Engle and Ben Sankey will entrain. The latter two are youthful infielders whom Manager Ens wants to have in camp early.

THE third oldest pitcher in the major baseball leagues was the first member of his club to report for spring training. Urban Faber, of the White Sox, didn't wait to go by rail with his mates, but beat them all into camp by traveling to San Antonio by automobile for the first spring workout today. Yet Faber, though prompt in starting, goes about his conditioning labors more slowly than any other hurler in the big show. He follows a training program adapted to his own particular case, and his care and thoroughness in preparing himself are two of the reasons why he is still one of the most feared hurlers in the business despite the fact that he is 41 years old. Each spring he is in camp two weeks before he makes an effort to do more than merely toss a ball, but he is always ready to pitch nine innings when the season opens.

THE development that a two-year contract is one of the demands made by Pitcher Burleigh Grimes in his thus far unsuccessful negotiations with the Pittsburgh baseball club appears to kill any chance that might otherwise exist for an early arrival at an agreement. It could be expected that any mere salary difference—and there is a wide salary difference between Grimes and the local club owners as well as the deadlock on the length of the agreement—would be adjusted within a reasonable period, but where the Pittsburgh club is concerned, long-term contracts are something else again.

Pirate officials say experience has taught them that player agreements for more than one year are undesirable, and it is one of the fixed policies of the club not to issue contracts of that kind. Under the circumstances there is no middle ground on which the parties could get together on that feature of the dickering, so it seems, unfortunately, that fandom's hopes for an early settlement of the existing differences are not likely to be realized.

After Dinner Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

Of course the spitter earns your disgust . . . his filthy habit is revolting. Why not feel the same way about the old-fashioned cigar . . . the cigar rolled by dirty fingers and tipped with spit? Remember, more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

NATIONAL CHALLENGE CUP

By TOM BIRKS

Playing a brilliant brand of soccer and scoring at will the Heidelberg Eagles easily defeated Thoms Run 5-1 in a National Amateur Cup replayed game at Thoms Run yesterday afternoon.

Whether it was the hard ground or not that affected the playing cannot be said but there was a big difference in the playing of this game compared with the one won by the Pittsburghers. Of course the home boys showed quite a tendency to play the man and leave the ball and this had something to do with the big score.

The winner now plays Gallatin at Heidelberg in the final game of the West Pennsylvania series. Another wonderful crowd watched the combat and it was worth while. But Thoms Run forwards could hardly do anything against the sure tackling of Harbin, Jablonski and Urbanic.

EAGLES LEAD AT HALF

When the interval was reached the Eagles were leading 2 to 0. Fisher had gathered both of the markers and the visitors were making the most of their opportunities.

The second half found Heidelberg's star still in the ascendent, and while Urbanic missed a penalty, his brother scored twice after Jablonski found the net. While all this scoring was being flashed, the lone tally for Thoms Run came when Chappell always good for at least one goal beat Fitch with a good shot.

So now we find Heidelberg passing along in the tourney after being beaten. It was a good game and the Eagles were good value for the win. The whole team showed to advantage.

Gallatin shut out Harwick 3 to 0 in the American League yesterday. The Germans forfeited their scheduled contest with the German Sport Club.

In the Chartiers Valley League the Cuddy Eagles defeated Bridgeville 4 to 0. The lineups:

HAKOAH BEATEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Five thousand soccer-mad fans who braved wind and severe cold to visit Hawthorne Field yesterday saw the Brooklyn Wanderers rise to surpassing heights to terminate the year-old National soccer supremacy of the vaunted Hakoah All-Stars, central European Jewish importees.

The scoring was 2 and 1 and the bitterly-contested battle which resulted in the Hakoah eleven's elimination from the current United States title quest was in the second round of the annual National challenge cup play of the United States Football Association.

Cubs Assemble For Trip to Camp

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Members of the championship Cub cast including Manager Joe McCarthy assembled today making final preparations for the spring training jaunt to Catalina Island, Cal., tomorrow afternoon.

Only eight players and officials will comprise the first party, many of the players having motored to William Wrigley's island in the Pacific.

FLORIDA BANS TITLE BOUTS

By LARRY SMITS

International News Service

MIAMI BEACH, Feb. 17.—While a movement was under way today to make the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott encounter February 27 a world's heavyweight title bout considerable dampening of the project was noted when it was pointed out Florida statutes do not permit championship matches.

Coincident with a cable received by Frank Bruen general manager of Madison Square Garden, from Max Schmeling German heavyweight ace, accepting the edict of the New York Athletic Commission that he meet the winner of the Sharkey-Scott fight for the heavyweight title, Bruen got word from Eugene Buckley, veteran member of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, stating he favored making the battle under the palms a title affair. Buckley said he was communicating with President Isaacs of the National Boxing Commission of which Massachusetts is a member, asking the NBA to designate the fight as officially for the championship.

The garden management was said to have received the plans for making the Florida affair a title match with mingled emotions. In addition to the fact title bouts are not authorized in this state, it was pointed out the drawing appeal of the Scott-Sharkey contest would hardly be increased by making it titular and further such a step might detract from the outstanding natural—a Schmeling-Sharkey bout.

Bruen also has received a cable from the British Board of Boxing Control approving steps to put a crown on the Florida affair.

McLarnin in Chicago For Mandell Bout

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—With the date of his third meeting with Lightweight Champion Sammy Mandell definitely set for March 1 in the Chicago Stadium, Jimmy McLarnin today was in Chicago to begin preparation for the test.

Each eager and determined to win the "rubber" fight, Mandell and the Vancouver, B. C. puncher planned strenuous workouts. Mandell will arrive tomorrow.

rucci, of the East End, have been engaged for the second bout. The opening bout likely will be closed today.

Between Rounds

Babe Joe Gans, Negro welterweight knocked out Billy Brooks, of Germany, in the sixth round of their bout in New York Saturday night. The referee halted the battle. Lee A. Carpentier, of New Rochelle, beat Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Louisville, in a six-round wrestling in the ring.

Al Becker and Howard Turner have been matched for the main bout of the open air amateur show of the Pine Homewood Progressive Club, to be held in the Park Armory tomorrow night. Becker, who has been compiling a fine amateur record, is the favorite to win. In other bouts Dick Graham, will oppose Joe Fitts; Pete Fisher will face George Alderson, Cleveland Wright is paired with Ray Garrow, Chuck Mulone faces Sam Bovich and George Martin mingles with Dick Prichard.

Danny Russell, of Braddock and Harry Devore, of Huntington, W. Va., have been matched to box the semi-final to the Mickey Bolden-Gene Moretti bout at Mc-Keesport Tuesday night. Russell has boxed Eddie DeMarco and Joe Zink since coming here from Baltimore, while Devore has boxed Bolmen and Mickey Fedor, among others.

Pressed Steel Car at Reick's.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad passers, defending champions in the Commercial-Industrial League, will attempt to get back in the running for the second-half championship tonight when they meet Westinghouse Electric in one of the two league battles on the program. In the other C. & I. League fray, Pressed Steel Car invades the home floor of Reick's.

The railroaders were ousted from a tie for first place by the Potter, Title & Trust Company team last week, the Bankers moving into undisputed possession of the lead as a result of their victory over the champions.

OUT TO WIN TITLE

Herman Strahl's passers, winners of the first round title, have not abandoned hopes of capturing both halves, and will be out tonight to add Westinghouse to its list of victims.

In the Allegheny County League tonight only one game is on the program, Dad Rogers taking his Allentown club to Columbus Temple to oppose the Fintex quintet. Followers of this circuit are eagerly awaiting Thursday night's contest between Fintex and the undefeated J. J. Veronas at the same hall. The Veronas scored their fifth straight victory Saturday night when they vanquished the Ackermans in Homestead by five points, a no mean achievement when it is taken into consideration that the contest was played on the Homesteaders' own floor.

REAL GRUDGE FIGHT

Thursday's contest promises to be a real grudge fight inasmuch as two former Fintex stars now are wearing the Verona colors. Bill Miller and Johnny Serbin, who quit Fintex at the close of the first round of play, will be out to play their best game against their former teammates. Interest in the game is high and a capacity crowd is expected by the Verona management.

Dribbles

Bilinsky Company has an opportunity to break Duquesne Pat Boyle's hold on the Philadelphia Company League tonight when it meets Philadelphia Company in one of the two league battles carded at Fifth Avenue High School. In the other contest Sales & Service plays Pittsburgh Railways. Bilinsky and Duquesne Light are tied for first place with three wins and one loss.

Kingsley House plays at the Ray Schneider Y. M. H. A. at the South Side Falcons in the two West Penn League games tonight.

Trinity Cathedral entertains Calvary Club and Manchester Community plays at National Music in the two Central Pittsburgh League games listed tonight.

Duquesne Light will meet Equitable Life Insurance Company tomorrow at Fifth Avenue High School in the preliminary to the Philadelphia Company-Sales & Service Woods Company girls.

Meyer Parts former center of the Enoch Rauh Club, has been signed to finish the season with the Fintex team. The Fintex management also is dickering for Ward McFall, star of the Penn Kaufmann Department House team.

The Chicago club joined the American League in 1900 and is a charter member of that organization. Charles A. Comiskey was the first and only president the club has had. Clarke Griffith, now president of the Washington club, was the Chicagos' first manager. He piloted the team to a pennant in its first year in the league, the club winning 83 games and losing 53, for a percentage of .610. It batted .25" and fielded .945. Oddly enough, the Chicago team in the National League also won the league pennant in its first year.

In the Chicago lineup were Dave Fultz, who later was president of the International League; Dummy Hoy, a famous mute ball player, and Frank Isbel, who gained fame as an Iron Man player, not missing a game the Sox played during the three seasons, beginning with 1901.

February Pace Is Moderately Encouraging

—By B. C. FORBES—

FEBRUARY is giving a fairly good account of itself. March should bring somewhat more pronounced improvement in business and employment.

The stock market is recovering fast enough.

PARTICULARLY gratifying are the latest reassurances by the federal department of labor that employment is distinctly on the mend. If further gains continue to be made, then the country will be able to stand a mixture of unfavorable happenings and statistics in other directions. Beyond shadow of doubt the first essential at this moment is to put to work every person possible. If unemployment can be cured a rational measure of prosperity certainly will follow.

In view of the admittedly unfavorable state of employment in New York state and in New York City, as emphasized by the state labor department, it is peculiarly gratifying to know that conditions are less unsatisfactory throughout the country as a whole and that betterment has positively set in.

COMPLETE economic statistics for February are awaited with unusual interest. There is not unanimity of opinion concerning the general business trend. Some contend that recovery has been confined mainly to automobiles, steel, and (and less conspicuously) textiles. They point to the indisputable decrease in railway car loadings, bank clearings, building operations, travel, bank savings and so forth. They also point to the increase in commercial failures, and vow that unemployment is distinctly worse than generally portrayed.

The majority view, however, is that, taken as a whole, some progress has been made this month, and that this upward trend promises to continue, probably at an accelerated pace.

NEXT to unemployment, the most disturbing development, the most disturbing development of late has been the low-price level for our principal farm products. Last week the movement was not wholly in one direction. Both wheat and cotton enjoyed occasional sharp rallies. On the commodity exchanges the conviction is gaining ground that selling was overdone and that the near future will bring prices somewhat more to the liking of growers.

The financial and business world is watching very closely the many-sided activities of the Federal Farm Board. Buying commodities at prices above the open market is regarded by practical men of affairs as an extremely daring experiment. They cannot but fear that the ultimate consequences will not accord with the prophecies of political and other advocates of artificial pegging of prices.

That taxpayers will finally have to foot a bill of considerable magnitude is almost certain. But since other groups have not hesitated to call upon Washington for protection and support, our farmers may be pardoned for claiming that it is high time they had a whack at the public treasury.

CURIOUSLY, America is being treated simultaneously to a wholly different method of meeting over-production. Whereas taxpayers' money is being used in an attempt to shore up grain and cotton prices because of over-supply, leaders in the oil industry have deliberately dropped prices for crude in an effort to curb over production. The latter expedient is in line with traditional economic principles. But since the World War many plans have been patched to prevent the old-time law of supply and demand from operating without restraint. The latest illustration afforded by large-scale American industry is the pegging of copper at 18 cents and the concerted curtailment of output.

It remains to be seen whether this "new era" in industry and business will work out more successfully than did the "new era" in stock speculation.

STOCK quotations last week touched a new peak since the October-November collapse. Irregularity, not illogically, rules. Gradually, however, the bugaboo of "overhanging" stock salvaged during the panic is disappearing. Indeed, Wall Street declares that there is now an unusually extensive short account. The money market being now wholly on the side of the bulls, it may prove feasible to cause bears acute discomfort.

Further uneven improvement in the market will be natural.

That Coca Cola is likely to increase the common dividend to $6 annually.

That Westinghouse Electric's 1929 net income was equal to about $10 per share on the combined common and preferred.

That American Radiator and Silica Gel are forming a new company in which each will have a half interest to install cooling and refrigerating systems in buildings.

That Reynolds Tobacco's current earnings are running about 50 per cent ahead of last year at this time.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—The bond market was rather quiet today and price trends were irregular, with a fair demand appearing for a few issues, as the reactionary tendency on the stock market apparently diverted funds into fixed interest securities. Convertibles were inclined to sag.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty seconds of dollars):

Buoyant Stock Market Means of Restoring Business Boom

WALL street observers are convinced that there is an organized plan behind the current upward move in stocks. It is pointed out that no attempt is being made to bolster up weak stocks which are being allowed to adjust themselves and find their own levels. This is considered to be a very healthy plan of action and one less likely to involve a drastic wholesale reaction. Large amounts of money are available for investment in this country, and it is natural that this money should seek employment in high-grade common stocks. This money rather than lie idle will be satisfied with a small return, it is believed. Wall street believes that the quickest way to start business booming again in this country is to have a good buoyant stock market. A good market, it is said, would restore confidence and bring a great deal of cautious money out of hiding into active business.

The persistent selling in Gillette is said to be coming largely from one source, an important market operator who usually is supposed to be fairly well informed on the company's affairs. The selling is puzzling the Street, as it is continued despite optimistic statements made recently by an official of the Gillette Company. It is reported that there is a possibility of additional litigation involving Gillette and also that the earnings for 1930 may be disappointing.

YELLOW Truck and Coach Manufacturing Company for year ended December 31, 1929, is likely to report net profit of about $1,900,000 after all charges, which after preferred dividend requirements would leave balance of $850,000 or about 40 cents a share for 2,100,000 combined common and class B shares outstanding. These figures include profits of Yellow Manufacturing Acceptance Corporation. Dividends on preferred shares were suspended January, 1928, and there is an accumulation of $2,100,000 on this issue. Although the company's operations showed a deficit in the final quarter of 1929, year-end adjustments of inventory and reversal of excess reserves enabled it to show a net profit for the period of about $1,000,000. Estimated net for 1929 would compare with a deficit of $1,104,411 in 1928.

Selling has been coming into United Fruit. There has been no evidence of bear attacks, and market observers contend that the supply has represented liquidation, coming as it did from New England sources. The stock pays $4 a share per annum in cash and there was some disappointment recently when an expected stock dividend was not declared. A year ago a stock distribution was voted.

WHILE baking shares have not been favored in conservative quarters, Continental Baking "A" has been meeting a quiet demand. Earnings last year were satisfactory. Recent buyers make the point that if the recent revenues are maintained, a dividend is probable on the issue before long. The low price of wheat is expected to be an aid for most of the large baking concerns in the coming months.

General Theaters Equipment has been mentioned prominently around the Street for the last few days, and the stock has moved forward under the impetus of good buying. Profit taking at the higher levels has been absorbed. Those most optimistic on the issue contend the company has developed a remarkable revolution in the motion picture industry with its "third dimension" pictures which are now being shown in this city and which have been meeting with the approval of interests identified with the field as well as the public.

Automobile Sales Have Slow Start

By GEORGE H. SYNDER.

AUTOMOBILE sales in this district in January were slow in getting under way. Registrations of new cars in Allegheny County were 21 per cent smaller than in the same month of last year. The number of new car registrations was 1,521 compared with 1,926 in January, 1929.

As usual the figures show a wide range of variation between different makes of cars due to changing popular appeal and conditions resulting from alterations in models.

Out of 38 makes of cars for which registrations were available only 10 showed gains over the same month of last year. Most of the cars showing increases in sales were made by companies which enjoyed a particularly marked expansion during all of 1929. In addition to the 10 makers showing increases there were registrations of four models which were not on the market at this time last year.

Decline Expected

A RATHER tardy start in the distribution of automobiles was generally expected. This accounted for the fact that producers were not heavy buyers of steel and other materials during the early weeks of the year since they did not wish to go too far in loading up dealers before the public appetite for new cars could be more accurately estimated.

January automobile production has been estimated at 275,000 units compared with 120,000 in December and with 401,000 a year ago. Judging from the buying of steel in this district an increase will be shown for the present month, but this will not be of sensational proportions.

General Motors Busy

WHILE the spread between the operating rates of various producers is wide, most of the General Motors units are working on fuller schedules than are the independents.

Most of the improvement in steel mill activity has been attributable to sources other than the automobile industry. The production of rails and of steel for railroad equipment has been a very important factor. The structural steel business, which went through the year-end depression in better shape than other branches of the industry, has also been showing pronounced gains. Structural steel awards last week approximated 60,000 tons as compared with 48,100 tons in the preceding week and 38,900 tons a year ago.

Makes Show Variation

WHILE the decline in new registrations in Allegheny County last month was not general to all makes of cars, it seems to have been spread over all price classes. In examining the figures of the two leading makers in the low priced field it is found that one showed a gain in January while the other lost. Similar comparisons are seen between makers of cars over the $1,000 class and, carrying the study up into the high priced field, some leading makes lost ground while others gained.

U. S. TESTING OIL CODE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Alleging a conspiracy by 19 Pacific Coast oil companies to fix gasoline prices in violation of anti-trust laws, the federal government, through U. S. Attorney George J. Hatfield, filed a civil suit in Federal District Court here asking that the companies be enjoined from further alleged violation or agreement and "for such other relief as the court may deem proper."

There were seven major companies, including Standard Oil of California, Shell and Texas, 12 smaller concerns and one individual named in the complaint. Executives of the accused oil companies have stated that the "code of marketing ethics" to which the government complains represents an effort to stabilize the industry, and was approved by the Federal Trade Commission.

When Our Glass Industry Was Young

GLASS making is an ancient art. The Egyptians made beads and other ornaments of glass about 4,000 years ago.

Glass for windows has been developed in comparatively recent times. The Greeks and Romans, nevertheless, attained a high degree of skill as glass workers, and doubtless could have produced window glass. The climate in which they lived, however, was warm and they depended largely upon curtains. In colder countries, parchment and animal skins were used as windows. Many American colonists made their windows of oiled paper.

Pittsburgh at an early date became the center of the glass industry in America. In 1832, the year that the Farmers Deposit National Bank was established, local factories produced glass valued at $500,000. Window and plate glass, table glass, lamp chimneys and fancy glass articles of high quality have come from Pittsburgh plants since that time.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Turn Up — Local Market Steady

STOCKS RALLY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Market Heads Upward When Heavy Selling Orders Are Exhausted

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Strong rallying tendencies developed in today's stock market after a heavy week-end accumulation of selling orders had given a reactionary appearance to early trading.

Many of the early declines of 1 to 6½ points were cut in half or wiped out by early afternoon and a rather long list of issues were marked up 1 to nearly 6 points above last week's final quotations. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume.

Call money, which opened at 4 per cent and advanced to 4½ on Friday renewed at 4½ today, with only a moderate supply of funds available. The time money market was dull, with a marked scarcity in foreign funds, which up to recently have been one of the chief sources of supply.

COMMODITIES WEAK

Renewed weakness developed in the commodity markets. Chicago wheat futures sagging more than 2 cents a bushel while cotton sold off about $1.50 a bale in the early trading.

Early selling was generally described as a correction of a temporarily over-bought position built up in the rally of the last month. Because of the fact that stock prices have advanced much faster than brokers' loans, Wall street is inclined to the view that marginal buying has not reached very impressive proportions, although the volume of funds loaned by banks throughout the country on securities collateral is still above that of a year ago.

In the morning reaction Auburn Auto dropped 6½ points, Vulcan Detinning 6¼ and Newton Steel, American Machine and Foundry, Vanadium, Westinghouse Electric and Lackawanna dropped 3¾ to 5 points. Coppers and oils were weak because of the uneasiness regarding the price structure in those industries, Standard Oil of New Jersey sinking to a new low level for the year. U. S. Steel common sold down 1½ points to 184½, but recovered its loss by early afternoon.

WOOLEN SHARES SOAR

Strength and activity of the American Woolen issues, in the face of unfavorable trade reports, aroused considerable curiosity. American Woolen preferred ran up nearly 6 points to 44 and the common moved up 4 to 20, or more than double their low prices of the year. American Tobacco established a new high record for all time just under 240 after having sold down to 233½. Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas, National Air Transport, Liggett & Myers "A" and "B" and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit also moved into new high ground.

Michigan Steel was pushed up 5 points and American Rolling Mills 3, buying of the last named being influenced by expectations of increased earnings through royalties received on its rolling mill patents this year. Radio, International Telephone and International Business Machines also were well bought.

Bucyrus Erie Co. Gets Large Order

CHICAGO, Feb 17.—The Bucyrus Erie Company has received an order from the Anglo-Chilean Nitrate Company involving 24 large revolving shovels costing more than $1,250,000.

Officials of Bucyrus Erie state that business is satisfactory with incoming orders running fully as large as last year.

General Motors to Build Airplane Plant

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—Mayor Mackey states General Motors Corporation is ready to build a $1,000,000 airplane factory on Hog Island provided the city can purchase the shipyard site for an airmail main terminal. The transaction is before the U. S. Shipping Board for decision.

Cal. Daily Average Oil Production Up

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—California's crude oil output in the week ended February 15, averaged 765,900 barrels daily, an increase of 61,400 barrels daily over the previous week, according to the California Oil World.

COPPER DEMAND TAPERS OFF

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Demand for copper tapered off last week, following publication of the January statistics. The increase in refined stocks as well as in stocks in process of refining, was said to have caused consumers to hold off purchases late in the week. Foreign demand was also checked, reflecting partly the easier tone of the London market. Producers, however, held the quotation for electrolytic unchanged at 18 cents delivered in the Connecticut Valley. With large fabricators operating on fairly active schedules, it is said that deliveries of metal are going forward to them on a monthly contract basis.

Tin ruled slightly easier. Demand was irregular with consuming interest keen for all grades of prompt delivery, while practically no interest was shown in futures.

The domestic market for lead was quiet and unchanged.

Zinc was a shade easier and very quiet. Ore held very steady.

No change of importance occurred in the market for antimony, the tone remaining steady despite a very small consuming inquiry.

Exports of Sugar From Cuba Gain

HAVANA, Feb. 17.—National Commission for Defense of Cuban Sugar Industry reports that sugar exported from the 1928-1929 crop to the United States to February 1 totaled 3,749,734 long tons, and to other countries 1,117,210 tons, against 2,622,150 and 1,185,633 tons, respectively, from the 1927-1928 crop to February 2 in 1929.

Local consumption from 1928-29 crop to February 1 totaled 135,200 tons, compared with 86,990 from 1927-28 crop to February 2 last year.

Stock of sugar in Cuba on February 1 1930, was 154,144 tons, against 123,613 tons on February 2, 1929.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Sharp breaks in wheat values here took place early today preceded by decided setbacks at Liverpool and by a $2,000,000 grain failure at Winnipeg. Notice was also being taken of assertions current in some quarters that European importers had definitely beaten North American wheat growers in the price war which had been waged for the last six months. Opening 1 to 2⅛ lower, Chicago wheat afterward showed little power to rally. Corn, oats and provisions were also weaker, with corn starting ½ to 1⅜ off, and subsequently keeping near to the initial range.

Reports of entire absence of any demand for wheat at Liverpool today went hand in hand with word of an increase of the amount of wheat afloat for Europe and of continued large stocks in Great Britain. Moreover, Argentine offerings of wheat to Europe at prices below North American wheat were reported as enlarging. Meanwhile it was pointed out also that only 10 more weeks remain before the opening of Great Lakes navigation will release further quantities of wheat destined to Europe.

Outbursts of general selling of wheat future deliveries in the Chicago market today at times swept into execution numerous stop loss orders. Downturns of values were further accelerated by announcement that the agricultural commission of the French Senate had asked the government of France to authorize immediate export of not less than 18,000,000 bushels of wheat and to pay a bounty on the wheat thus exported. No indications of any North American export business of much consequence were apparent over the week-end.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 11 to 18 points today in response to easier Liverpool cables and sold about 15 to 18 points net lower by the end of the first half hour under liquidation, while there appeared to be some scattered trade and local selling. This was probably promoted by the lower opening of the wheat market, and buying was comparatively limited after the covering of last week, although there was a moderate demand from the trade on the decline to 16.90c for May and 16.97c for October. Liverpool cables said there had been local, continental and Bombay liquidation.

The market eased later in the morning. There was some trade buying but it was in limited volume and the market rather often appeared to be without much support. Selling became fairly active as prices worked lower, and appeared to be promoted by reports of the easier wheat and stock markets. May sold off to 16.75 and October to 16.87, making net declines of 30 to 33 points, but there was a little better demand at these figures and the volume of business tapered off with prices showing rallies of a few points from the lowest at midday.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP.)—Further selling of several of the utility and oil shares sent curb market stocks generally lower today. Although bull forces quickly rallied to the support of some of the more active issues, a few of the industrial shares made new high ground for the year in quiet trading.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

NEW MEANING IS GIVEN TO BUYING

Just How Far Rally Is Warranted Is Questioned; Stocks Outstrip Trade

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 — The persistent gradual advance in stock prices since Christmas represents an attempt to express judgment concerning the economic future of the United States.

The earlier panic reflected emotion and led to the liquidation rather than the deliberate appraisal. Accordingly the observer must attach a different significance to these recent transactions, particularly since the buying, at least in the earlier stages, came from irreplaceably strong sources as measured by the fact that the advance in prices occurred while business was declining. In spite of the upturn in loans recently, the ratio between loans and stock prices early in February was the most favorable recorded since these statistics have been compiled.

Accordingly with numerous representative public utility and industrial shares far above the panic low levels there is no longer an abundance of obvious bargains reflecting selling hysteria. The next question is how far is the rally warranted and how much farther can it go.

RALLY WELL GROUNDED

The short term outlook is tied up with the outlook for trade for the remainder of 1930, but I do not think that the rally has been based entirely on immediate trade prospects. It has also been predicated on a growth of confidence that the new trend of corporate big business in the United States is solidly grounded, and will endure through the years in spite of temporary vicissitudes in the business cycle.

The decline in bocking loans to others to brokers of $2,231,000,000 since Christmas suggests that interests which were postponing permanent investment when stock prices were inflated before the crash have in recent weeks been ready to make commitments switching from the side of lender to that of investor.

But in its decisive character the stock market has outstripped business recovery. It implies a reasonably good business outlook but thus far the actual sales recovery which has taken place has been largely seasonal in character. The post-show activity in the automobile industry is a seasonal development, which has had beneficient effects on the steel trade and on other industries from which it draws supplies. There has been the suggestion of a more than seasonal improvement in the construction trade and if this continues, it will be an extremely important factor in setting the total volume of business for 1930.

Actual statistical data available makes Col. Leonard P. Ayres vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, confident that at least the bottom of the business decline, which started last July, has been reached.

"We appear to have reached the bottom of the business valley," the Cleveland statistician said, "but we do not yet know how wide the valley may be. General business recovery may or may not make rapid progress in the immediate future."

UNDER 1927 LEVEL

In order to get a sense of perspective, it is well to realize that the level of business activity at the present time is lower than it was at the bottom of the recession in 1927, though not as low as it was in the summer of 1924 and not nearly as depressed as it was in 1921.

But only the astigmatic believe that all the troubles of the business world are behind us. A factor which is giving some concern to thoughtful bankers is the depression of fundamental commodity prices which is likely to curtail world buying power.

The slump in wheat and cotton gives a domestic aspect to this situation, but coffee, sugar, wool, oil and other commodities are involved in the same economic phase and affect conditions in alien countries which specialize in those products.

Robert P. Lamont, who after 40 years in business entered the government service for the first time on March 4 when he became Secretary of Commerce, reports that his older illusion that government jobs were soft plums has changed. He reports that he has been working harder than he has toiled in 20 years, and rarely leaves his desk before 6 o'clock, even on Saturdays. Moreover he testifies that he has found a desire to work hard among numerous government officials. This confession of a change of faith perhaps will be heartening news for the taxpayers.

Cities Service Sub Plans Stock Change

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Company, of Bartlesville, Okla., a subsidiary of Cities Service, has asked stockholders approval of the proposed creation of class "A" no par non-voting common stock and of plans to change the present common, to be designated as class "B" from $1 to no par. This stock will retain its present voting rights. The new class "A" stock will be used in payment for the holdings of the Foster Petroleum Corporation, acquisition of which was recently arranged.

Swift Wins Decision In Tax Refund Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The U. S. Court of Claims held today that Swift & Co. of Chicago was entitled to recover in a refund tax suit against the government. The amount to be recovered has not been set by the court, but the claim of the company totaled $3,982,291.

RESERVE BANK PROFITS UP FOR 1929

System's Units Show Good Rate of Increase Despite Gain in Expense Account

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Earnings of Federal Reserve banks in 1929 totaled $70,955,000, total of $6,902,000 greater than during the year previous, according to the Federal Reserve Board. Current expenses of the banks, however, increased $2,786,000 over 1928 to reach a total of $29,691,000. After adjustments and deductions for depreciation and reserves for losses and self-insurance, net earnings of $36,403,000 were available for distribution by payment of dividends, transfers to surplus and payments of franchise tax to the government.

Increase during the year in the earnings is to be accounted for by the substantial increase from 4.24 per cent in 1928 to 4.86 per cent in 1929 in the average rate of earnings on the daily average holdings of bills and securities according to the board.

PRINTING EXPENSE UP

This increase in the rate of earnings was more than sufficient to offset a decrease of $54,000,000 in the average holdings of bills and securities. Earnings on bills discounted amounted to $47,791,000 in 1929 as against $38,334,000 in 1928. Increase at this point was offset partly by decreased bills bought in the open market and decline in holdings of government securities owing to smaller average totals and despite increased average rate of earnings.

Biggest item in the increase in current expenses was cost of printing the new currency.

DIVIDENDS COVERED

In 1929 net earnings of each of the Federal Reserve banks was more than sufficient to cover payments at the required rate of 6 per cent on the paid-up capital stock of the reserve banks. Aggregate amount of these payments was $9,384,000 in 1929 and $8,458,000 in 1928. Total subscribed capital of the Federal Reserve banks at the end of 1929 amounted to $341,951,000, an increase of $48,081,000.

The aggregate surplus increased $22,536,000 to make a total of $276,936,000. This sum was transferred to surplus by all banks combined, under the provisions of the law.

Treasury received total of $4,283,000 as a franchise tax, which was paid by banks at Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Dallas.

New Process Aid to Steel Manufacture

"Electric induction has revolutionized certain phases of steel manufacture," C. W. Heppenstall, president of the Heppenstall Company, said at the company's banquet held in the plant at Forty-sixth and Hatfield streets. The Heppenstall Company began using the electric induction method about a year ago and the results achieved have been very satisfactory.

The banquet attended by 100 employes and officials marked the thirty-seventh anniversary of the connection of C. W. Heppenstall with the concern.

Auburn Foreign Shipments Gain

DETROIT, Feb. 17.—Shipment of Auburn cars to Europe in January of this year was 40 per cent greater than in the same month last year, R. S. Wiley, export manager announced.

European sales also show an increase of 46 per cent for the company in straight eights, Wiley said, with indications that February sales will be very favorable.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Sidney Blumenthal and Company, Inc. reports for year ended December 31 net profit $2,847,104 after interest, depreciation and federal taxes equal after preferred dividend requirements to $9.71 on 289,912 shares of common, against $3,548,842 or $9.94 a share on common in 1928.

Best and Company reports for year ended December 31 net income $1,270,261 after depreciation and taxes equal after preferred dividends to $6.23 per share on the 171,162 shares of common outstanding at the end of the year. This compares with $1,966,920 or $10.98 a share in 1928.

International Printing Ink Corporation and subsidiaries report for the year ended December 31, 1929, consolidated net profit of $3,112,174 after depreciation, interest and Federal income taxes, an increase of over 15 per cent over 1928 and equivalent after preferred dividends to $6.22 per share on the 371,162 shares of common outstanding at the end of the year. This compares with $2,698,729, equal after preferred dividends to $5.22 per share on the 271,162 shares of common outstanding at the end of that year. The consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 1929, shows a current ratio of about six to one and net current assets of $5,476,506. Net increase during the year in cash, marketable securities and notes receivable, all of which is reflected in increase in cash and U. S. Treasury certificates which totaled $1,814,005 at the end of 1929.

Northern Pipe Line Company for year ended December 31, 1929, reports net income of $150,017 after depreciation and taxes equivalent to $3.50 a share (par $25) against net of $100,000 shares of stock. This compares with $199,832 or $9.99 a share in 1928.

Irving Air Chute Co., Inc. reports net income of $452,677 for year ended December 31, 1929 is equal to $2.18 a share on 209,000 capital shares outstanding, against $414,378 or $1.98 a share in 1928.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of my dear husband, Joseph Bruno, who passed away four years ago today, Feb. 17, 1926. Sad memories he left behind, four years have passed since that sad day the one we loved was called away. God took him home to rest, but in our heart he dwells still. Sadly missed by wife and children.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Lola's Luck

SEVERAL remarked that "The Crab" had been smiling lately.

The Crab was John Phelps, who conducted the small and only drygoods and notions store in Kenstead, Long Island.

Phelps was pretty well off. He owned a handsome home and the big brick block where his store was located, along with other stores that paid him profitable rent. He was inclined to be pious and was known as "The Crab" because he seldom smiled or had a pleasant word for his fellowman.

A few years before this Phelps' only brother had died in some small jumping-off place in Texas with the dispiriting name of Sour Bend. His brother's only child, a girl named Lola, had written about it. She asked her uncle to take her up there. His home as the little nine-acre farm wasn't salable and she didn't want to ever grow another potato.

John Phelps had written that he was sorry his brother had died. He also told his niece Lola, that he couldn't take care of her. Again he was sorry and wasted the ink to write it all out. He advised that she be thankful that she had a farm.

How Lola struggled for a year doesn't enter into this. Then some men came along and prospected. If it hadn't been for old Grandpop Hadley, who was a neighbor but no relation, Lola would have sold those nine acres at the seemingly magnificent price of a thousand all told.

"Ef they'll pay ye that, there's oil. You mind old Grandpop Hadley. Don't sell hair at inch," the old man advised.

The prospectors went away and came back with some other men. They offered more. Lola shook her head.

Plenty of Oil

"You men go ahead and drill—you stand the expense and if there's oil you get one-third the profits," Lola told them.

There was plenty of oil. From land that raised one crop of potatoes worth about 25 cents a bushel on the ground came now a continued spouting of oil that brought Lola's daily share up around $500 a day, with prospects of more wells to be drilled.

John Phelps read about it in the papers. He certainly kicked himself figuratively and wished he could do it literally. On advice of his wife, who berated him on not taking the child up there in the first place, he wrote that he was better able to care for her and for her to come along up North. He gave no hint that he knew of her sudden wealth.

Lola was a bright girl and rather pretty. She knew well enough that her uncle was miserly. Her father had told her that. She decided to go up there, get her bearings, and then go over to New York and see the world. She had no intentions of letting the uncle handle any of her money. She was six months past 21 then.

All of this explains why Crab Phelps was smiling. He had received word that his niece was on the way. Already he was planning to get hold of the girl's money to invest for her, and how he would make a goodly profit from it for himself.

Lola stopped off in St. Louis and got some new clothes. She came on to New York. She pictured to herself the way her miserly uncle expected her to appear—shabby, freckled, and out-and-out hick. So she stopped in New York, got advice from the Travelers' Aid when she had convinced the nice lady of the truth about herself, and found herself in the hands of a professional shopper.

This clever lady certainly turned Lola out so that old Grandpop Hadley nor any other denizens of Sour Bend would not have recognized her.

Some treatments at a beauty parlor, an outfit of clothes that were just about perfection, and a little training for which Lola paid well, and gladly, and the girl was a wonder.

Lola Surprised

The day came when Lola decided that she looked quite all right. She had changed her plans somewhat. She was merely going to pay the uncle a visit and then go back to the little apartment she had secured, along with an efficient elderly maid secured by the same clever professional shopper.

Kenstead didn't appear very large or interesting when Lola stepped from the train with her very smart hand luggage.

She saw a somewhat dilapidated car with the printed card "TAXI" in it and crossed over. The driver hopped out and opened the door.

"I want to go."

"Sure, I know. Hop right in, girlie," he said.

"Oh, then he told you to be expecting me? How did you know?" she asked.

"Girlie, I know everything," the young driver said with a grin.

They rattled around the cobbled curved driveway at the little station, through the small business section and up a broad smooth highway. The taxi turned into a drive, wound up a charming curved white pebbled driveway across a handsome lawn. It stopped before a big colonial house.

Lola was getting sore. The idea of her uncle being as wealthy as all this and not willing to care for her when she was broke and orphaned!

"He pays me, girlie — save your mazuma," said the driver, adding, "Honest kid. I've seen 'em all and you win!"

Lola thought the driver was trying to be humorous. And she was also so surprised that her uncle would pay even a taxi fare that she merely nodded and went up across the wide veranda to the open door.

Someone was playing a piano—playing it with great force, and there was singing—a chorus of voices. Lola began to get cold feet. Was her uncle planning a big reception for her?

A colored girl in maid's uniform appeared.

"They are using the library to dress in, Miss," she said and led the way down the hall.

A man appeared and looked at her.

He followed her into the library. It was a disordered place with a lot of mirrors resting on chairs and girls' clothes strewed about. Lola stared in amazement.

"Did Keller send you out?" Miss," he asked.

Keller?

"Yes."

"Are you John Phelps?" Lola asked.

A lot of girls came trooping in as the music stopped.

"One, please, Mr. Cozzens, we gotter change," said a girl.

Mr. Cozzens took Lola out and into another room.

"Who told you to ask me if I was old Crab Phelps?" he asked.

"I guess I'm in the wrong place," a taxi man said he knew where I was going and brought me here."

"Aren't you a show girl?"

"I'm Lola Phelps from Texas. I have an uncle here and came to see him." Lola paused to giggle. "I don't blame you for being sore for asking you if you were Uncle John, or calling him a crab, he sure is from all I know."

Mr. Cozzens called in his wife and told her what had happened.

Mrs. Cozzens looked at Lola and turned to her husband.

Yearns for Stage

"My dear, she is still stringing you. No girl ever came from Sour Bend, Texas, looking as up-to-the-minute as this."

"Sour Bend," yelled Mr. Cozzens.

"Well," said Mr. Cozzens, "There is no stringing going on here. My name is Cozzens. I produce or try to produce musical shows. I'm just starting rehearsals now. It's so blamed hot in the city I'm starting rehearsals out here. We get a good breeze from the Sound—"

"Breeze from a sound?" Lola giggled.

"Long Island Sound. Later we go into town to finish rehearsals. Now the reason you were brought here was because Pete Haley, our taxi man, sized you up as a show girl and brought you along."

"Great!" cried Lola, leaping up. "Never mind the third question. I don't care a hoot where my uncle lives. I want to go on the stage."

"But what have you to support yourself with while learning, my dear?" said the wise Mrs. Cozzens, who suspected, and was fishing for verification.

"Well, I'm only getting around five or six hundred a day now, seven days a week—oil wells don't loaf on Sunday."

Mrs. Cozzens had edged over to her husband and secretly nudged him.

"Angel," she whispered.

Lola heard but thought she was merely calling her husband a pet name. She didn't know that an angel is, to the theatrical profession, one who has money and will invest some of it in a theatrical production.

Mr. Cozzens fumbled at last. If he could interest this girl he could produce his other two musical comedies right now and not have to wait to see if this one made hit enough to provide the coin for further ventures.

Watches Rehearsal

Lola went in and watched the girls do their dances. She heard three of the principals put over songs as she had only dreamed they could be done. They sounded even better than the way the big topliners sounded over the radio.

"How would you like to own half of a show like this dearie?"

Lola would like it very much.

Meanwhile Mr. Cozzens was telling his young brother about Lola. The younger brother, Jack Cozzens, had done the book and lyrics for this piece. Jack had brains. Here is proof. He went over, was introduced to Lola, looked her over, and appeared suddenly very happy.

"This is the best luck ever. This young lady is just the type for Princess Helene."

"Princess Helene?" asked the elder brother. Jack kicked him secretly.

"All you have to do is to sit on a throne and look your own beautiful self, Miss Phelps," Jack said to her.

There really was no Princess Helene in the piece until Jack wrote it in, after his inspiration.

Lola never did call on her uncle. She appears nightly now as Princess Helene. She owns half the show.

Also, she is very much inclined to become Mrs. Jack Cozzens. As Jack is very much inclined to have her do that very thing, you better watch Winchell's column for he'll soon inform you that.

Lola Phelps, Princess Helene in the musical comedy "What Have You" and Jack Cozzens, who did the book and lyrics, are soon to middle-aisle it."

"WHY I FIGHT RUM,"—By Congressman Frisby

Editor's Note—Congressman-at-Large Frisby has consented to dash off a few articles describing his single-handed fight to enforce prohibition in this country and abroad. His first article follows:

By HORACE FRISBY

Washington Monument, Feb. 16, 1930.

LONG before the Eighteenth Amendment became a city ordinance I had been fighting for its enforcement throughout the world. That, perhaps, is why I call myself "The Father of Prohibition."

Indeed, I will now reveal for the first time that it was I, or me, who first broached the subject to George Washington as long ago as 1781, and to this day I have a radio set that he gave me as a memento of that occasion.

But that is neither here nor there—the object of my message to the Great American People is to tell them how to help me in my single-handed fight for enforcement, and to get others to do the same.

As you know, nothing burns me up like demon rum. I detest the stuff—and never would have taken my first drink had I not been forced to do so by a bad cold. It was then—

Lenin or God?

Which Will Win?

The Church of England joins with the Church of Rome to protest against the Soviet's war on religion.

Every church in the United States, Catholic, Protestant, Hebrew, ought to join with them.

Differences of creed or theology make no difference. The Soviet fights no particular belief, but ALL.

In a carefully worded but scathing denunciation of Soviet atrocities, the Rt. Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, tells the Anglican Bishops:

"No one can question the truth of the long and shocking tale of imprisonment, exile and deliberate putting to death of prelates and parish priests, of monks and nuns, and of the humblest folk. It is not only one form of religion that has been assailed. It is every sort of belief in God, and the persecution has been accomplished by blasphemies, obscenities and ridicule.

"As Christian men here and Christian bishops, we cannot keep silent."

One need be neither a bishop nor a Christian to say "Amen" to that. Only an atheist could dissent. Only an imbecile could deny the place that religion, the belief in an infinite power, the solace of an infinite mercy holds in the hearts of all humanity.

There is not a day of life in which religion does not enter to give hope, light and leading to baffled mortals. It is the great gift to man, the only one that is not illusion, the only one that does not crumble to dust and ashes as it is grasped.

Gentile and Jew, Catholic and Methodist and Baptist, priest, preacher and rabbi may well join in prayer for the millions of persecuted in Russia, and in supplications still more fervent for their persecutors.

The Lofty Plateau

Navajo Indians Cherish the Beautiful.

There is something quite fine about Navajo Indians. They are silversmiths, weavers, herdsmen, potters, lovers of the horse and the dance. They have a simple true instinct for color values. Their numbers increase, while all other tribes are vanishing.

Consider the conduct of the Navajos, as reflected in the news. An aged and beloved tribesman is ill. Two thousand Navajos, reluctant to see their patriarch depart, ride across the snow-covered Painted Desert to a lofty plateau. They light a great fire and chant their healing song, which, translated, repeats:

"All is beautiful,
All is beautiful,
All is beautiful, indeed!"

As they dance, the Navajos belabor each other with burning cedar bark. Thus they strive to frighten away Anave, the spirit of death and defeat. Their primitive philosophy is identical with the conclusions of many of the world's great civilized thinkers—that ultimate good and ultimate joy lie in cherishing the beautiful.

Make a Talkie

Leave It to Your Children.

If you're a millionaire—so many of us are—have a talkie made of yourself.

It will interest your descendants.

The talkie is the modern improvement on the old family album or the ancestral crayon portrait. It will preserve you effectively for posterity.

Your great-grandchildren ought to value it highly, and perhaps show it to their neighbors. They can point to it with pride as the authentic record of the founder of the family fortune. And it will probably furnish them with clean and refined amusement.

Consider also the advantages of the talkie as a bequest to those you dislike. It is far superior for that purpose to the proverbial shilling or set of cuff links. It would annoy them for generations.

The Will to Live

Artist Has Accomplished Much.

Shipwrecked a few months ago on the Greenland coast, Rockwell Kent, artist, went ashore and painted upon bed sheets good-naturedly supplied by curious housewives. This man's spirit and wanderings are a rebuke to sedative souls who are bored by the monotony of a machine age.

Impatient with architecture, Kent turned to painting. He toiled as a lobster man and carpenter on the Maine coast and wandered to Alaska with his small son. He lived in Newfoundland and sailed a small boat to Terre del Fuego.

Kent incessantly painted the dramatic realism that confronted him. He wrote two books of travel and he is represented by paintings in the Metropolitan Museum, Chicago Art Institute, Carnegie Institute and Brooklyn Museum. All this—and he is only 47 years of age.

Slow But Sure

It Should Be "Slow and STUPID."

Contrary to popular belief, the "slow but sure" worker is usually the LEAST efficient. That is from no less an authority than Dr. L. O. O'Rourke, director of personal research of the United States Civil Service Commission.

The doctor finds that the fast worker accomplishes five and one-half times as much as the slow worker, and makes only one-seventh as many errors.

Without revealing trade secrets, newspapers could have told the good doctor that years ago. The best news stories you read are apt to be those written under pressure, with only a few minutes in which to catch the edition.

Editorials, which are written solemnly and deliberately—as this is—are the least interesting part of the paper.

Isn't It So?

When a sick husband stops his whining prayers and begins to cuss, his wife knows he is out of danger.

The early bird may get the worm, but in these days of competition he may have to stay up all night to do it.

THIS CONTENTIOUS WORLD

By Herbert Kaufman

MR. HUGHES may now proceed to order those new visiting cards.

The Senate, contrary to general prediction, instead of confirming his appointment by a narrow-squeak vote, has expressed two to one opinion that the character of his private practice has no bearing upon his capacity for disinterested public service.

The peculiar relation of lawyer and client is an ancient bone of argument, on which debate gnawed in the Athenian agora and the Roman forum.

Dr. Johnson's contentious mind found it rich in marrow.

"We talked of the practice of the law," reports Boswell.

"Sir William Forbes thought an honest lawyer should never undertake a cause which he was satisfied was not a just one."

"Sir," said Mr. Johnson, "a lawyer has no business with the justice or injustice of the cause which he undertakes, unless his client asks his opinion, and then he is bound to give it honestly. The justice or injustice of the cause is to be decided by the judge.

"CONSIDER, sir: What is the purpose of courts of justice? It is that every man may have his cause fairly tried, by men appointed to try causes. As it rarely happens that a man is fitted to try his own cause, lawyers are a class of the community, who, by study and experience, have acquired the art of arranging evidence and of applying to the points at issue what the law has settled.

"A lawyer is to do for his client all that his client might fairly do for himself, if he could.

"If by superiority of attention, of knowledge, of skill, and a better method of communication, has the advantage of his adversary, it is an advantage to which he is entitled.

"There must always be some advantage on one side or other; and it is better that advantage should be had by talents than by chance: if lawyers were to undertake no causes till they were sure they were just, a man might be precluded altogether from a trial of his claim, though were it judicially examined, it might be found a very just claim." And that's that.

UNFORTUNATELY, disarmament issues can't be dismissed with the same casual gesture. France, true to mercurial form, indefinitely postpones the prospect of conclusive agreements with a demand for double the naval rank granted by the 1922 treaty. And Japan "remains of her opinion still" respecting big cruiser rights.

Tardieu, attacked by the opposition, rushes home to mend his party fences, leaving the Italian delegation up in the air on the Mediterranean parity question.

Stimson licks wounds of discomfiture and prepares to admit the defeat of America's hope of building one more battleship.

Mr. Fox and his creditors haven't yet found the ground of common interest, either. And another fortnight will probably elapse before the obstinate factions again meet to submit respective propositions to Judge Coleman, who indicates that he will not consent to a receivership until every alternative resource is tried and found wanting.

IF COURTS take that stand oftener, American investors would profit in the aggregate by hundreds of millions annually. If ever a system needed a thorough dry-docking to clean it of barnacle practices, it's our present receivership method.

Bankruptcy administration is the ugliest blot on the country's equity record.

After the President's law enforcement commission has submitted its recommendations for revision of our dilatory and inefficient criminal codes, Mr. Hoover will do well to divert their expert attention to the confiscatory fees and parasitical charges with which precedent preys upon business "lame ducks."

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

"I NOTE," snipes she, "that you are always trying to blast cherished traditions and advising people to 'snap out of it and THINK.' Perhaps some of your editors may consider this smart, but I assure you, the general public does NOT. People like you are a pest. You start endless misery by urging your readers to question and doubt and experiment. It is well known that where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.'"

And right there, I'm going to barge into the argument.

I don't care a hoot what you think of me and my writings, lady! S'matter of fact, I frequently don't think much of them myself. But I rise, with yells, to protest your statement that ignorance is bliss . . . EVER!

I have known many ignorant persons, including myself. And I have yet to see one instance where ignorance was either blissful or blessed. Ignorant people, according to all classical hooey, are serene, contented, amiable and well-beloved. As a matter of fact, they are ANYTHING BUT.

IGNORANT PEOPLE ARE FEARSOME, FIDGETY, STUBBORN, INTOLERANT AND STUCK ON THEMSELVES.

No ONE ON EARTH KNOWS MORE THAN A MAN WHO DOESN'T KNOW ANYTHING . . . and no one will put up a meaner scrap to defend his own ignorance. J'ever try to argue with an absolute dumb-bell lady? Try it once . . . .PLEASE try it just once and maybe you won't be so peeved at me for advocating the spread of enlightenment.

NO ONE FEARS AS MUCH AS THE MAN WHO DOESN'T KNOW WHAT HE FEARS. The intelligent man recognizes certain dangers . . . but everything and anything seems dangerous to the ignorant man. Any fantastic suggestion may find root in his credulous brain . . . he is the slave of superstition.

NO ONE IS MORE CRUEL THAN THE IMPORTANT MAN . . . . . for he has no knowledge of himself, no standards by which to judge, no healthy doubt of his own fairness . . . . . and in his benighted conceit he violates every law of decency. Our worst crimes are not committed by thieves, thugs, murderers or fiends.

They are committed by THE IGNORANT, who, in their stubborn stupidity and monstrous egotism, run amuck regardless of all civilized rules and precedents.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

MOSSES are celebrated for their great power of regeneration from cut portions of all the organs, and they can reproduce themselves by means of gemmules like sponges, by separating off little bits of themselves which grow into new plants. The bulbils of some of the flowering plants are devices for doing the same thing.

To sum up, then, it is difficult and probably wrong to think of conscious individualized plants. One should think of plant tissue as organized in quite a different sort of way from our own, as an unconscious or only dimly conscious race, rather than a number of rigidly differentiated persons.

H. G. Wells

Sec. 3. Flowers and Seeds

Like animal tissue, vegetable tissue has to reproduce itself, to spread and colonize new localities, and although, as we have seen, it has all sorts of sexless ways of spreading and multiplying the principal method employed, at least in the higher plants, is sexual; as with ourselves, it involves the union of gametes of two kinds.

Now there are great variations between the different kinds of plants in the method of reproduction and in the life-cycle.

The chief difference between the sexual process in animals and that seen in the higher plants are due simply to the fact that animals move about while plants are rooted.

Among higher animals, male and female see or smell or hear each other, are smitten with desire, move towards each other, make love, and so their gametes are brought together.

But plants have no eyes to see with, no brains to lust with, no muscles to move with, and they have to rely on outside agencies to bring about the union of their gametes.

Plants woo each other "by correspondence"; they are provided with elaborate devices for utilizing the transport possibilities of winds, streams or insects, and inducing them to act as go-betweens in this necessary transfer.

Let us consider for a moment a buttercup flower, if possible, in the presence of the real thing.

There are five brilliantly yellow petals, the most obvious parts of the flower; outside them are five little green sepals, the leaves that enclosed and protected the other parts of the flower when it was a tender, forming bud.

If one of the petals be pulled off, a tiny yellow scale will be seen at its attached end; under the scale is a moist spot, moist with a droplet of the sugary fluid called nectar.

This nectar is a bribe for the black insects that are generally found crawling over buttercups, and the shiny golden petals are nothing more or less than advertisements, shouting to the insect world that there is nectar to be had.

Inside the petals is a cluster of delicate structures, a ring of yellow stamens surrounding a bunch of green ovaries. The stamens are little stalked knobs, and when they are shaken each of them emits a few grains of the yellow dust called pollen; this dust is the male element of the plant.

A pollen-grain is something much more than a spermatozoon, but that we will discuss later.

The ovaries in the buttercup are also stalked knobs, but they are the other way up; in the stamens the pollen-making knob perches proudly at the end of the stalk, while in the ovaries the knobs, each of which contains a single egg-cell, grow directly out of the center of the flower, and have short stalks projecting from them.

Each of these stalks is called a stigma, and it is necessary for the development of the egg-cell in the ovary that a pollen-grain should fall on the end of the stigma. This is called "pollination."

When a grain of pollen gets on to a stigma it behaves like a minute plant in favorable circumstances; it sprouts out a little stalk or filament, the pollen tube, which burrows down towards the egg-cell like a rootlet growing down through the soil; the tip of the stalk ultimately touches the egg-cell and certain interchanges occur which make the egg-cell develop into an embryo.

The manner of operation of the whole engine is this. Insects are attracted by the petals and come to seek the nectar; the stamens shed their pollen outwards into the circular groove at the bases of the petals, so that the insects, scrabbling for the nectar, get dusted with the tiny yellow grains.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and came my cousin Harry Williams, who is a tutor at Oxford, and we drove through town and set off along the countryside for a brisk walk and a biting wind came up to blow, as fierce as ever I weathered.

So among noon-time crowds on the overflowing sidewalks of narrow Nassau street down town and listened to the cries of curb hawkers, who have always fascinated me. And it strikes me many are super salesmen wasting talents in petty occupation.

Home to labor and Will H. Hays dropped by but in his quick, nervous manner stayed only a few minutes and was off for perhaps a dozen or more engagements. Dined with my wife in a Houston street Hungarian restaurant and we danced an old-fashioned waltz to slow dreamy music.

New York has much of the charm of Paris for the leisurely stroller on the lower East Side. Every now and then one may suddenly come upon a lost and mellow haven, completely out of step with the rest of the city. There are blind alleys which seem to be carved out of a medieval age with a solid arched stone doorway, a courtyard, an ancient mullioned window and perhaps a struggling tree trying pathetically to bloom.

* * *

Indeed, in one little courtway I saw a wrought iron balcony upon which sat a shawled Italian girl, gazing with enchanted eyes, and apparently lost in reverie. It was as though some forgotten canvas of a Florentine master had suddenly come to life.

* * *

The East Side, too, has many dark, inviting restaurants like those along the French quays. There are not glittering tables lit with silver and an electrical glow. There is rough old linen, and the walls are shadowy with queer arabesques. Yet the food has that rare and simple charm so often accomplished only in humble kitchens. It may be served by a slatternly man or a frowzy woman, but it becomes, somehow, a philosophical affair like an old poem.

* * *

The great trouble with cooking in high-toned restaurants in New York to my notion is its extreme artificiality. Its zest comes from potent sauces and not the cuisine and has the sameness of being cooked in the identical vessel.

* * *

Only on the lower East Side have I found cabbage soup that is cooked with that earnestness that flavors the entire neighborhood with its pungent odor. In some places it is served in wooden bowls and eaten with a pewter spoon. Stale rye bread "dunked" in cabbage soup is the most robust dish I know. It deserves a position of honor on menus northward.

* * *

The effort of beauty to peep through the East Side shabbiness is ever appealing. In the dingiest blocks will be found sidewalk bouquet sellers with faded wares. Each window has a cracked pot of famished flowers in winter and often in the summer the entire fire escape is given over to a patch of garden.

* * *

Along the serpentine path of the elevated one may see through the curtainless windows into cheerless tenement rooms where many children, by dim oil lamps, are studying their home lessons. No class of pupils are so eager.

* * *

It is only in this part of town that one also finds men, often wearing shoulder capes, who prowl about among old prints and second hand books. Bewhiskered, incredibly informed, they use reading glasses to "bootleg" pages here and there from the classics.

It was Bobbie Clark, the comedian, who in passing Broadway's fattest boulevardier cried: "Ah! The Graf Zeppelin has laid an egg."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

ARE you satisfied with yourself?

Do you feel that you have accomplished about as much as should be expected of you, considering the start you were compelled to make?

You look about and see others who had better prospects in the beginning.

But they have not equaled your success, you think.

If you can reason thus you are not a success after all.

To be pleased with yourself to the extent of making odious comparisons shows that you have not gone far enough on the road to success or you would not have time to contemplate and compare.

Your ability is latent, not sufficiently developed.

You have made some progress, but if you want to make more, you must stop thinking of yourself in comparison with anyone.

There is no true comparison anyway.

What has handicapped you may not bother another, and what has held back the one you have in mind may be a serious handicap not known to you.

Get the idea that no matter what your handicap, others have advanced farther than you with greater and heavier handicaps, and are still going, while you are willing to stop where you are.
